Workers Ready to Quit—War Chest Increased to $2,000,000

(BY LAWRENCE MARTIN)

WASHINGTON — (United Press) — A move to avert the nation-wide strike of 600,000 coal miners called for April 1, was made Saturday by Senator Borah as the new chairman of the senate labor committee.

He took preliminary steps that may result in an offer by his committee of its good offices to bring about an eleven-hour settlement and prevent the strike from becoming effective.

Borah called labor representatives into conference with him at the capital. He talked over the whole strike situation with a representative of the United Mine Workers and two from the American Federation of Labor. Further conferences will be held next week, Borah said.

If these conferences warrant it, Borah will ask the labor committee to authorize him to offer the committee's aid in bringing about a general conference of representatives of the miners and the operators, in an effort to reach a peaceful adjustment of the trouble.

INVESTIGATION PLANNED
While there are no legislative aids congress can render to meet the present situation, the friendly intervention of the labor committee might result helpfully, Borah believes.

While Borah continues his efforts next week, the house-labor committee will begin hearings on a bill creating a federal commission to make an investigation of the mining industry and report to the president and congress its finding with recommendations concerning governmental policies toward mining.

Representatives of the miners and operators are to be heard by the senate committee and the present strike situation will be discussed although the bill does not apply directly to it.

In the same connection, Borah is working out a program of legislation, setting up a permanent federal policy regarding what he calls "God's monopolies," oil, gas, coal and other natural resources.

The impending tie-up, in Borah's opinion, may be used to point out to the country the need of such a policy and to create support for the legislation to make the policy effective.

READY FOR WALKOUT

CLEVELAND — (United Press) — "Strike plans are complete. Every thing is set for the walkout of mine workers at midnight, March 31. There is nothing more to do, the men will quit quietly and peacefully."

With these parting shots, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, left Cleveland Saturday night after receiving unanimous approval of the mine policy from his walkout orders.

Serious internal disorders within the miners ranks was definitely smothered over when Frank Farrington, head of the Illinois district Saturday night again pledged united support to 100,000 Illinois miners in the greatest strike in history.

Lewis was to go to New York, where on Monday, is scheduled a renewal of wage negotiations between the operators and miners. The efforts will be made at this meeting, Lewis intimated, to settle disputes and possibly avert a walkout. It is not thought in labor circles an agreement can be reached in time to prevent anthracite miners joining with Illinois miners in the coal tie-up.

This means that more than 600,000 mine employees in the United States and Canada, will lay down their tools a week from Saturday.

A. H. UNION AID

Following what he termed "informal conferences" with "railroad brotherhood chiefs here, Lewis intimated he had been assured financial aid from the powerful rail unions. He did, however, this aid had not been formally asked. Mine unions, according to Lewis, were prepared for long fight financially and "in every way." Only in case of an emergency need it was pointed out, would mine unions need financial assistance.

One of the most important developments of the mine policy session, aside from settling the threat of emergency on the part of Farrington, as believed to be formulation of laws whereby the union "war chest" will be increased to $2,000,000 to pay on the strike. Officers there, could not state what these plans were, or how the money would be used.

FARRINGTON'S POSITION
As he departed Saturday night, Farrington asserted Illinois miners "negotiate" with operators but assured Lewis no contract or agreement will be signed. Farrington explained the Illinois contract, called negotiating before April 1 and he "going to carry it thru."

Two Dead, Score Injured In Storm

GRIM TRAGEDY OF SEA
UNFOLDED BY SURVIVORStory of Suffering and Death of Five Passengers Aboard Wrecked Flying Boat Miss Miami, Told by Pilot—Days Without Food or Water

MIAMI, Fla.—(United Press)—A grim tragedy of the sea, in which husbands and wives clung to the framework of a disabled plane, drifting in the Straits of Florida until one by one, they died of exhaustion or slowly slipped into the water and drowned before each other's eyes, was brought to light here Saturday.

Tormented by thirst, buffeted by waves, the five victims fought death for days. Crazed by suffering and by the horror of seeing their loved ones perish—powerless to aid—they all succumbed at last save Robert Moore, pilot of the plane, who was picked up by the tanker William Greene. He mumbled his incoherent story to Captain William Wachsmuth, Saturday night, while lying half-conscious and delirious in a hospital here.

Lawrence E. Smith and August Bulte, wealthy Kansas City men, with their wives, and Mrs. John S. Dickson, of Memphis, Tenn., left Miami last Wednesday in the flying boat Miss Miami for a 45-mile flight to Bimini island. A few minutes after they soared away, a propeller blade broke and the seaplane was forced to descend.

Semi-delirious at times, Moore, tossing feverishly on his hospital cot, told how he frantically waved his handkerchief to steamers which passed by, the lookouts failing to see the tiny signal.

Incoherent sentences mumbled as he turned and twisted, filled in the gaps in the story he had already told Captain Wachsmuth.

Thruout Wednesday, the little party on the drifting seaplane kept up their good spirits. They tried to regard it as a lark. It seemed certain that one of the passing vessels would see the waving handkerchief.

Drenched with waves which broke over them, lacking drinking water and food, they fought off hysteria and exhaustion even when night closed down.

It was difficult to make the women regard it as a lark, however. Several planes, searching for them, passed directly overhead late Wednesday, without observing them.

PRAYER OFFERED
The next one will be sure to see us," Moore reassured them.

They did not sleep at all Wednesday night. All members of the party huddled close together and clung desperately to the frail craft.

Early Thursday morning a prayer was offered up.

Trouble, however, soon developed.

The boat struck a piece of debris and began to leak.

With fear in their hearts, men and women took turns at using the boat's small pump. Late Thursday all had become too weak to continue work at the pump.

Thursday night one of the women, presumably Mrs. Smith, crazed by her sufferings, jumped overboard. Her husband followed her into the sea. Both drowned as the others watched helplessly.

The fate of the two depressed the remaining women on the boat. They gradually became weaker and finally faint.

ONLY TWO LEFT

For seven and a half hours Moore supported them as best he could. They expired in his arms and their bodies slid gently into the water after a short prayer had been uttered by the men.

Only Moore and Bulte then remained.

The two, at this in a weakened and at times semi-conscious condition, managed to keep the craft afloat by manning the pump, as best they could.

Neither slept Thursday night.

On Friday a huge wave overturned the boat.

However, it continued to ride the waves upside down, with Bulte and Moore clinging on.

Finally, Moore managed to fasten a rope around himself to avoid being washed away, should he lose consciousness.

Then followed hours of agony for both.

"My God, it was terrible," Moore told Wachsmuth.

Both, however, were determined to stick it out to the last, hoping that they would eventually be rescued. Moore alternately prayed and waved a handkerchief.

HANDS OVER MONEY

Bulte, his strength gone, and realizing that he could not hold on any longer, told Moore he was "going."

Taking a roll of money, amounting to $2,000, from his pocket, he offered it to Moore, saying:

"You are younger and may be able to come thru; I cannot hold on any longer."

Then he unloosed his hold on the wrecked craft and slid into the waves.

A score of planes late Saturday flew over the spot where the Miss Miami was wrecked, in an effort to

HARDING, SOLONS
NEAR BREAKCongress Chiefs Defy President on Two Issues.

SPLIT ON BONUS, MILITARY

Bills Pushed Despite Executive's Opposition.

(BY RAYMOND CLAPPER)

WASHINGTON — (United Press) — President Harding is standing Saturday night on the brink of a break with congress on two of the big issues pending—the soldier bonus and the size of the nation's defense forces.

He must within a short time decide whether he will abandon his avowed position on these two big questions and bow to the will of congress or reach up on the shelf for the big stick which Theodore Roosevelt found so useful and wield it ruthlessly over the heads of his recalcitrant followers on Capitol Hill.

A parting of the ways is threatened—a step which might prove extremely serious, coming just as the congressional campaign is warming up.

RELATIONS STRAINED
Relations between the White House and the Republican majority in congress have never been so strained since the new administration came into office.

So far, President Harding has managed by tact and compromise, to reach essential agreement with congress on all important matters. But the apparent determination of congress to push thru a bonus bill which the president has made clear is distasteful to him, and the further moves to slice the army and navy far below what Harding deems essential for the country's safety, creates a problem which soft words will not solve.

BONUS SITUATION
Harding has been trusting to the senate to shelve the bonus bill just passed by the house. But this hope has been somewhat shaken by the announced determination of Chairman McCumber of the senate finance committee, to rush the bonus measure thru the senate essentially as it passed the house.

McCumber has the backing of the agricultural bloc.

An equally stubborn fight has been stirred up over the size of the army and navy by the extreme economy group in the house. They have thrown over Harding's insistent plea for a minimum army of 130,000 and slashed it to 115,000, a figure, which General Pershing declares is inadequate to the national defense. Likewise, Harding's rock bottom figure for the navy, 85,000 men, has been cut down to 65,000. As in the bonus situation, the White House is now looking hopefully toward the senate for a restoration of the higher figures.

4-POWER TREATY

FIGHT RENEWED

WASHINGTON — (United Press) — Ratification of the armed conference treaties by the senate was threatened with serious delay Saturday night by a new fight launched Saturday by some Democratic opponents.

They not only called in question the legality of the ratification Friday of the four-power Pacific pact, and intimated that it would be tested in the courts, but threatened to move next week for reconsideration of the vote.

This would lead to long debate, postponing ratification of the naval and Chinese treaties far beyond the time when administration leaders have hoped to have them disposed of.

SOURCE OF TROUBLE

The trouble arose over the reservation or declaration written by Secretary Hughes and signed by representatives of all the parties to the four-power pact. This declaration, which Hughes insisted on as a prerequisite to American participation that the United States signed the four-power treaty with the understanding that it did not disturb American rights in the mandated islands in the Pacific,

Steamer Dashed to Pieces Off Port Arthur—Tennessee Flooded

BEAUMONT, Texas — (United Press) — Two persons were killed and more than a score injured in a tornado which swept southeast Texas Saturday, leaving scores of ruined homes and business places in its wake, with a property damage of probably $250,000.

The dead are:

Tom Johnson, 64.

Unidentified white man about 28. Johnson, who is the father of the chief of police, was killed at Fannette, eight miles from here, when the house and barn of Oscar Flaky were destroyed by the storm.

The body of the unidentified man was picked up on the road between Beaumont and Nederland by a party in a motor truck. The man's skull was crushed.

There were ten children in the Cunniff home at Fannette. All of these were hurt when the house was rolled upside down and the children suddenly found themselves rolling on the ceiling.

STEAMER WRECKED

PORT ARTHUR, Texas — (United Press) — Handicapped by a clouded sky, its flaring distress rockets unseen and its S. O. S. messages garbled by the static, the little Belgian steamer Tremlin Saturday night was believed to have lost the brave race it made Saturday against the hurricane that swept over the gulf.

Thirty or forty miles from port the boat ran into first gusts of the twister's grip which later entwined it like a cloudburst, throwing it at will against heavy seas, smashing its cabin, robbing it of a rudder and dashing it helplessly around against Sabine bank.

CALL FOR HELP

The 35 members of the crew were ordered to throw overboard the cargo loaded here Friday just before the craft left for a port in Belgium. During this process the boat sprung a leak. Up to this time the ship had not called for help. Unable to meet the dilemma with his small crew the captain then sent out his S. O. S.

"Be around; leaking badly; position dangerous; sail breaking; send strong trucks."

The tug Ashur J. Johnson answered the call. Whether it reached the boat in time to save the ship could not be learned Saturday night.

The wireless station could not get in touch with the boat. Verification of the fate of the Tremlin in its hurricane race is lacking. The position given by the boat in its early message was 28 miles from Port Arthur.

RIVERS OVERFLOW

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — (United Press) — Rising flood waters of the Mississippi river have covered more than 300 miles of improved highways in the Memphis territory and have washed out many culverts and bridges.

All the interstate and transcontinental roads entering Memphis were impassable Saturday night.

A report from Hickman, Ky., says that city is experiencing higher water than in the flood year of 1913, with further rises predicted.

A new flood warning from the local weather bureau predicts a 43 foot stage at Memphis within the next few days, but old river men say it additional rains which are predicted in the Ohio and Mississippi valleys for the next few days fall, the river will go above 45 feet. The river stood slightly under 42 feet Saturday.

WEATHER

WASHINGTON — Weather outlook for the week beginning Monday:

Ohio Valley—Showers and moderate temperature at beginning, followed by fair and cooling until Thursday or Friday when it will become unsettled and warmer with probably showers.

Region of the Great Lakes—Unsettled with probably rain over east portion at beginning, followed by cool and generally fair until Thursday or Friday when it will become unsettled and warmer with probably rain.

$44 MURDER TRIAL TROUSSEAU IS HOPE

Tomorrow of Killing Cincinnati Lawyer

(BY ALEXANDER HERMAN)

BROOKLYN.—(Special).—Olivia Stone is setting store in a $44 outfit of clothes to help keep her from going to the electric chair.

Ever since her arrest on a charge of shooting and killing E. G. Kinkead, a Cincinnati lawyer who had been paying her attentions and then married another, Miss Stone has worried ceaselessly about her clothes.

She refused to go to court because of her attire. She tried to escape from jail to go shopping.

On the eve of her trial which is scheduled to begin Monday, she demanded a new outfit. So insistent was she that her counsel went before a Supreme Court justice and obtained a special order allowing her to select her murder trial trousseau.

It's partly the eternal vanity of woman," says Warden Honeck, Miss Stone's jailer, "partly the desire to make a favorable impression on the jury. She would be thinking about her clothes if she were in the death house. In the shadow of the chair she would be straightening her hair and powdering her nose."

"Miss Stone," says Miss Marie Mahon, probation officer, "is a keenly intelligent woman, and proud. She carries herself well even in jail and is extremely sensitive about her appearance."

She was arrested last summer. Her old clothes are out of style now. She doesn't want to make a poor impression in court. So I went out and bought her a few things."

This is the murder trial trousseau. Widow's mourning dress of cotton crepe.

Black gloves.

Undergarments.

"And some very fine perfume," Miss Mahon added. "Miss Stone says she does not want to carry the breath of the prison into the courtroom."

Miss Stone was a nurse at a Cincinnati hospital when Kinkead, a former city solicitor, entered as a patient. She nursed him; fell in love with him; gave him all. She thought herself his common-law wife. But one day he married another.

In a twinkling all her happiness was gone. The joy that almost had been hers had slipped—forever. She hunted for Kinkead, and finally traced him to Brooklyn. They met on the street. A shot—and it was all over.

POPE MAKES APPOINTMENTS

ROME.—The following appointments were announced from the Vatican this afternoon:

Five Youths and Three Men
Perish In the Disaster

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — (By United Press) — Five boys and three men were drowned Saturday when a boat carrying a party of boy scouts capsized in Lake Michigan, 30 miles from here.

The party was en route to Hemlock Island where a summer camp was being laid out.

The vessel, a 14-foot steel motor boat, sunk in the middle of the lake. The dead:

Joseph Taylor, scout executive.

Vernon Murphy, scout master.

Judson Taylor, assistant scout master.

James Taylor.

Wm. Klugeley.

Kenneth Borough.

Clinton Mathews.

Philip Nitzel.

The last five were boy scouts from 12 to 14 years of age.

W. C. Harper and his ten-year-old son were the only eye witnesses of the tragedy.

BOAT OVERCROWDED

Harper drove the truck which carried the scouts from South Bend to the lake. When they started to load the boat Harper said "that boat is overcrowded. I advise against so many getting in. My son and I will wait until the next trip."

The scout chiefs, however, expressed the belief that the boy was safe with the party of eight in it and set off.

"I was looking up and down the shore," said Harper, "when my boy tugged my sleeve and said 'look, papa, the boat is sinking.'"

There about sixty yards from the shore I saw the boat coming up and down and then sink. All on board swam around for a while.

"I grabbed a row boat and tried to rush to their aid."

"The boat loaded and was tossed about on the waves."

"I tried my best to get to the scene, but couldn't make it. I had to turn about and come back."

BODIES NOT RECOVERED

"On the way out I rowed, of course, with my back to the scene of the disaster. Every time I turned around it seemed as tho I saw one of the party give a last struggle and sink."

"Joseph Taylor, in charge of the party, was the last one to sink."

Bodies of the eight had not been recovered up to late Saturday. Searching parties will be sent out early Sunday morning in an attempt to recover the bodies.

Three groups of scouts left South Bend early Saturday morning for Lake Michigan. There were about 100 in the entire party.

The little group of eight were the last ones to reach the lake. All other scouts made the trip from the shore of the lake to Hemlock Island. The same boat was used for all. The boys and their leaders recently purchased the island for a summer camp.

South Bend Saturday night was in mourning over the tragedy.

Relatives of the dead left for the lake to attempt to recover the bodies of the dead.

ARMY RECRUITED
FOR BIG BILLAmericans Rounded Up For Work in Russia

CHICAGO—Agents of William D. (Big Bill) Haywood, fugitive chief of the Industrial Workers of the World, recruited an army here Saturday night to work the mines of soviet Russia.

Haywood, who fled to soviet Russia while under sentence to serve 20 years in Leavenworth for violation of the espionage act, has been granted the mining concession of the Ural mountains by Lenin, dictator of Russia, according to Moscow advices.

Four emissaries of Haywood are in Chicago to choose 500 members of the I. W. W. to aid in developing the rich coal mines in the Urals, according to Otto Christensen, attorney, who represented Haywood during his trial.

The agents, whose names were not disclosed, were under instructions to choose only expert miners for the colonization project. Each must pay his own transportation and take tools along, according to information here.

Share in the profits of the Ural mines will be given those who answer the call of Haywood to go to the "land of opportunity."

Several expert mining engineers will also be recruited to establish American efficiency methods in the mines, Christensen said he was informed.

STORY OF POVERTY, WANT

WORK OF SOCIAL SERVICE BUREAU

UNITED EFFORT IS PLANNED

Movement Started to Assure Continued Relief.

Poverty, induced by unemployment, has forced 500 new families in Lima to seek relief of the Social Service Bureau during the past winter, a statement issued by Mrs. Irene Mills Jackson, Saturday, shows.

Men who had worked steadily for years and supported their families in comparative comfort, were forced for the first time in their lives to seek charity.

It was a situation not of their own choosing.

The specter of unemployment stalked at their door and with all other avenues of relief closed, compelled the father or mother to at last turn their steps toward the bureau.

It was a struggle with many to make the first trip; the second came easier and subsequent visits followed in rapid succession.

FAVE LOSS OF HOMES

During the high tide of war prosperity, a few of those now seeking aid made an initial payment on homes. Many of them have lost savings so invested. Mrs. Jackson states, household furnishings are mortgaged to the limit and savings accounts have dwindled to nothing. They stand to lose their homes.

The situation is little short of appalling, Mrs. Jackson says.

But bad as it is, had it not been for the careful management of the bureau and its untiring efforts, affairs would have been in a much worse plight, it is asserted.

The effect of unemployment on family life has been, as it always will be—low nourishment, low morale, dissatisfaction growing into resentment and discouragement.

Feeling that to give outright was to build up a spirit of dependency among the men, in October, after a conference between the bureau heads and city officials, the plan of giving heads of homes a few days work each week for the city in exchange for necessities was launched.

The plan has worked out very well, Mrs. Jackson states. Laboring men have been employed at street cleaning, repair work and cleaning up the city parks. Skilled workers have been employed in painting and other work at the city building and safety building. A few clerical workers have been taken care of in various departments.

Wherever possible the bureau has found work for men or women about the city. It has constantly urged people to give odd jobs to men out of work.

By keeping in touch with former employers, work has frequently been secured to tide some family over a crisis.

Service during the winter has covered a much wider scope than ever before. Not only food, but coal and clothing have been furnished the needy. Material purchased by the bureau has been made into garments thru co-operation of Miss Trumbo, of the Child Welfare association.

Where conditions were imperative the bureau has frequently paid rent for families who were threatened with eviction.

Thru the agency of the organization, landladies in some instances have been persuaded to permit a family to remain in their property until better times return, or other quarters secured.

Medicines and services of a physician have been provided in cases recommended by the Public Health nurse or Red Cross Nursing division.

The humanitarian work of the bureau has been made possible by financial assistance rendered by various clubs, churches and lodges in the city. The Lions Club has donated a monthly sum to provide milk for children.

The bureau has also dispensed money appropriated by the city for outdoor relief. City officials have cooperated in every way possible with the work of the bureau.

The call of the bureau for financial aid to carry on the work until reawakening industrial conditions render it unnecessary, was made before a group of more than 125 people at the Chamber of Commerce, Friday night.

Many present were astounded that conditions described by Mrs. Jackson could exist in Lima.

"When we realize there are cases such as Mrs. Jackson told of," said Glen Webb, president of the Chamber of Commerce, "we awake to the fact that some of us have our tables too well loaded."

For the purpose of showing some of the conditions prevalent in the city with which the bureau has struggled, a number of cases have been chosen from a list furnished by Mrs. Jackson. Names of the families are withheld.

CASES ARE CITED

One case: A father, ill for three months, and unable to work, eight months to feed and the oldest child 13.

Another case: Six in the family, the grandfather blind and the grandmother frail; the daughter a deserted wife struggling to support three little children.

Ill health has doomed the father of a third family to idleness for six months. At present the family of five are sheltered in a miserable hovel. The mother is an excellent seamstress and should have work.

Seven in the family, father ill and a son-in-law idle. The mother is just out of the hospital. There are three young children, including a baby, born recently.

A deserted woman, now in the hospital and her three children dependent upon charity.

Eviction faces a family of 11. The father is ill and two married sons are idle. Children in the home are undernourished.

Immediate aid is needed by an aged couple; wife an invalid and husband over 70, out of work for a year. The rent is unpaid.

A family of eight, mother depending on day work. Two daughters are unemployed. Clothing needed by blind mother for rent necessary.

Father of a family of eight injured a year ago. An invalid daughter, an incapacitated son and four children of tender age.

There are many other cases—some perhaps more desperate than those related. Mrs. Jackson declares.

A second meeting, to further plans to secure funds for paying a deficit of $11,000 in the bureau funds that will exist April 1st and to secure money for further aid of needy, will be held Wednesday evening at the Chamber of Commerce auditorium.

LIONS WILL PLAN STATE MEET

Loving Cup for Club Sending Largest Number to Lima.

Wednesday noonday luncheon meeting of the Lions club this week will be devoted almost exclusively to convention business. President R. E. Ashley announced last night. The event will take place at the Elks' Home.

No arrangements have been made for a speaker. Boy Scouts will put on a 15-minute demonstration of scoutcraft work and reports will be had from the rehabilitation committee, providing vocational training for crippled and incapacitated persons of the city. Twelve have already been placed in training, thru the plan adopted by the Lions.

Plans will be furthered for the district and state conventions of the club to be held in this city, May 24.

Toledo Lions will visit this city in large numbers, a special train having been chartered, the local club is informed. Canton, an applicant last year for the 1922 convention, which was voted to Lima, will make a try for the 1922 meet and Lions of the Stark-co city are expected to be here in large numbers. Cincinnati, Dayton, Springfield, Hamilton and other cities will send big delegations.

District Governor O. C. Norton has announced he will present a loving cup to the club sending the greatest percentage of its membership to the Lima convention in May.

SOCIAL LEADERS TO BE TAKEN

Booked for Arrest in Cleveland Liquor Case

CLEVELAND — Theodore DeWitt, manager of the exclusive Union Club here, was arrested late Saturday on charges of unlawful possession of liquor.

The arrest followed confessions of Captain William L. Currie, skipper of the alleged rum-running yacht "Tranquillo," and Ivy Burney, who were sentenced to three months in the workhouse earlier in the day by Federal Judge Westhaver.

The warrant for DeWitt is in order with the stand of Judge Westhaver that the person who receives liquor is equally responsible with the person transporting it.

United States District Attorney Henderson, who made out the warrant against DeWitt, said the club manager was supplied with money for the purchase of the liquor by a group of prominent Cleveland business men and that Burney was used to carry the liquor from the Union Club where it was stored to homes of the purchasers.

The names of these purchasers, said to be members of the best known families in Cleveland, are in Henderson's hands. The district attorney declared he would soon issue warrants for their arrests.

In the expected expose of the alleged "exclusive whiskey ring" will be revealed the names of many leaders in social and business affairs here, according to authorities.

DECREES GRANTED

Three Wives Win Divorces in Judge Becker's Court

Three wives were granted decrees of divorce in Judge Becker's court, Saturday.

Mrs. Marie Crider was given a decree from Frank Crider, on grounds of neglect. Mrs. Crider will be obliged to pay court costs.

Mrs. Nina Creps was divorced from William S. Creps, on the grounds of neglect. Mrs. Creps too must pay the court charges. Neither of the above cases were contested.

Mrs. Nellie Roy was granted a divorce from Roy Mort, on the grounds of cruelty. Mrs. Mort told how, after a trip to a summer resort at Indian Lake, her husband made life miserable for her by abuse. She was awarded custody of their child and Mort must pay for support of the girl until she arrives at the age of 16.

PROMINENT BUSINESS

MAN TAKEN AT AKRON

AKRON — E. D. Romaine, prominent business promoter, charged with violating the "blue sky" law, surrendered late Saturday after a warrant had been issued for his arrest.

Romaine is charged with selling stock of the E. D. Romaine company, brokerage firm, before the stock had been certified or licensed.

An examination of Romaine's books showed $17,504.95 in expenditures since the organization 11 months ago. Earnings were $2.

According to investigators, officials of the Akron Better Business commission investigated when a brick layer reported he invested savings of $2,000 and had never had an accounting.

KIWANIANS WILL ASSEMBLE HERE

Inter-City Meeting of Ten Clubs, in Lima Tuesday.

NOTABLES WILL BE PRESENT

Bowling Contest, Dinner, Musical Program and Stunts.

One of the most important meetings of Kiwanians ever held in this city is dated for Tuesday, when an inter-city assembly of members of nine clubs of the Northwestern Ohio sub-division will be held at the Elks' Home, Clayton Paine announced Saturday.

Kiwanians will be present from Napoleon, Ottawa, Findlay, Delphos, Kenton, Wapakoneta, Sidney and Celina, as guests of the Lima club. Walter W. Jackson is district governor.

Toledo 1, insisting on being included in this district and a delegation of members from that city will be present. Lima and Toledo Kiwanians will engage in a bowling contest at the Elks' Home alleys Tuesday afternoon.

DINNER IS PLANNED

A dinner will be served in the Elks' Home auditorium at 6:30 p. m. President of Lima Kiwanis, A. C. Calabro, will preside. At the conclusion of the dinner, District Governor Jackson will assume direction of the program.

The principal address of the evening will be delivered by Colonel J. L. McCulloch, of Marion, Ind., a candidate for international president in the recent Cleveland convention and generally accepted as the logical choice for that position next year. He is president of the Indiana Bankers' Association and is an international Kiwanis trustee.

Governor Frank C. Poling, of Mansfield; Post President A. H. Miller, of Toledo; District Secretary Peter Land, of Akron; Treasurer Paul O'Brien, of Dayton; Lieutenant Governor A. C. Link, of Springfield, and other prominent Kiwanis officials, are expected to be present.

NUMBERS PROGRAMMED

Mrs. Helen Thompson Gayer will favor the assembly with solos and a duet will be given by James Grubb and Don John. Mrs. Marjorie Henderson Carnes will present artistic dancing numbers. The Chick Foltz orchestra will furnish instrumental music.

Each club represented is expected to stage a stunt of some sort, the character of which is to be maintained and a secret until presented. Two hundred and fifty to 300 Kiwanians are expected to attend the inter-city assembly.

U. S. DEMANDS ON ALLIES RENEWED

Answers Challenge of Note on Occupation Cost.

WASHINGTON — (United Press) — Secretary Hughes Saturday answered the alleged challenge of the American note demanding the country's share of the costs of occupation of the Rhine.

In supplementary notes delivered to the governments of Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan and Belgium, Hughes presented proofs of his statement in the previous note that the costs of the French army of occupation here had been fully paid up to May 1, 1921.

The question arose from a change in book-keeping of the costs of the various armies of occupation, as Hughes' original statement was based on the fact that the value of the Saar mines had been debited to France to cover her army costs. The mines were ceded outright to France by Germany in 1920.

The book-keeping of these army costs has been changed around so that France will be debited with the value of the Saar mines in 1922 instead of 1921. It is suggested that France secured this change in order to secure additional payments from Germany at the present time.

The cry has been raised in Europe that the United States therefore is wrong in saying France already has been paid in full for her army of occupation costs.

Secretary Hughes in Saturday's notes reserved for the present the question of this change in book-keeping. But he answers the alleged challenge by saying the change does not in the least "affect the position of the United States government with respect to its right to receive the payment of the actual cost of its army of occupation upon an equal footing with the allied powers."

RENTS INCREASED

HOUSE IS LOOTED

Bingham Boosts Price of Stalls at Market House

Inspection of the city market house by City Manager Bingham yesterday resulted in the boosting of the rent of stalls from $5.25 to $8 a month. The manager said the rent the city has been receiving is too low.

Following his visit to the market, Bingham commented on the price of foodstuffs sold there. He said he had found the prices reasonable, but added that in some instances they might be lower, in his estimation.

TED COMPLETES FISHING PLANS

Refusing to attach importance to prediction of showers and colder conditions for this day, Ted has arranged to go fishing. As the hours passed into oblivion last night and forecast of showers failed to bring results, the individual who makes his appearance daily in this collection of paragraphs became still further convinced that his plans were in no danger of being marred.

Showers and colder Sunday. That's the weatherman's saying. Monday, cloudy and colder, with rain probable in the east.

Ted expects to have plenty of company at Indian Lake, provided the forecast doesn't do the unexpected and actually produce rain. His tackle has been overhauled and an ample supply of "bait" has been provided.

In any event, visitation of rain will not destroy fishing altogether, it is anticipated. Bullheads bite best during a shower, anyway.

HARDING, SOLONS NEAR BREAK

and that under it no purely domestic questions should be considered. This second provision was put in as a protection to California, which objects to Japanese immigration and does not want that question laid before any international tribunal or conference.

The declaration was sent to the senate along with the treaty by President Harding but was not ratified, Friday. The Democrats called attention to it near the close of the voting but were ruled out of order.

CLAIM OF OPPONENTS

Saturday Senators Hitchcock and Pittman with Robinson supporting them, raised the point that unless the declaration was ratified by the senate and the other governments, it was not binding. Therefore, Hitchcock said, the treaty contained no provision including domestic questions of protecting American rights in the mandated islands.

Senator Lodge said this was all a mistake and that the declaration stood outside the treaty as a statement interpreting what was in the treaty. He offered to let the senate ratify it and at once began preparing a resolution of ratification covering it.

Hitchcock then said that it was too late to make the declaration part of the treaty, and that if it was ratified separately Japan might refuse to ratify it, thereby leaving the United States without recourse on the two items covered by the declaration. The debate grew so heated that Lodge at one point left the senate chamber in anger, and at another time, told Hitchcock not to shout.

Hitchcock contended that, if the question were tested in the courts, it would be held that the senate had not legally ratified the four-power pact because Lodge had refused to permit inclusion of the declaration. Swanson, Virginia, suggested that the ratifying vote be reconsidered and the whole matter be reopened for debate.

Action was deferred until next week.

BAN ON LIQUOR TO U. S. LIFTED

Flow From Canada Renewed by Ruling of Court

WINDSOR, ONT.—(United Press) —Liquor can again flow uninterruptedly into the United States, as far as the province of Ontario is concerned, it was ruled Saturday by County Judge Coughlin at Sarnia.

Judge Coughlin in quashing a conviction of the Essex Export company ruled that the Ontario temperance act cannot regulate export liquor warehouses.

The Essex company holds a Dominion charter. It was one of the first companies to start exportation under this franchise. Attorney General William E. Raney of Ontario used every legal weapon at his command to fight the export of liquor from the province to the United States.

The final result was the conviction of the corporate members of the Essex company by Magistrate Gundy two months ago, who ruled that the defendants violated a statute by keeping liquor in other place than a bonded warehouse.

Government officials intimated Saturday night that the case might be taken to higher courts.

Unless this is done provincial officers will be powerless and bootleggers smuggling into the United States may carry liquor out of Canada at will provided they have customs house clearance papers.

Housebreakers jimmied their way into the home of E. D. Elling, 567 W. Elm-st., during absence of the family Saturday night and escaped with loot valued at $100. Elling reported to police at midnight.

Officers were dispatched to the home by Acting Captain Willis Ripker, but no trace of the intruders was found.

Articles reported stolen by Elling include a cameo pin, one cameo ring, one blue and white sapphire ring and one set of cuff links.

HARVILL, Ind. — A cargo of 200 tons of chickens dressed ready for market, has been brought here from Hungary. The birds—400,000 of them—filled 27 refrigerator cars for transit to London.

LIMA CHALLENGE IS ACCEPTED

Will Hays, Head of Movie Industry, Answers Resolutions.

CLEAN PICTURES PROMISED

Response to W. C. T. U. Declaration is Received.

Resolutions adopted by Frances Willard council, Women's Christian Temperance union, of Lima, demanding clean motion pictures, were forwarded to Will H. Hays, directing head of the motion picture industry, by Mrs. Loretta Durbin, president, and Dr. Mabel Murphy, secretary of Frances Willard union.

In response to the declarations contained in the resolution, Hays says in a letter received here Saturday:

CHALLENGE ACCEPTED

"The motion picture industry accepts the challenge in the demand of the American public for the highest quality of art and interest in its entertainment. The industry accepts the challenge in the demand of the American youth that its pictures shall give to them the right kind of entertainment and instruction. We accept the challenge in the righteous demand of the American mothers that the entertainment and amusement of the youth be worthy of their value as the most potent factor in the country's future."

"By our opportunities are our responsibilities measured. From him to whom much is given, is required. The potentialities of the motion picture as a source of amusement, which is necessary and as a moral influence and educational factor, are limitless. If this is so, and it is undeniable, then just as that opportunity is great, so in like measure is the responsibility. That responsibility is accepted. Our association is dedicated to the aid of the industry in the discharge of its mandate the best effort of everyone."

It is a task that commands the best effort of everyone. With an appreciation of this industry's importance on the business world and a full knowledge of its own great future, yet in that spirit of humility which recognizes difficulties and limitations, this association takes up its work in the discharge of its duty to the knowledge of its own earnest purpose and with the conviction of all those connected in any way within the industry itself and the cooperation and sympathy of the public, whose servant the industry is."

Discovery of a notorious character as a member of the special grand jury investigating alleged "fixing" of the jury which tried Wm. Quessie, president of the Flat Janitors' union led to dismissal of the probing body.

A policeman and 13 others were arrested and accused of being the heads of an automobile theft ring which disposed of 1,000 autos valued at $1,000,000.

J. C. McDonnell, assistant fire marshal, started city authorities when he charged there were so many grafters in the fire department that he was unable to perform his duties. Efforts to get rid of them proved futile because of political pull, he said.

Vincenzo Moncelone lay dying in a hospital, the victim of an Italian feud. He was shot by the occupants of an automobile in which four men were riding, as he crossed the street. Neighbors said police had received several blackmail letters containing warnings.

THOUGHTS OF LIMA PEOPLE were forcibly turned to spring yesterday when the W. J. King sun beamed in real summer fashion and afforded the warmest Saturday of the season.

The streets were crowded from mid-forenoon until late in the evening. Stores reported the biggest business in every line since Christmas.

The nearness of Easter and the warm days which perfume bring thoughts of new rain and the discarding of "heavies" caused thousands to crowd into stores in search of things needed for this time of year.

Three things added to the zest of spring buying yesterday; optimism of the crowds, due to the fact that many who have been idle are working; the great array of merchandise, desired to be the finest since the war, and lower prices now in effect.

Sales were particularly heavy yesterday, merchants said, in ladies' ready-to-wear, men's suits, shoes and accessories for both sexes. Hat stores for both men and women also did a rushing business and furniture stores felt the demand of the season for a general brightening up of the home.

Old-time optimism is fast returning in Lima. Everyone admits that this city long since has passed the half-way point in the woods and is coming out. This is being reflected in a score of ways.

As result of an altercation over a dance, Russell C. Routson, 19, of 328 Detroit-ave, came to blows with Lemont Bassler, 714 W. Elm-st, at the opening dance of the season at McCulloch's park Saturday night, police state.

Officer Frank Kinser, who was censoring the revels, interfered and called for the police patrol. Both men were booked on charges of intoxication and disorderly conduct.

Routson was released on $25 bond, but his late opponent passed the night as an enforced guest of the city, in jail.

Moore probably will recover, physicians said Saturday night.

Captain Wachsmuth, describing how Moore was picked up, said: "It was gathering dusk and I had just come out of my cabin for one last look before going below, when far off I saw an object in the water. On using my glasses, I made out a man waving something."

A small boat was lowered and with difficulty, as a high sea was running, Moore was taken off the wreck.

INTEREST RATES HELD TOO HIGH

Building of New Homes Halted, Realtor Head Asserts.

That the construction of 500 new homes in Lima is being held back by high interest rates, was the declaration made by J. I. Metter, president of the Lima Real Estate board Saturday, in discussing the building outlook for this season.

Prospective home builders cannot afford to pay over six per cent on loans, he says.

With the exception of vacant property which was active, Metter states that realty movement was slow during the week.

One transfer of importance was the sale of a vacant lot in Lakewood-ave to J. A. Ernberger, of the Colonial Flower store for the reported price of $3,000, by Metter & Green. The property is west of Cole-st.

Ernberger is planning the erection of a $20,000 eight-room brick residence for his own occupancy. Excavation will commence soon.

Transfer of a seven room frame dwelling, one of a number recently completed by F. J. Bentz, a home builder, in S. Scott-st, to Robert Simpson was announced. The consideration is given as $4500.

Bentz is starting construction of the residence in Revere-ave, south of Third-st, during the coming week. The houses are built to sell at around $4,000. Three more houses will be started in Ewing-ave, in the northwest section of the city soon, Bentz said. They will sell for $3,000.

REMARKABLE RECORD OF RETIRING COUNTY CHILDREN'S HOME HEADS

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Higby to Retire After 22 Years.

FOSTER PARENTS TO MANY

No Criticism of Institution Under Their Direction.

Mr. and Mrs. David W. Higby, superintendent and matron, respectively, at the Allen-co Children's home for more than 22 years, are to leave that institution May 1.

To the casual observer, that sentence would not mean anything. But to the hundreds of boys and girls, men and women who have received their impetus for the greater things of life at the hands of Mr. and Mrs. Higby, there is genuine regret, tears and the thought of long, sad farewells.

Due to ill health, Mr. Higby has deemed it wise to retire from the work. At the same time, Mrs. Higby will step down as matron. Applicants to fill the vacancy will be considered at a meeting of the board of trustees of the institution Tuesday, April 10.

IN CHARGE 22 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Higby came to the institution when it was yet new. In the almost quarter of a century they have been at its head, the Children's home has gained a reputation far and wide for carrying into effect the purpose for which it was created.

Persons who have entered its portals have seen inside the institution not only a place to house these abandoned little ones, but the comfort and atmosphere of a real home. In the years they have been at the home, Mr. and Mrs. Higby state almost 1,400 children have come under their care and guidance. "My conscience is clear and when I leave these portals, never to return as matron, I can say to my God that I never mistreated one of these little ones, but have given them the love and care their own mother might and such as I would like to have my children receive, if I were gone or could not keep them within my bosom," Mrs. Higby said, in telling of her work.

Both have carried out the golden rule in enforcing the policy of the institution. There has never been any criticism heaped upon the institution or its directing heads and the good it has done has been spread far and wide.

CHILDREN WELL CARED FOR

One mother, whose three little ones could not be kept together after she had been deserted by the husband and father, said, upon placing the little ones in the institution: "Well, I know they will have good care and when I lie down at night I will be sure my babies are enjoying more than I could give them at home."

And this is the consolation of many mothers, who, unable to stem the tide of fate, must be separated from their little ones, while they go out to earn a living for themselves.

Members of the board of trustees and the Allen-co commissioners know not where to turn to fill the places of the superintendent and matron, but they hope fate will be kind to the kiddies and give them such good, protectors as Mr. and Mrs. Higby have been.

The Allen-co Children's home does not savor of institutional life. It resembles more a big family, all living under one roof.

However, the children are separated into cottages, joined by broad lobbies, so that in bad weather, the children reach the dining-room of the home, without being in any way exposed to the weather.

Boys are located in cottages in one part of the building. Girls have quarters on another side. All meet about the tables at meal time.

ARE TAUGHT TO SING

To the sound of a gong, the children enter the dining room and remain standing until another gong sounds. Then they sing:

MR. AND MRS. DAVID W. HIGBY

"God is great, and God is good;
And we thank Him for this food;
By His hand must all be fed,
Give us, Lord, our daily bread. Amen."

Then the larger children assist the smaller ones by serving them. Each child partakes of the same kind of food as is served for the heads of the institution and the employees.

In the cottages the children play games and sing and study. Three rooms are provided in the Children's home school and here all save the very small children study their lessons. It is only a step from the cottages, a shorter distance than the average child goes to attend school.

When they have completed the eighth grade, they attend High school in Lima. Two pupils, a boy and a girl, are now attending High school. They are taken back and forth each day to school in an auto, owned by the Higby family. Wilbur Higby, a son, drives the children to school in the morning and takes them home in the evening.

Next year, the teachers prophesy there will be many to attend the Lima school, as there is a large eighth grade enrollment at the Children's home school this year.

AIDES OF THE HIGBYS

Governesses, in charge of the cottages are: Mrs. Laura Beldorf, Miss Minerva Lowry, Mrs. Mary Correll and Miss Edna Sandy.

Teachers in the Children's home school are: Miss Minnie Wyman, Mrs. Ethel Nye and Miss Mildred Williams.

The kitchen, in the basement of the institution, is a model of neatness. Gas is used for cooking purposes. But to mention the kitchen without its overseer, would be incomplete. For many years Miss Lottie Peterson has presided over the kitchen. She knows just how much to cook and serve to fill up the little stomachs of the children three times a day.

"If I must be gone over any meal, I always buy anything that is needed and I can depend upon Miss Lottie to cook and feed the children just the same as if I were here," Mrs. Higby said. Substantial articles of food form the basis of every meal at the home.

One hundred and eleven children are now being cared for. Of this number nine are in the nursery. They average around the age of three years. "We dislike to take any more babies until we have a suitable place to house them," Mrs. Higby said. "Unless it is absolutely necessary, we will not take more babies. We have nine now and only eight beds for them. When the nursery building, now in process of construction, is completed, then we can care for them nicely."

The little fellows, all of whom save one are boys, took delight in singing for the visitor. On the downstairs floor, another group of girls assembled and sang beautifully for the entertainment of Mrs. Higby and the Lima News reporter. The lower rooms of the institution are given over to storage. In one large room are great bins of potatoes and apples, while in another are shelves of jellies made from various fruits and cans of fruits.

The superintendent announced 70 hogs were killed last fall to provide the children with meat. Fifty cans of lard are still left with which to cook during the summer. All articles such as sugar, are purchased in large quantities and are stored in the cellar at the home.

Recently a green house for housing plants was built at the home. It is located near the school house. The corridors and rooms in the cottages are provided with beautiful blooming plants the year around. The Higbys say they came to the institution when the now large trees were small. They may decide to leave Allen-co for a time, after severing their connection with the home, fearing that to remain here may cause them to wish they were back at the institution.

Governesses, aside from serving practically as foster mothers for the children, mend their clothing and darn their stockings. Clothing of each little tot is stored away nicely in chests by these foster mothers. The children have their own bath rooms, attached to the cottages. Each child's tooth-brush is in place. Rooms of governesses are just off the dormitory and with doors left ajar, they can be reached when needed at any time during the night by the children.

APPEAL MADE FOR CLEANUP WEEK

Mayor Asks Cooperation of All Citizens of City.

STAGE PARADE SATURDAY

Proclamation Issued by Head of Lima Government.

Every man, woman and child in Lima is urged to co-operate to the greatest extent possible in carrying the cleanup campaign, April 1 to 7, to a successful conclusion, by Mayor Harold Cunningham, in a proclamation issued Sunday.

Cunningham urges that the people of the city turn out en masse in the interests of safeguarding health, promoting thrift, furthering fire prevention and stimulating civic pride.

Cleanup week is to be launched Saturday with a parade, under the supervision of Manager C. A. Bingham and Fire Chief John Mack. Route for the parade will be announced during the week.

Four fire trucks and all of the city's street cleaning apparatus will be in the parade. The city will also place all of its autos and trucks at the disposal of the cleanup committee for the event.

Floors carrying out the cleanup idea are being planned by merchants interested.

Mayor Cunningham's proclamation follows:

PROCLAMATION
Clean Up and Paint Up
-and Keep It Up-

KNOW YE, MEN, WOMEN, AND CHILDREN BY THESE PRESENTS, THAT WHEREAS CLEANUP WEEK, PAINT UP CAMPAIGN, has resulted in many advantages to community life throughout the United States.

It was picture show night when the reporter visited the home. Through the courtesy of the Men's club of Christ Episcopal church, children of the home are treated to these moving picture shows at intervals.

Every child is alert and in his seat at 6 p. m., altho the show was not scheduled to begin until later. Little brother and sister, separated during the day in different cottages, occupied one seat at the school house.

Everybody was there for a good time. The picture was shown in the eighth grade school room.

There was general rejoicing when the automobile, driven by E. C. Bidle of the Y. M. C. A., put in an appearance. For they knew the pictures, of which he was in charge, would soon start.

The play was a clean, interesting picture, depicting the love affairs of a man of the city with a simple, country girl. And they laughed and applauded and enjoyed the play from start to finish. It was a happy lot of kiddies that the sand-man overlooked that night on their way to "Shut-eye Town."

Mr. and Mrs. Higby took charge of the institution on January 22, 1900. In the time they have been there, they state many of the girls have grown to mature age and a large number have married well and have happy little families of their own.

GIRLS MARRY WELL

Mrs. Higby, in recalling the future of her children, said that a large number of them had married farmers and are her near neighbors.

"One of my twins is now married to a leading Lima business man and has a most delightful home. Another recently became the wife of a Lima patrolman. They have gone into every field of labor and with the instruction they have received here, they will make good, I know."

The many Lima people interested in the welfare of the home and members of the Lima Automobile club, who annually extend the orphan's fund, regret most the loss of Mr. and Mrs. Higby as directing heads of the home.

But according to all who have come in touch with their great work, their efforts will rebound to the credit of the institution, long after both have said farewell to the home and its various departments.

CINCINNATI—So far as Charles Thompson is concerned, the 1922 baseball season is officially opened. He charged Saturday in divorce court that his wife struck him over the head with a bat when he discovered a man leaving their apartment.

FAST APPOINTED

Banker Heads Military Affairs
Body of Commerce Chamber

Personnel of the military affairs committee of the Chamber of Commerce is to be announced during the coming week by Harley G. Fast, assistant cashier of the American Trust company, who has been appointed chairman.

Fast is selecting the members. The object of the committee is to form a liaison between the Chamber of Commerce and the two military units stationed in Lima, with the object of assisting in recruiting a representative class of young men and getting other units for the city. The committee will also work among local business men, urging upon them the advantage of co-operation with commissioned officers of the guard in advancing the standard of the units allotted to Lima.

TIRE PATCH PLANT IS NEW INDUSTRY IN LIMA

Another infant industry has been opened in this city. The Sure Stick Patch Co., manufacturing the laminated tire patch, is located at 948 N. West-st.

The company is incorporated for $5,000 and is affording employment to a dozen people. It is announced. J. A. Current and W. C. Harper are in charge of the plant.

OHIO STEEL PLANT ON 4-DAY A WEEK BASIS

All departments of the Ohio Steel company plant will be opened Tuesday morning, to 300 employees, it was announced last night.

Under the plan adopted by the management, the plant is being operated four days each week, so that a great number of employees as possible may be afforded work. The plant is closed on Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

WIDOW OF REV. BATES IS CALLED IN DEATH

Mrs. Mary L. Bates, 51, died Saturday at the home of a niece, Mrs. W. W. Ballard, 134 W. Kirby-st. She was the widow of Rev. John L. Bates, who passed from this life 15 years ago.

Mrs. Bates was born at Gates, Ohio, the daughter of Edward L. Bates. Funeral arrangements were not announced Saturday night.

DAVIS KEEPS HIS 1920 PROMISE

Failing to Cut State Expenses as Agreed, He Quits

KNIGHT ASSAILS THOMPSON

G. O. P. State Affairs Are in a Sad, Sad Snarl

(By J. W. FISHER)

It must be admitted that Governor Harry Lyman Davis religiously kept at least one of his pre-election promises. No less a personage than A. Victor Donahay, his opponent in the 1920 election, points out wherein Harry made good in one respect.

In his address before the Stark-Oberlin Democratic club at Canton, the New Philadelphia man, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, declared that in declining to be a candidate for a second term, he made in 1920.

It was the first statement on the political situation released by Donahay since the announcement of the retirement of Davis.

"Governor Davis made this announcement in 1920," Donahay said. "I will reduce state expenditures not only thousands of dollars, but hundreds of thousands, or I not ask for a second term," he said.

It was unnecessary for Donahay to add that under the circumstances it is eminently fitting and proper that Governor Davis should retire as gracefully as possible. Davis was panned good and plenty for having imported recently one of the reorganizers from Chicago, to spend a few weeks at the expense of the taxpayers of Ohio, to determine whether or not the ripper legislation was a success. If the theorist is quoted correctly, he is in doubt about the success of the creature of his own imagination. That's about what it amounts to.

The Governor and General Assembly ignored men who reside in Ohio, who are trained in the science of government and opened the doors to the treasury for foreigners who have no fundamental knowledge of laws and circumstances affecting Ohio. It is only natural to expect that when they fully overtook them they should run up the white flag.

These and other things were hurled at Davis by Donahay. The Democratic aspirant who seeks to succeed Davis says the ripper law, forced thru the General Assembly and the Supreme court, is a menace to the health and safety of the public. When the taxpayers pay their June taxes they will have contributed $5,000,000 more than they paid the previous year, merely to try an experiment, conceived and forced upon them by the Republican bosses, in the interest of machine politics.

That isn't all Vic said about Harry Oh dear, no! But it's sufficient for the day.

It is bad enough when a candidate or an officeholder is attacked by representatives of the opposition, but when leaders of one's own party join in the hue and cry, well—it hurts.

While laying plans everywhere about the state for an official announcement of his candidacy for the G. O. P. gubernatorial nomination later Representative Charles Knight of Akron is hitting right and left, taking short-arm jabs at those who refuse to come out into the open and declare themselves against the Davis ripper measure.

Donahay is hitting right and left, taking short-arm jabs at those who refuse to come out into the open and declare themselves against the Davis ripper measure.

Knight assails Carmi A. Thompson, of Ironton and Cleveland, apparently the favored child of the bosses for Governor, since Davis is out of it. He demands to know whether Thompson or any other prospective Republican candidate will endorse the reorganization act of Governor Davis' administration "and methods by which the voters were denied their constitutional rights to pass upon it."

Knight wants to know and he proposes to find out, by heck, whether they are in favor of a continuation of the present spoils system. Do they propose to create more boards and commissions? Have they definite plans for reducing unnecessary expenditures which everybody knows are sapping the vitality of the state? Does some rule for any city mean what the voters would demand that the state constitution say? And how about taxation questions?

Any one of these questions is something more than a homeopathic dose, but when the Congressman who would be Governor throws 'em out in a bunch, it is a drastic dose. Knight asserts that our state affairs are not in good condition; that the cost of government is increasing at an alarming rate and taxation is reaching a point where it is blighting manufacture, paralyzing the farms and all initiative of the individual.

Knight also assails the recent Republican conference in Columbus, in which he takes a broad-handed slap at President Harding. He charges that the White House choice (Carmi Thompson) was ratified by the big chiefs of the political machine in Toledo, Cleveland and Cincinnati. He asserts that Governor Davis has lined up the state organization for the choice; after being forced to eat humble pie and lie down and roll over.

All this, dear friends, comes from a Republican source. It's not manufactured in Democratic headquarters. If everything the dearly beloved brethren of the Republican party are saying about one another should be placed in print, you'd agree quite readily that it isn't safe to trust any of 'em.

That's No. 1. Here's another. Secretary of State Harvey Smith, who is also believed to be a gubernatorial aspirant on the Republican merry-go-round, pays his respects to some of the things in Ohio which not all of the Republican leaders propose to stand for in a doleful manner. Harvey as good as announced his candidacy when he stated that "the Republicans should canvass the state to determine who they want as their candidate," adding that "if sentiment crystallizes on me, I will be pleased to accept the honor."

Judge Smith calls attention to the fact that the people of Ohio, under the constitution, provided the method for the selection of candidates for public office. In that, he takes a whack at the plan for the Washington crew to force a pre-primary convention in Ohio. Harvey adds: "So long as that constitution is in effect, it is a law in this state, and as I am a firm believer in a strict adherence to the law and the constitution, when I announce my candidacy for Governor, it will be with a willingness to submit my candidacy to the people who made this constitution."

If anything further is needed to indicate that Smith is an Honest-to-God candidate, then somebody is dense indeed. Smith's declaration in favor of no tampering with the primary law has brought forth from party papers in the state, both Democrat and Republican, a few of them at least, expressions in accord with his sentiment.

If the primary law is the perfect boon some folks seem to believe it is, it still has to prove itself. There is little or no evidence that the primary is what it has been cracked up to be. It is a cumbersome, unwieldy institution, slow, expensive and uncertain, and gives no assurance in its workings that the most desirable candidates will be chosen. This was amply proven in 1920 when Harry L. Davis defeated a Cole and a McCulloch.

Smith's statement is a smash at President Harding, who has been endeavoring to stage a pre-primary convention in Ohio, so that lines can be laid that will insure the administration of the law (Carmi Thompson) romping under the wire at least a nose ahead of all other contenders when the derby is run in August.

When the G. O. P. brethren decide that a house divided against itself is certain to fall, 'twill probably be too late to get the remnants together in some semblance of order. Until there is better evidence to the contrary, it is safe to assert that the G. O. P. has three active contenders for the Governor's seat. Carmi A. Thompson and Smith, Sic'em!

While he has not forgotten the turnaround given him by the Republican voters of Ohio in 1920, in favor of Harry Lyman Davis, Roscoe McCulloch, of Canton, former Congressman, may also get into the dizzy whirl again.

Roscoe L. newly returned from a trip to Washington, where he conferred with G. O. P. leaders from Ohio, with reference to the possibility of his entering the race for the party nomination for the Governorship. Friends assert that Roscoe found strong sentiment for him to lead the state ticket. He is said to be considering the situation with a view to making a survey of the state.

However, the Canton man remembers that in 1920 he saw unmistakable signs of "strong sentiment" in his behalf, but the enthusiasm petered out before the votes were cast. He isn't anxious for a thing of that sort to occur again. In other words, "a burned child fears the fire," and "it's best to look before you leap."

There are sore spots all over Roscoe, as a reminder of the 1920 primary fiasco. A nomination in 1922 might heal them nicely, but there is no certainty that the balm will be applied.

In this connection, it might be stated that a Northwestern Ohio political observer is in the position of actually congratulating the Democrats that Davis has decided to quit. He is of the opinion that the Governor, as a candidate for renomination, would be stronger than any other the party can name. The said observer points out that Harry has played square with the anti-saloon league, side-stepping the things the other fellows expected from him. In other respects, he is pictured as a strong candidate in prospect, since he is officially out of it. If the observer referred to has been reading the signs aright, then a lot of other folks who make politics a study, have been failing to shoot where they have been looking, or failing to look where they have been shooting. But what's the use to worry over a thing of that sort now?

The medicine makers in Washington and Columbus are busy cooking up plans to endeavor to eliminate United States Senator Altes Pomerene in the November election. The Canton man has made such an exceptionally splendid record as a legislator from Ohio, the Republican leaders realize that only the strongest possible candidate on their side of the argument can make inroads on Pomerene. And there is no assurance that anyone can defeat Altes. Unable to decide just who the "favored" one shall be, the G. O. P. brethren, the Republicans are nursing several boomlets, awaiting evidence of who is able to arouse the most enthusiastic support of the rank and file of the voters. The candidacy of Walter F. Brown has been given an impetus during the past few days. The fact that the Toledo man is in the role of a "Man Friday" to President Harding, makes it apparent that administration adherents will likely favor Walter against all comers. It is asserted that preference is given to United States Senator Brown is coupled with a determination on the part of G. O. P. leaders to put Carmi Thompson across for Governor.

It is pretty definitely asserted that Congressman Theodore Burton will not try again for the Senate.

because of his timorous disposition and his inclination to avoid a ser. p. While the Green Springs Congressman, as been implied, it is now asserted that he will enter the lists. It is considered something more than a likelihood that the anti-saloon league would support Fess in preference to Brown, altho the latter is the right hand man of the President.

In passing, just to show the state of mind of the anti, it is stated that the organization is endeavoring to start a boom for the president of the league, James A. W. (for Governor). However, party leaders are not taking the offering seriously. The politicians figure that "censy is impossible. The anti-salooners are openly against Clarence Brown and Congressman Nick Longworth. Homer Durand, Cochecton attorney, avowedly wet, has become a candidate, to offset the anti-saloon league plans with White. A "wet-and-dry" fight is assured in the G. O. P. camp.

Governor Davis is attempting to stem the tide of belief that his withdrawal was the result of President pressure. He asserts that "twas the other way around" that he was solicited by representatives of the President to stand as a candidate for re-election. However, this statement is looked upon with about as much concern as the claim that the organization measure has been a success, not doubting the Governor's word in the least.

So far as can be noticed, rabidly partisan G. O. P. papers are making no big claims concerning the result of an election in Maine, in the third district, where a Congressman was chosen a few days ago. The Republican candidate won, but with a majority so greatly reduced over the figures in the same district in 1920, that in rack-ribbed Republican Mail at that, the party leaders have been having intermittent attacks of chills ever since. In 1920 that district gave Republican majorities of 19,000 votes. The Congressional candidate had a little over 6,000 votes to spare in the recent ballot battle.

Maine has been considered a Republican stronghold. Declining Republicanism in Maine is evidenced by a study of election figures. There has been for some years a persistent cutting down of G. O. P. majorities. In the light of circumstances, the recent election may be considered a decisive victory for the Democrats.

It is the unexpected and the unusual that makes real news. Congressman Cable's secretary, Alfred E. Reck, a former newspaperman and soldier, has discovered an "item" of this character, coming from Wapakoneta.

An enthusiastic Anglaise co person, arguing for a continuation of free seed distribution by the government, tells Congressman Johnny Cable that "the United States can't make a paradise of small truck gardens, grow from government seeds and filled with government furnished implements." The Wapakoneta gardener, continuing the vision, writes: "In a few years, to come, the government will only be giving away millions of dollars' worth of seeds, but will also be furnishing supplies to make the seeds grow. What we need is to make a paradise out of this world."

Long live "free seeds, is the refrain that gladdens the heart of a Congressman.

The death of William L. Finley during the past week brought to a close one of the most remarkable political careers accredited to any man in this state. The end came in

BUSINESS CONDITIONS

STEADY improvement in all lines of commercial endeavor was the keynote of the past week. The money market primarily has caused bankers and men of affairs to cast aside the last phases of pessimism. Led by advanced prices for steel and better returns for railroads, the stock and bond markets continue upward in what looks like a bull movement that may last well into the summer months. The Chicago Federal reserve bank has cut the discount rate to four and a half per cent, while money in New York has been, as it always should be, selling below the quotation of the reserve system.

Steel plants are reported operating at seventy-five per cent capacity. Textiles, contrariwise, show dullness; car loadings continue to improve; and equipment buying on the part of the rails is well under way. In mercantile lines, spring trade is everywhere reported as increasing in volume. Prices of grains and farm stocks are firm and advancing.

Locally, building operations and municipal public work are putting many men back on pay rolls. The shops are holding their own, altho no announcement of any more than routine orders was made during the week. Several hundred homes are planned and building, and only the lack of funds can defeat the most active building campaign in ten years. Vacant lots are being snapped up in the better residential sections, not by speculators, but by intending home owners.

Money locally is easier at the banks, but still lacking in any volume at the loan associations. Selling of Liberty bonds has been general on the part of business men. The fourths at better than 98 make it advisable for any borrower at six per cent to sell and pay off loans.

Lima and the district is swinging into a prosperous era, and while not of the boom character, is in mighty pleasing contrast to the tenseness of the past two years.

WHY NOT A CITY PLAN?

THIS city, after eagerly embracing a proposed new form of government, is still plunging ahead in the same old way in at least one particular, which was expected to be eliminated.

There never has been and is not now, a comprehensive plan for the development of this city, save in so far as the proposed building code covers the situation. The code will help wonderfully in the desired direction, but it has to do only with building. It does not provide in any manner for city beautification, boulevard light extension, street paving programs, planting of trees and shrubs, opening of streets, widening others where necessary, or any of the multitudinous things that are synonymous with city planning.

The best appearing cities in the country today, the best improved and those with the most public conveniences are the result of a fixed program, begun many years ago and strictly adhered to with passing time. City plans should be well worked out, reasonable in every respect as they apply to owners of property and then strictly followed.

The outline should provide for attractiveness along with utility in development in every direction. With that sort of program, it would be only a short time until the Ottawa river, now looked upon as a nuisance and undesirable withal, would be a thing of beauty. Eyesores would gradually be eliminated and in places where there now is unattractiveness would be conditions pleasing to the eye.

STATE LAWS SUPREME

MANY Ohio cities during the last few years have adopted charters and are now operating under them. Lima is included in the list. This step has been taken to give municipalities a wider range in their operations and has been beneficial in many ways. These charters have been drawn, in most cases, to give cities what is generally termed "home rule" and, to a degree, do guarantee that.

The idea has become prevalent in some charter cities that special provisions for local regulation make their government separate and distinct from the state and their charters all-powerful. This issue already has arisen in Lima, but no test of it has been made.

Decisions handed down by the Ohio Supreme Court this month definitely settle this question and point the way for future operation of those conducting the public's business under "home rule" charters. These decisions clearly state that laws of the state are paramount and cannot be overridden by local regulations.

One ruling by the Supreme Court was in the case of the city of Dayton, which sought to nullify the Smith tax law for local purposes, while the other was in a Columbus case where council acted under its charter but in opposition to the state law. Millions of dollars worth of bonds voted under charters in Ohio have been nullified by these decisions. In the Dayton case the court said: "The power of municipalities both to incur debts and to levy taxes may be restricted or limited by law, and a municipality, by adopting a charter, cannot escape from the limitations imposed thereon by the general assembly." The Columbus council acted under a section of its charter which specifically says that "no provision of the general law limiting assessments . . . shall be operative," but the court ruled that this does not invalidate the state laws and found against the city.

These rulings are of major importance to every city. They should definitely stop illegal proceedings under the excuse of absolute home rule. They also remove all possibility of what might be a very grave danger to municipalities if they were permitted to adopt charters, scrap state laws and proceed in all matters without restrictions. Such a condition would tend to break down our system of government, encourage reckless handling of the public's money and otherwise work to the detriment of the community.

Lima is fortunate in having this definite legal construction on its rights to guide it as a new charter city. It may prevent trouble in the future.

ARBOR DAY, APRIL 7

AS one contemplates the changed conditions that have come about as a result of the disappearance of forests from the face of the earth and the feeble effort that is sporadically put forth to arouse interest in reforestation, the need of Arbor Day sentiment is apparent.

By executive decree, April 7 will be observed this year as a time for planting of trees and shrubs, while in the schools the pupils will be afforded information concerning flowers and their growth and will be instructed in the building of bird houses.

The idea is a splendid one, but it does not go far enough. There should be a fixed plan, an invariable decree, a rigid rule of law, that every time one tree is cut down, two should be planted. The value of forests is too well known to require time or space in retelling. Since the forests of this country have almost disappeared, seasons are changing and floods exist at intervals. The roots of trees used to absorb the surplus of water, whereas now the ditches, sewers and open drains hurry the water to creeks and rivers and floods result.

Reforestation will be realized only when every day is made an Arbor Day and two trees are planted for every one destroyed.

As a servant of man, wood cannot be altogether replaced by any other material. We are wasting it by neglecting to conserve it, we are providing a serious menace for the future by failing to plant more trees.

But she was wax. And my wife, so seeming joyful theretof, put me in a huff. My nonchalance made no impression. She laughed sweetly all the while. So home. And long in the night she murmured across the night stand, "Shall I buy a suit of knickers, dear?" Damn!

POEMS YOU WILL ENJOY

BY BERTON BRALEY

AIN'T IT?

Dawn's something gorgeous to see,
Sunset is beautiful, too,
I think it's jolly to be
One of humanity's crew;
Watching the clouds in the sky,
Smelling the flowers, dew-pearled,
Seeing the stars aiding high;
Ain't it a wonderful world?

Winter, that's white with the snows,
Summer, that's decked out in green,
Spring, when the foliage grows,
Fall, when the breezes are keen;
Say, it's a pippon, this earth,
Like a kaleidoscope whirled,
Brilliant with color and mirth,
Ain't it a wonderful world?

People? They're mostly all right,
Most of the mon-folks are white,
Women are gentle and sweet,
Decent and pleasant to meet;
Life's a continuous show,
Nix on the crepe you've unfurled,
Taking it all in all, be,
Ain't it a wonderful world?

Common Sense Ways to Keep Well
BANANA VALUABLE FOOD

So many people claim they cannot eat bananas because this fruit "does not agree with them."

The average stomach will digest the banana all right if it is given the right kind of banana. The trouble lies in the fact that we commonly eat unripe bananas.

This fruit is fully ripe and ready to eat only when the peel is golden and freely speckled with brown patches. Some people, children especially, wrongly object to such bananas and say they are overripe.

If people would confine themselves to such bananas as these there would be no howel! disturbances, as the green banana is apt to produce.

Furthermore, experiment has shown that the sugar in a ripe banana is very completely absorbed from the intestine and made use of by the body.

On the other hand, if we eat bananas not fully ripe the starch of the fruit has not been as completely changed into sugar and the food substances of the fruit are not as available for the body.

The banana has been called "the poor man's fruit" because it is always in season and readily obtainable at a reasonable price.

When we examine into the composition of fresh fruits we find that the banana has greater food value than any other common fruit, its nearest competitor being the grape.

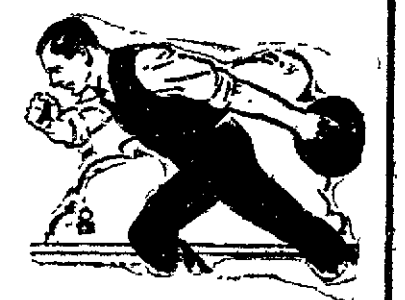

However, it is too bulky and contains too little protein and energy to permit its use as the sole article of diet.

A man of average size would have to eat between 80 and 90 bananas daily to satisfy protein requirements.

KNIGHT ASSAILS THOMPSON

G. O. P. State Affairs Are in a Sad, Sad Snarl

A Columbus sanitarium, where Finley had been immured since 1917, was a remarkable leader in Democratic politics before suffering a stroke in the summer of 1918. Apparently recovered, he attempted to carry on the duties of the state chairmanship, but was again stricken and was never able to recuperate.

William L. Finley was an "organizer of victories." Under his leadership as state chairman, the Democrats carried Ohio five times, electing John M. Pattison, Hudson Harmon and James M. Cox as Governor. He delivered the support of the Ohio delegation for William Jennings Bryan in national conventions, beginning in 1896 and he had a large share in shaping events that brought about the nomination and election of Woodrow Wilson.

He was considered a "conservative radical." Although not strong physically, he was endowed with remarkable powers of concentration and had the most intensive application. He was a strong public speaker and a capable editorial writer. He was successful as a newspaper publisher and in other lines of business. Finley served as state inspector under Governor Pattison and remained in that capacity with Governor Hanna and Cox. After being forced by illness to retire from activity, he was succeeded as state chairman by W. W. Durbin.

The political oracles have it that The Hon. A. Victor Donahey isn't going to be permitted to have things all his own way as a candidate for the Democratic nomination of Governor. Nay! Nay!

For he it is known that there is considerable prospect of former Chief Justice Hugh Nichols of Clermont, seeking the nomination. Former Senator Erasmus G. Lloyd, of Columbus, wrote to the jurist upon the subject.

Lloyd was informed by Nichols that Mrs. Nichols, upon whose health his decision largely rests, has shown marked improvement, but physicians have issued a warning against her being subjected to undue excitement.

For this reason, Lloyd states, Judge Nichols is compelled to be indefinite in making a final decision. From this it may be taken that Judge Nichols has not altogether eliminated himself as a gubernatorial possibility.

In any event, it is asserted, A. V. Donahey, of Tuscarawas-co, will not have a walkaway in the Democratic primary election. It is stated that T. J. Duffy, chairman of the Ohio State Industrial commission, and a resident of Columbus-co, will positively make a declaration of candidacy.

John A. O'Dwyer, Lucas-co Democratic leader, has announced that he will support Duffy, who is expected to be backed heavily by the labor vote of the state. Previous to assuming his present position, Duffy was president of the International Pottery Workers' union.

As events are now shaping themselves in connection with the aspirations of Allen-co men for election to the office of prosecuting attorney, it is apparently assumed that the election contest will present the same candidates in 1922 as were offered to the voters in 1920.

Eugene Lippincott, present incumbent in the office, is again to be opposed by Harry O'Connor, well known attorney and Exalted Ruler of Lima Lodge of Elks. O'Connor stated during the past week that, according to present intentions, he will again seek nomination and election. In view of the fact that he was the choice of his party in the primary in 1920, it has been generally accepted all along that he would again offer himself.

Whether there will be other active candidates on the Democratic primary ballot is not certain. From time to time others have been mentioned, but none have asserted themselves.

In connection with the Republican nomination, there are rumors that there is a possibility of Eugene Lippincott being required to fight for nomination for a second term. This, too, is mostly hearsay. No other in his party has announced himself as a candidate, but there are persistent reports to the effect that a clash between the G. O. P. county committee and Lippincott over the appointment of an assistant may result in opposition being offered in the primary.

However, until opposition actually develops to the point of others being brought out to defeat Lippincott in the primary, not a great deal of importance will attach to the rumors. County Treasurer Harry Botch is facing the same sort of a situation, on identical grounds, the official gossip asserts. However, neither Gene nor Harry appear to be alarmed over the possibility of division of their own party.

Friends of William G. Hoffer, master at Willshire, one of the who succeeded in winning a reputation as a Democrat under a republican administration, by virtue of civil service and delivering the odds, regret that he had been made a victim of the fire fiend.

Flames, a few days ago, in the in Vert-co village, destroyed the stoffice and other business blocks, as well as Hoffer's Willshire Herald printing office and several residences before the fire could be checked.

Hoffer is a well known newspaperman and was for years prominent in politics in the Fourth Congressional district.

It is not a guess when the assertion is made that a considerable number of Ohio voters would like to have the opportunity of supporting a candidate for Governor on the same sort of platform erected by Helen Pettigrew, 23-year-old former Kansas City department store employee, who is seeking nomination on the Republican ticket in Kansas for Governor.

Miss Pettigrew's platform includes restoration of wine and beer, death to all blue laws, more jazz, hobbled hair, short skirts and no more wars. Clothes, eats, drinks and reading she holds are personal affairs with the individual.

ED M'GINN FAILS TO APPEAR ON SUIT CHARGE

Ed McGinnis, 42, Columbus, self-styled "Suit Club King," arrested on a charge of using false advertising, failed to show up Saturday in criminal court to adjust his tangled affairs. McGinnis' attorney had promised to produce him in court, Judge Jackson said.

McGinnis, who stated he was identified with the Field Clothing company, 210 Black block, is alleged to have obtained money under false pretenses in forming a club of men and boys who were to receive a $45 suit after paying them $1 per week for 45 weeks.

LEGION POST TO ELECT NEW OFFICERS; ANNUAL DANCE PLANS PROGRESS

The annual dance planned by Paul Gallagher Post, American Legion, will be held shortly after Easter, it was decided at a meeting of the organization held Friday night.

April 21 will probably be selected, according to Frank H. Hume, adjutant. The committee on arrangements for the event is to pick the date. They are: Morris Connors, Frank Callahan, Paul Runyon, Dean Patton and William Daley. Knights of Columbus hall has been secured for the dance.

Last year the Legion cleared more than $600 on the event and it is hoped to secure an equally large amount this year.

The nominating committee is to report at the next meeting of the post on the slate to be put up for election, April 7.

Governor Davis Clears the Track For a Big Field

HUNTER NOW THE HUNTED

Ohio Lions Roar At The Heels Of Carmi Thompson

THE LIMA NEWS BUREAU

COLUMBUS—(Special)—By putting on the skin of a political lion and roaring and bellowing loud enough some one among the numerous Governorship candidates on the Republican ticket is going to make the denizens of the forest believe that he is a lion.

And who is it going to be, for all are hunting after poor Colonel Carmi A. Thompson, of Ironton, Minnesota, Cleveland, and way stations, not excluding Youngstown. "Carmi" never had his hands so full of trouble since the day of 1912, when as Treasurer of the United States he was one of the lieutenants of Colonel Joe Keating, of Indianapolis, in the delectable task of holding the southern colonial delegate in line for William Howard Taft and reaction. From being the man hunting for the nomination in one shot, week he has become the hunted of Ohio politics, an amazing transformation, but one not at all surprising in view of the manner in which the party was forced to repudiate Governor Harry Lyman Davis, the "yearling" Governor who renounced the succession and abdicated as did a certain other great and mighty ruler who also had the divine right to set aside the popular rule. The party, forced to tread the paths of popular rule, has suddenly found "Carmi," as the hangerson so affectionately call him, a very big load and already there are little tips that he may be dumped even as was Davis. Who now can roar enough like a lion to get the place that was his? Upon the shoulders of the hangersons, the party is trying to find a lion, a lion that would frighten many folks did they not know how they looked before they assumed the skins on loans and began roaring for the people's rights.

No wonder the hills and dales of Ohio resound as they tune up their voices to protest at what they assert is "an attempt to barter for the nomination for Governor," as suggested by Colonel William Wallace Durbin, of Kenton, calling the turn on developments before they happened. Over in Harrison-co, up in Summit, down in Muskingum, away yonder in Stark and elsewhere, through the state each would-be lion is making fearsome noises. Most of all they conveniently forget a point or two of personal record. Even Judge Harvey C. Smith, Secretary of State, whose friends have stressed his stand on the primary election laws in 1920 during the presidential preference primary contest, has all too friendly to Governor Davis and found his tongue on the iniquities of the ripper in public about the same time the thing began to smell bad in Ohio. This was also nearly the exact time that he and Davis lost that brotherly feeling for each other. But it must be said that Judge Smith protested privately, then to Governor Davis and that under the regular rules of tight politics that is all a patriot was supposed to do prior to this year. By way of anomaly, it may be said that Senator John F. Burke, who led the original fight against the plot to make a scrap of paper of the constitution, has been silent, no doubt enjoying the situation hugely, probably so much as to be unable to do anything more than laugh.

From some of the entries they seem to have the notion that the Republican party is the proper place to formulate policies of government. Everybody, except Governor Davis and the four judges of the Ohio Supreme court, now being for the referendum, so far as they talk it, as the old Columbus politician said, is to have a referendum in the party. Or again it may be a fore-runner of a sort of regrouping of the elements that go to make up the party coalition, following the dissolution that took place with the Governor's retirement. For instance, there is young Senator Arthur M. Day, very very strong for the soldier's bonus, and C. L. Knight as bitterly opposed to it. They can have their corner to try out the popular sentiment. Again, there is C. Homer Durand, of Coshocton, out for Governor on a light wines and beer platform, with H. A. Mack in charge. And now there is a dare to James A. White of the anti-saloon league, who gets an invitation to come in and help refer the Volstead act. For one thing, Durand, if elected, will be a real wet and not of the kind in the election and a radical prohibitionist afterward. A bond can be written to that effect. It's a varied assortment. Among the major entrants or possible entrants it may be noted that in his speeches lately Judge Smith has slanted mighty friendly toward the League of Nations, while retaining an orthodox Republican while "Carmi's" slogan, "he kept us out of gas," referring to his work in the disarmament conference will make the ladies weep, his followers hope and expect. If he is not too busy fighting the hand-picked business charge to get into action, the people can have another referendum on the many issues that distract them from workday cares and make life worth living.

As for Governor Davis, he appears to have treated the many invitations to re-election like the fox treated the invitations of the lion to call upon him when he pretended to be ill. The fox as it will be recalled, received the invitation and then inspected the foot tracks about the mouth of the den with the greatest care and noted that all of them pointed toward the entrance and none pointed out from the entrance. That made an impression upon his mind and instead of calling in person to pay his respects he merely sent his card. Even at that, it is doubtful whether the bids to come in had any influence upon the situation. It is true that they have nettled Governor Davis and nettled him deeply as his statement upon retiring all too clearly demonstrated, but he had conducted his own survey of the situation and needed no bid from Durbin or from anyone else to know it. He penetrated to the truth thru the mass of cabinet fairy stories that were poured into his ears. He had been out in the bushes where a few folks not afraid to speak plainly and fearlessly to him. He had no heart to tempt fate and his mind was really made up many months ago even before he gave it out that he was not intending to go for the Senate. In retirement there will be few who will be inclined to disturb him and there are prayers that he will keep his promise to go upon the stump and defend his record, emergency clauses, ripper bill, Shattuck, Waite, Miller, Rutledge, Snow and all the other boys and girls.

If the scientists ever complete those machines for reading minds with unfailing accuracy, Hon. L. J. Taber, Hon. W. H. Phelps and other die-hards of the cabinet ought to be put under them just to see what they thought about the Governor's surrender and whether their facial expressions were indicative of their true feelings. The minority of the cabinet which did not care so much and a very small minority of the legislature which did not care at all, enjoyed the situation hugely. Whatever "arrangements" the Governor made for himself, either with "Carmi" or at Washington had nothing to do with them, it appears. In other words, they were not underwritten, not to the extent of a postage stamp. And that's what made it seem pretty hard for L. J. and W. H., especially L. J., who is regarded as being nearly the end of his string, so far as the rural organization groups are concerned. They never meet but what they adopt most unkind resolutions, the tenor of which the former Grange Master understands better than any other person in Ohio. Indeed, the singular nature of the withdrawal was a feature that was most widely observed. It seemed to be no reference to members of the General Assembly who had endorsed the Governor's program and placed their political lives in his hands. Some of them did not care, but those who live in doubtful districts felt quite differently. Like the children of Biblical times, they thought a certain party whose name they would rather not mention "did them dirty."

As for the terrific power that can be swung by state and national administrations behind any candidate named as heir to Davis by a little group, it appears to be largely a myth, but time alone will tell. Of course, the Democrats would like nothing better than a nomination by Harding and the sub-bosses and bosses. But it is another problem to deliver. Governor Davis will by no means be able to hand over all of his machine and the liability his support would be regarded by the long-headed as an entire offset. On the other hand, the way Congress kicks the administration program, and makes it doubtful what President Harding can do when it comes to dictating. They do no such reverence to mighty officers since Kaisers and Czars were booted around by the common folk. Folks who have kept cases since the Civil War like to recall that President Arthur selected his successor, Grover Cleveland, when he named a certain Colonel as the standard candidate for Governor of New York. Cleveland went in by 222,000, which is more than any Governor has had in all the years that New York has voted. If Governor Davis tries it, he will provoke trouble in his administration and he will scarcely be able to keep his pledge to attend to business, not politics, during the remaining nine months. Since his erstwhile opponent, A. V. Donahay, said he made good on his pledge of not being a candidate again if he failed to produce real economies, he might hope to keep a second pledge, his friends say.

Now that Governor Davis' moniker will not be on the primary ballot in the forthcoming August picking, it seems fitting that the name of Senator George H. Bender, of Cleveland, will be on it. Senator Bender, who with Senator J. F. Burke, of Lorain, fought the emergency clause of the ripper, became a convert to the referendum in the midst of the session. Like Burke he had proceeded but a little way down the long, long trail of repudiation of the constitution, "boot-legging legislation," as someone has called it, before he saw the precipice ahead and he turned aside into the path marked Constitution. For that and for other things, which included the fastening of the term, "peanut politician" on the Hon. Mr. Davis, the Hon. Mr. Bender was consigned to political penitence, was denied any share, portion or part of patronage, getting eventually nearly the same share as the other senators, and was even denied a handshake from His Excellency, said refusal making a great noise in the world of Ohio a few months ago. Now, if Bender will have that hand photographed, "the unshaken hand," as spurned by the "hand-shaking Governor," who knows but what, mixing metaphors, it may be a good platform to stand upon? There are other results, too, flowing from the refusal of Governor Davis to run, as pointed out by Sol Risenfeld, one of the men he fired and who succeeded in landing under dear old Harvey Smith. Sol observed that "now that Davis is not a candidate for re-nomination, the Democrats can either stay at home next August or vote in their own primary." And what bright little boy in the first row will tell us what he meant by that?

One may readily believe that the sacred fires of freedom and liberty blazed brightly in Harrison-co at Canandaigua on the Hill when the citizens met in mass meeting to protest against the attempt of President Harding and his trusted lieutenants, Maurice Maschke and Rufus Hunka, respectively, to respectably—of Cleveland and Cincinnati, to pick out "Carmi" as their candidate for Governor. Rud had not been trusted nor a lieutenant for so long, having only come into good grace in recent days. Of course, there will be critics who suggest that part of the protest was due to revulsion against dictation policies and politics, and part due to the fact that the politicians might do to Hon. Rupert Renssion, Beecham, lawmaker, lawyer, preacher, banker and gentleman and prospective candidate for Governor or nothing. Just like as not, one of the few Democrats over that way will now arise to chirp that it would be better with the young man if he had shrieked for freedom back in those legislative days of 1921. He wielded a wicked gavel, as the girls say, in putting thru the reorganization ripper, altho he did not vote for it, his vote not being needed. But he gave it his moral support and even handed a slap to the minority for putting a protest on the journal against it. Moreover, he expressed his opinion that there was no cause for alarm as to what would happen when the bill went before the Ohio Supreme court. But it's different now. Another ox is being gored and it comes from the farm of R. B. B.

Then there is Akron's prototype of Governor Davis, Hon. Charles Landon Knight, the one term Congressman, who as indicated did the Davis, i. e., that is to say he declined to run for a second term when he knew that there was no hope for him. He has blazed forth with the iniquities of the ripper act and the manner in which it was put over in defiance of the Constitution. Pretty late he was, certain folks say, in making the discovery. The opponents of the emergency clause waited thru long weary days for responses to their piteous call for help. Charles L. heard them not. He was at that time preparing to move upon Washington and he thought the party, like the King of France, could do no wrong. Antiquarians digging thru the files of his newspaper, can see that the able editor has been on both sides. One thing, tho, he is pretty keen on picking the prevailing side. But one wonders whether he could switch back if a foe of the referendum should ultimately win out and trample the sacred charter of 1912 under foot as ruthlessly as Governor Davis has done. The tumbles of Knight make it seem strange that the real champion of the referendum, Hon. John F. Burke, the senator from Lorain, is only a candidate for re-nomination and will have to fight it out with Henry R. Endry, of Richland, even for that. The wiggling and wobbling on this referendum, men, has been something terrible to behold, something terrible. Governor Davis said that after all that he had done the referendum was still alive and the record of recent days seems to bear out the diagnosis.

From under the wreck of the Davis administration the rescue parties have sprung. The most notable of these is the party of Judge Benson W. Hough and Representative Charles C. Crabbe, of Madison. Both are, it may be presumed in the absence of anything to the contrary, still running for Attorney General and for Supreme Court Judge. Hough's term on the wool-sack only lasts as long as does Governor Davis and if Hough is re-elected he can ride as far as politics. It was Judge Hough's vote that put it across for Davis in the court room. The "Big Four" came into being with his vote. As for Crabbe, he lifted a big load in the caucuses that decided upon putting thru the ripper. And mightily proud he was, too, of the exalted station it gave him in party affairs about the House. But it's different now. There is no Governor to uphold him and the Republican party is trying harder to forget the emergency laws than the Democrats tried to forget their free silver record a dozen years ago. So it is with Hough. Judge T. A. Jones told him the people would forget and what he thinks about Judge Jones' advice now is too terrible to be repeated to readers who persevere these lines while preparing for divine services. Sly E. E. Corn of old Lorain, has no record on the referendum. Mayhap he voted in the Attorney General's councils to defend it, but that doesn't show now, so Crabbe has no solace there. He was too crafty to appear in court, probably because they raise slicker politicians in the hill country where the scratching is tough, than they do in the valleys where golden crops come easily. Like the cabinet officers hereinbefore referred to, Crabbe is deserted. So is Hough. They might meet and indicate what they think of Davis, Jones, ripers and— But what's the use?

When the hand of death struck down William L. Finley of Kenton and Columbus, this week his party, the party of Jefferson, Jackson and Woodrow Wilson, lost a trusted adviser, an able strategist and an always loyal follower. He came to leadership by sheer force of character and not because he had bargained for the place, for he had not. As head of the organization he insisted upon the trenches having what was theirs, as he conceived it, and still he was no ruthless foe of civil service. Col. James W. Faulkner described him as a conservative radical and it is a good description. The things for which Finley stood are still the things people highly esteem, like the initiative and referendum, workmen's compensation, direct primaries and such. He wrote the first L. and R. plank in a Democratic platform, some two decades before it was finally made a part of the law. Had he been in his good health in 1921 he would have been leading the fight for its vindication and to avenge the despoliation. The last contest he conducted was in 1916, when Ohio swung the result to President Wilson. As a general he saw to it that the break in the opposition line in Ohio was heralded thruout the nation and it did wonders in turning the tide of battle. Had good health remained with him, Finley would one day have managed successfully a national campaign, but death cut him off before the full development of his potential powers.

They give the prize, a hand painted shaving mug, to a Columbus photographer for what might be called the competition in juxtaposition of photographs. This genius has turned his attention to state government and whether he is slyly poking fun at the capitol and judicial annex or whether he knew not what he did, will matter little. If he was joking then he is an artist, otherwise he may be set down as what the modern girls call a dumb-bell. But this is what he did: He hung a picture in group of the cabinet of Governor Davis in the center, flanked on either side by large photos of Chief Justice Carrington T. Marshall and Floyd E. Waite, now a private citizen of Cleveland, but late Director of Finance of the state of Ohio, with a nine months' interest in the state government soon to expire. For incongruity this man takes the sweepstakes. Governor Davis and Chief Justice Marshall have not spoken more than a passing and formal nod since the judge raised several kinds of disturbance with the ripper bill and the judge had about as much use for Mr. Waite as a Eibermien has for an English King, maybe even less. Perhaps the object of the queer art arrangement was to show that Marshall is knocking them off one by one, gradually driving them back to Cleveland, but maybe he also wanted to show the great variety of views offered by the official leaders of the Republican party, who knows?

Let the moralists of the sort whose devices trend toward the kill-joy type only elect their own mayors now and all will be well. Evil dances may be extirpated in Ohio and become as extinct as dinosaurs. The Ohio Supreme court has only lately proclaimed its solemn opinion that the act of the General Assembly prohibiting a public dance unless the mayor gives his written consent is valid and constitutional. And thus another "issue" is created in municipal elections. A candidate for mayor or a mayor-elect, if he or she wishes, run on the jazz or the bunny hug issue or be more conservative and stand on the old-fashioned "square" dances. Why the legislation is sound and good does not appear quite plain from what the court said, but as it has the last say, its rules and reasoning must be respected. It means there is a lot of trouble coming for many mayors, especially during this, the revival season, when sin is being driven from out of the bodies corporate and municipal, capable of suing and of being sued. Occasionally, of course, some unregenerate editor arises to ask independence with its phrases about the inalienable right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Under the statute which is pronounced better than old wheat in the mill or money that Governor Davis saved with his little upper the mayor may issue one license for one dance and refuse one for another, and he need not tell why in either case or adopt any general rules. In some towns which have caught the radio jazz habit it will be better to have the mayor control the single dance hall than to control the gas rate thru council. Soft? eh, what?

If one might pick out a job for himself what better could he ask than one of conducting the biennial losing fights for classification of property for taxation? Nine times in twenty years the old animal has been sent around the race track and never won a real heat. It did finish first a few times, but that was when the race had been called off prior to the meet at the ballot boxes in chilly November. And if the management does not get "hep" to itself on a few points, the fight will still be going on long after the present crop of John Chesters and Gus Kashes shall have moulded into dust and their distant descendants take up the

There is a keen suspicion that those who agitate would be much astonished and very miserable if the amendment actually carried. As stated, no one could wish anything any better than to have the job of collecting money to put it over. They begin a hopeless campaign and make it more hopeless, if that is possible, by their tactics. There, for instance, was Prof. Harley Lutz, of classic Oberlin, who supplemented a suggestion that the classification amendment be sugar-coated by saying that it ought to be "chocolate covered," too. Nice phrase but oh—! If the game is being queer-

VIVID STORY OF FAR EAST

Dr. Hubert Stirs Club Women With Recital of Facts

EXPOSES JAPANESE CUPIDITY

Former Korean Envoy Speaker at Luncheon Meet Here

At a luncheon of members of the Federated Women's clubs at the Barr hotel Saturday Morn. Dr. Hubert spoke on the Far East, where he spent 20 years in governmental work under the Emperor of Korea. Hubert paid a high tribute to the commercial honesty of the Chinese and showed the wide gulf that separates the Chinese and the Japanese in this and other respects.

He emphasized the importance of our securing and retaining a fair share of the trade of China and showed that this could be thwarted only by Japanese armed aggression, which has already succeeded in ousting us from the trade of Manchuria and Shantung and every other part of Asia which she dominates by the sword.

ISOTHERMAL DEVELOPMENT

Hubert said that Japan's present dilemma is fundamentally this: That her empire extends north and south instead of east and west, and the Japanese will go neither north nor south, where there is plenty of room for their expansion in Yezo and Formosa. They prefer isothermal development and therefore like Hawaii, California and China. Unable to compete with Chinese or Koreans on an equal basis, Japan seizes their territory and then kills competition. Hubert made known the contents of a memorandum sent to this country by an eminent Bishop of the Methodist church which describes many acts of the utmost cruelty and brutality on the part of the Japanese in that province. Thousands were seized and tortured until they paid huge sums of money. The fishermen were all driven out. Thousands of farms were seized. All mines, factories and other economic values were confiscated. Even the Standard Oil company and every other American enterprise was dislodged. Hubert believed that for Japan to give back the sovereignty of Shantung without returning all these plundered goods would be a big joke.

He does not think that Americans are being properly protected in their legal rights either in China or Korea. He urges the expression of an opinion on this subject by all who know about the status of American interests in China and the Far East.

KOREA VICTIM OF JAPAN

Hubert spoke feelingly of the wrongs of the Korean people and of the part which America played in the subjugation of that people's liberties. He thinks that there will be no lasting peace in the Far East so long as Japan continues to hold a single foot of soil on the mainland of Asia.

"She has aroused a hatred so deep and lasting that it is beyond American comprehension," he said. "China has lasted five thousand years because she made friends of all her neighbors and she will last another five thousand. Japan has singled herself out with hatred and ill-will. Rome will fall a victim to the results of her own cupidity and cruelty unless the liberal element in Japan, which is numerous but voiceless, shall assert itself to the overthrow of the narrow military autocracy. The future belongs to China and her friendship is a thing which the American must not lose, whatever else they let go."

Will Attend Biennial Convention At Hot Springs, Arkansas

COMMITTEE PLANS FOR WEEK

Activities of Local Organization Are Outlined

Mrs. I. E. Longworth and Mrs. H. M. Crawford, members of the local Y. W. C. A. board; Miss Florence Dorsey, of the industrial committee, and Miss Ruth Seymour, general secretary, will represent the local Young Women's Christian Association at the seventh national biennial convention at Hot Springs, Ark., April 20 to 27.

According to Miss Seymour there is a great deal of interest among the Lima membership because of the international trend of the program. Noted speakers are to be brought to Lima to interpret their respective countries.

SPEAKERS FROM ABROAD

Prominent among the foreign speakers who will address the convention are Mrs. A. Maud Royden, England's most noted authority on women and the world's best known woman preacher; Mademoiselle Elaine Goblet d'Alviella, of Belgium, a poet, writer and speaker; Miss Anne Lamb, of Calcutta, an Anglo-Indian now in America after a trip around the world, and Miss Gertrude Niven, of London, general secretary of the world's committee.

There is probability of a notable delegation from South America and the student assembly, which is one of the sectional groups of the convention. There will be native Chinese and Japanese delegates.

Judge Florence Allen, of Cleveland, the first woman judge in the United States to attain the bench in a court of general jurisdiction in civil and criminal cases, will be one of the distinguished Americans on the program.

Mrs. Robert E. Snier, president of the national board, will give a summary of the work accomplished in the past two years.

"Facing the Present" is the subject of Miss Mabel Cratty's address. Miss Cratty is general secretary of the national board. Mrs. Frederic MacKey Paist, of Philadelphia, president of the convention, will preside until her successor is elected. Over 1500 delegates are expected.

COMMITTEES TO MEET
The following committees will meet at the "Y. W." this week: Finance committee, of which Mrs. I. E. Longworth is chairman, Monday at 2:30 p. m.; educational committee with Mrs. E. C. Abrams, as acting chairman, Tuesday at 6 p. m.; membership committee, with Mrs. H. M. Crawford as chairman, Wednesday at 7 p. m.

A special council meeting of all the clubs will be held Monday at 5:30 p. m.

Tuesday at 6 p. m. the members of the F. O. P. club will meet for their dinner meeting. The "Kitchen Cabinet" orchestra will practice with Miss Mae Duffley as director.

I shall deal separately with asparagus because here is a plant that is, all too frequently, left off the lists of plants for the back yard garden.

Now there are few if any more delicious vegetables than this, and yet people who buy it on the market seldom get the best—also they pay a good price for it. Once successfully started asparagus continues to produce for many years to come, and can be depended upon upon for a daily supply for two months or more each season.

Anyone with a square rod of ground space, almost any place beneath the sun, can grow asparagus. But these points should be kept in mind.

Thoroughly fertilize the allotted space. Spade deeply and fertilize again. Continue to spade until the soil becomes rich, deep and fine. The bed should be raised a little above the paths. Put the young plants about four inches below the surface and 18 inches apart. Do not cut the stalks the first season if you would have good results for 50 years to come.

SPELLACY TEST WELL IN NEW FIELD IS BELIEVED GOOD FOR 30 BARRELS

That a well good for 20 to 30 barrels daily, has been brought in on the Spellacy Realty company lease north of Lima, is believed by oil men who witnessed the shooting of the well.

Water under the oil was encountered, and is giving trouble, according to K. S. Spellacy. When it is shut out, it is the opinion of operators that the well can be pumped successfully.

The test indicates presence of oil underneath the entire tract of the city and promises to be the start of considerable development by the Spellacy and Eagan interests, lessees of the tract.

BAR TO GERMAN GOODS AIMED

Tariff Bill Expected to Shut off Dumping

GOES TO SENATE APRIL 1

Many Teuton Products Now Coming in at Low Prices

By CARL D. GROAT

WASHINGTON.—German "dumping" of goods, often fantastically low in price, will be stemmed by the tariff bill expected to be reported from the Senate finance committee April 1, or soon thereafter.

An authoritative outline of the tariff situation, obtained by the United Press, shows that the bill will shut the gates on a big tide of cotton goods, limited warlike machinery, tools, socks and stockings, paper products and paper, toys, woolen and cotton fabrics now rolling into this country, despite the barriers erected in the emergency tariff bill last spring. The cheapness of production in Germany at this time—the mark stands at 250 to the dollar and labor earns about $3 to $5 a day—is responsible for a heavy dumping process.

But under the valuation plan adopted by the finance committee, it is held that German goods will cost here about the same as home products. "And, other things being equal, Americans will prefer their own products," said the tariff spokesman.

CALCULATION BASIS
The committee calculations use gold standards. In other words, the German mark price, the Danish ore rate, or the English pound figure is taken and converted into American dollars. The tariff rates are based accordingly.

To take a concrete example; a 100 piece plain China dinner set made in Germany figures out at the present exchange at $7.30. In this case, a comparison can be made with the American market price and an ad valorem (according to value) rate of 60 per cent is applied. The Chinese ware then costs $11.62 at port. The American product costs $11.56 to make, and the wholesale selling price is $17. Hence the German and the American start at about an equal footing.

Most of the rates—about 80 per cent—are based on the specific tariff plan. This means a flat amount added to various goods. For instance, cotton gloves costing in Germany about $8 a dozen will be taxed about $3, varying with the length of the gloves.

PROTECTIVE FEATURES
The present bill, differing in its method of valuation but arriving at virtually the same effects, will run perhaps five per cent higher than the Payne-Aldrich tariff, it was stated. The committee is striving to reach adequate valuations, especially in view of official statements that the government loses millions of dollars yearly thru undervaluation.

The committee has borne in mind protection for American industry and American labor in this connection. It has figured that one ounce of gold buys 17-1/2 hours of American labor and more than 200 hours of German, under the present depreciated exchange of Germany.

On this calculation, it is held that the tariff barrier is the only effective means of getting the goods of the two countries on anything like a competing basis.

At one time Germany was able to sell iron and steel goods in New York in competition with American products, the west of seaboard this was impossible because of freight charges added. Pittsburgh hence has the edge, and will continue to remain predominant in the home market thru the protection granted by this bill, it is held.

CINCINNATI REDS HAVE NO HOPES FOR 1922 PENNANT

MINERAL WELLS, Tex.—Pat Moran, this year, is attempting to get back in the National League pennant race with a bunch of new ball players and a few of his old ones sprinkled in. At this date it is impossible to foretell what success the Cincinnati skipper will enjoy. He has an outside chance.

Pat Moran, always optimistic, is exceedingly proud of his crop of young players and has rather high hopes for his team. However, he is making no predictions as to where his club will finish.

Pennant ideas are not buzzing in his head nor in the heads of his players. Moran has simply tried to impress on his players that he wants every one to give him his best efforts and that he will be satisfied with the results.

Right off the reel Moran is forced to build his new team without counting on the punch of his club, Eddie Roush. The National League's best outfielder is having his annual salary argument with the club officials. He wants considerably more money than Garry Herrmann believes he is worth.

If Roush reports he will be warmly welcomed by Moran. However, the Cincinnati leader is not figuring on Eddie. Incidentally if the salary difference is patched up, it is questionable if Roush will be in condition to start the season in his best form. Whether or not Roush reports, the Reds will start the season with a mighty good outfield. The trade which brought George Burns from the New York Giants in exchange for Heine Groh has made it possible.

GEORGE BURNS AND EIGHT SONS OF CINCY

The Reds will open the season with Pat Duncan in left, George Burns in center and Neale in right. In addition Moran has two promising youngsters in George Harper and Ed Hock.

Harper, who was bought from the Oklahoma City club for a fancy price, has a great chance of breaking into the Cincinnati outfield.

He contracted pneumonia shortly after the training season started, which has held him back. Harper is not a kid, having tarried with the Detroit club for several years.

Moran is perfectly satisfied with his catching staff of Wingo and Hargrave.

The Cincinnati leader figures his catching staff up to major league standard. Despite the absence of Roush he is satisfied with his outfield.

Moran's problem is his infield and pitching.

Will Jimmy Caveney be able to fill the bill at short? Will Babe Pinelli deliver at third?

Cincinnati's chances in a measure hinge on Caveney and Pinelli. On spring form the odds are in favor of them coming thru.

Pitching is Moran's other worry. He has two worth-while veterans in Eppa Rixey and Adolfo Luque. Pete Donohue, the Texas collegian, seems capable of taking his regular turn. John Scott, secured from Boston, is his other hope to complete the quartet.

Baseball Loop Among Lodges Is Proposed

STEPS which practically amount to a decision have been taken to restrict the membership in the business men's baseball league which will be formed in Lima this season, and it is believed only the dinner clubs will be invited to get in.

For that reason another league to include lodges only is being proposed, and a loop composed of the Moose, Knights of Columbus, Elks and one or two other fraternal orders is being boomed in lodge circles.

According to promoters for the business men's circuit, they are thinking of restricting the membership to the three dinner clubs, Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions. Last year these clubs and the Elks constituted the loop and the promoters claim the presence of the latter lent it too much professionalism, because, with its large membership, a line of high class ability could be picked. They are seeking to eliminate professionalism.

PLAN FOUR-CLUB LEAGUE

Harry Walthers, secretary of the Moose lodge, said he is considering the possibilities of a lodge league and will carry the matter to Dictator R. R. Trubey.

Gans will fight Indian Horner in the semi-windup of the Lima Gym card here April 7.

MAIMED FIST NO HANDICAP

One of the queerest figures in Lima ring history will be seen on the Lima Gym card here April 7. He is Joe Gans, New Orleans, who sometimes sails under the front handle of "Young," and more often "Panama," who fights Indian Horner.

The fingers of his left hand were as putated, but the stubs are wicked weapons in the ring. The maimed fist is as hard as flint, and, backed by a set of muscles like steel, Gans shoots it out like the proverbial cat-a-pult.

WON OVER 100 FIGHTS

His string of more than 100 fights since his entry in the game in 1911 are mostly all wins, and it can readily be seen that he is eminently fitted for the colored lightweight crown.

He plucked the halo from Leo Johnson's head in 1916 in a 12-round fight. Johnson is one of the best colored fighters in the country. Gans fought him again in 1921 in Kansas City, and held him to a draw in ten frames.

FOUGHT IN MANY RINGS

Gans has toured the country and fought in every section of it, but his stamping grounds were mainly Kansas City, St. Louis and cities in Tennessee and New Jersey.

Boxing critics say it should be one of the best fistful dishes served up to Lima fandom this season. Gans fights Young Dennis of Toledo in Springfield March 31, and the outcome is eagerly awaited here.

Frank Crane says "1921 will be known as the year when Mark Sabra was born." Mark Sabra is the hero of Hutchinson's great novel, "If Winter Comes." The first installment appears in The Lima News Monday, March 27.

Rounds Of 81 Made By Women Golfers

PINEHURST, N. C.—Miss Glenna Collett, sensational Providence girl, and Mrs. M. Johnson Scammell, Uniontown, made remarkable rounds of 81 in the first round of match play in the women's north and south golf championships here today.

Miss Collett defeated Mrs. Harold E. Forman, Chicago, eight and seven and went around in 39-42-81. On the way out she made a fine three on the eighth hole and a wonderful two on the ninth.

Mrs. Scammell eliminated Miss Louise Fordyce, Youngstown, eight and seven.

YOUNG DRAWS WITH MAYNE

KOKOMO, IND. — (Special) — "Red" Young, Lima boxer, fought a draw here tonight in the main attraction of a fast card with "Tough" Mayne, Toledo. Young won the first three rounds and the eighth. Mayne took the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh.

Mayne's right eye was completely closed at the end of the third round and his left optic was badly swollen. He managed to box and keep away from Young's punches and put up a game fight.

Two fast eight-round bouts preceded the main go. Battling Jeakie fought a draw with Pat Moran, Kokomo, in the semi-finals. Maxie Epatine, Indianapolis, shaded Nicky O'Brien, Cambridge, O.

A thrilling story and a work of literary art, "If Winter Comes" by A. S. M. Hutchinson. First installment in The Lima News, Monday, March 27.

Training Is Started By Local Mitt Artists

INDIAN HORNER, who is slated for a ten-round mill with Panama Joe Gans, the colored champ, who hails from the land of cotton and sunshine, on April 7, will begin a strenuous training session at the Lima Gym today at 4 p. m.

He was on three cards last week, proving the demand for him. He will be on the main attraction at Ashland March 31. Al Zill, brother of the famous Tony, and manager of Gans, says Panama is ready to bust into Horner.

Jake Gross is working out almost daily for his bout with Willie Devore of Akron in the main mixup of the Lima Gym card. The possibilities concerning him leaving the ring because of conditions brought on by the death of his father seemingly have evaporated. His manager, Earl Smith, is non-committal in the matter.

SPECK HAS NEW STUFF

Speck Kessler, Delphos wrestler-boxer, will ship over here shortly with an entire new bagful of tricks for the benefit of Red Young, with whom he has an engagement for a tete-a-tete in eight stanzas.

Jack Holland, whom Charley Maxwell says carries himself like a Benny Leonard, is a boy who will be carefully watched on the card. He is down to fight Jack Verbyke, another promising youngster.

The club announces the Silver City quartette will dispense sweet strains while the fans are not occupied with the boxers.

Gomer Cagers Bury Hatchet With Record of 22 Wins and 3 Defeats

While other teams were crowing over their records for the season, Gomer's stellar aggregation of basket tossers, winners of the Northwestern Ohio tournament of Defiance for two successive seasons, has been content with hiding its light under a bushel, but the coach, C. G. Lappin, has been prevailed upon to recount the team's exploits, and he tells a remarkable story of success.

Gomer High school ploughed thru 22 teams this season and dropped only three contests, for a percentage of 85.0. The team's performance is unequalled by any other Allen-co High school five. The nucleus of this year's team is the basis for another five next season which is expected to repeat the performance.

The only teams to topple them were Vaughnsville, Lima Central and Ney. Following is the complete record:

SPEAKER WILL BRING 40 MEN

CLEVELAND — When the Cleveland Indians break training camp at Dallas March 31 everyone of the 40 players will be brought north by Manager Tris Speaker, according to notices received here. His will be the largest squad to leave camp in Cleveland uniforms.

This does not mean that Manager Speaker intends to keep all of the players. He has numerous games scheduled on the northward jaunt, which necessitates splitting the squad into two divisions. There are sixteen pitchers, four catchers, ten outfielders and seven infielders on the roster.

Present plans, it is understood, all for the assignment of two catchers and five infielders to each division, while one team, probably the regulars, will carry four outfielders and the other three.

JOHN'S CLEAN-UP MAN

McNis, Vambasgans, Sewell and another will compose the infield of regulars. Indications are that this is the infield which will start the season, and if Manager Speaker's hunch in his practice games means anything, McNis will bat in the cleanup position. Since joining the team, the former Philadelphia and Boston American League teams' star first baseman has hit in this position.

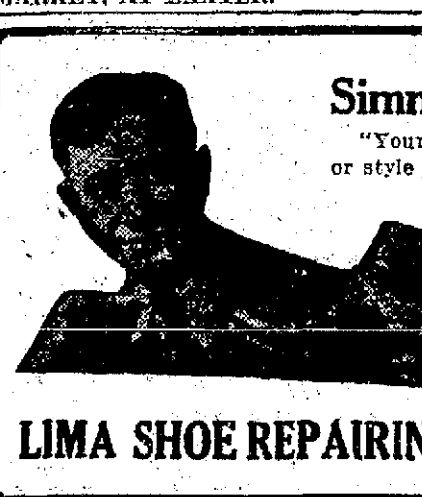

The regulars' catchers more than tally will be O'Neill and Nunemak. Except for Speaker and Jamieson, the outfielders during the exhibition games have not been decided on. Speaker and Jamieson and obably Graney and Evans will be the regulars' gardens. Joe Wood to manage the second team. The regular outfielders available are Earnest Joannes, and Patrick McNulty.

INNIGAN LINEUP

The Yannigan infield will be composed of Gulisto, at first base; Hammond at second; Sorrels at shortstop; and Stephenson at third. Other infielders are Yuma and Benedict, and indications are one will be with each team. Shinnault and Luke Sewell are probable catchers.

It is undecided how the pitchers will be divided.

PREST-O-LITE DROP, FINDING POPULAR FAVOR

The reduction just announced by the Prest-O-Lite company makes the present selling price of Prest-O-Lite batteries considerably lower than prices which prevailed before the war.

The reduction covers all types and the savings in dollars and cents is welcomed by all battery users.

Undoubtedly the most important feature of this Prest-O-Lite reduction is the extent to which it has been carried. C. L. Terry, the local Prest-O-Lite distributor.

"The fact that the cut was not made upon special types and discontinued types is significant of its permanency. One light car model which in 1917 had a standard list price of $27.85 appears in the new Prest-O-Lite scale of prices at the 'trade-in' price of $19.99. The new prices set in this pronounced reduction are such as have not been seen in years. I would unhesitatingly say that the main reason for this latest reduction in Prest-O-Lite prices is because of the tremendous volume of these batteries which are being sold throughout the United States. Beyond this price reduction is the service which Prest-O-Lite users have uniformly obtained because of the rigid inspection and re-inspection at the factory of Prest-O-Lite batteries before they are put to work."

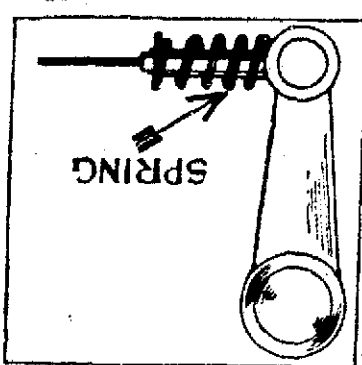

FRANKLIN-FOUR FACTORY WILL BE AT SYRACUSE

SYRACUSE — H. H. Franklin, president of the Franklin Automobile Company, announced that the plant in which the new Franklin Four will be manufactured will be located in Syracuse. Efforts had been made to persuade the Franklin Company to purchase available factories in fifteen other cities.

Mr. Franklin announced that eventually the company will produce 100 four-cylinder cars a day to sell in the $1,000 class. Running at full time, the proposed plant will employ about 5,000 men. The payroll will aggregate $10,000,000 annually.

The new machine will be placed on the market April 1 next year.

BRAKE ROD SILENCER

A simple way to stop the brake rod from rattling is to slip a fairly stiff coil spring over the clevis, as shown. One end of the spring presses against the lever arm, while the other is held back by the lock nut on the brake rod. This takes up the lost motion on the brake rod.

GET TIRES READY FOR TRAVEL

Some Hints for Motorists That May Prove Valuable

The time is at hand when car owners begin to give their cars a thorough overhauling in preparation for summer use. The attention required for tires in this spring renovation is very limited and simple.

One of the first and most important points, say a bulletin of the United States Tire Company, is to get the front wheels into proper alignment. Bad alignment is one of the principal causes of tire injury.

The first symptom of mis-alignment is rapid wear in the center of the tread. Examination of the alignment should include an investigation to see that there are no loose bearings, for a loose bearing means a wobbly wheel.

Examine the casings of tires for cuts. If cuts are filled with heat-cured dough the cuts will not grow bigger.

Tubes should receive special attention, for once they have been placed inside the casings they are forgotten. Test the tubes for slow leaks. Put new plungers in the valves even if the old ones appear satisfactory. The rubber washers in the plungers become stiff and hard after a time and it is good policy to change them at least once a year.

The pump should be tested, especially the rubber tubing and the connections. If the leather piston head in your hand pump has dried up it may be softened up by a liberal application of vasoline. If it is gone beyond help you can get a new leather at a supply store.

The same advice as to inspection of connections applies in the case of a mechanical pump attached to the engine. See that the pump is well oiled, especially in the cylinder, but avoid excess oil as it may find its way into the inner tube.

When these few things have been done and the motorist has equipped his car with a cold patch kit for punctures, a blow-out patch for emergency use, a can of soap stone, a roll of tape for tire or ignition trouble, a tire gauge for testing inflation, and a good spare he is in a position to feel thoroughly content as regards his tire equipment, no matter what happens.

Don't fill the oil reservoir above the proper level.

HOW FAR SHOULD YOUR TIRE DOLLAR TRAVEL?

"I like to ask my prospective customers how far their tire dollars travel," says Henry Ewing, local Dayton Tire Dealer. "That, to my mind, is the real measure of service. A man that spends many dollars in a tire. In other words, he is putting so many dollars onto the rim of his wheel and his satisfaction is going to be determined by how far those dollars travel."

"I ask the people who use Dayton Tires to measure their service by the dollar scale. I ask them to divide the total mileage secured by the Dayton Tire by the number of dollars that tire cost, so they will know just how far every one of their tire dollars is traveling. That, after all, is the real test of tire service, and when all motorists insist on making that test with their tires I know that all tire manufacturers will be forced to give the most they can for the money."

"Of course there's the added value in a good tire of getting more miles out of it, but the assurance that the owner will have very little tire trouble while the mileage is being delivered."

Studebaker Merit Wins

Studebaker is a specialist. Builds nothing but Sixes. Its efforts are not scattered. Its entire resources, unsurpassed in the automobile industry, are devoted to a single, fixed purpose:

—to build well, by using the finest materials, and most skillful workmanship and to sell at the lowest prices possible.

How well Studebaker has succeeded is best answered by the records. In the calendar year of 1921, Studebaker produced and sold more six cylinder cars than any other manufacturer in the world.

From present indications the sales record of Studebaker cars in 1922 will greatly exceed 1921. Reports from Studebaker dealers from all parts of the country show a big increase in sales this year over the same period of 1921. Shipments of cars from the Studebaker factories this year are 106 per cent more (at the time this ad was written) than for the same period of 1921.

That's proof that merit wins. Buyers will not be fooled by wild misrepresentations. Motor cars are now being bought on the basis of merit.

The intrinsic value of today's Studebaker cars surpasses pre-war values. Never before have we given so much positive value for the money.

Instead of skimping the real value in order to reduce the cost, low prices of Studebaker cars are due to strict economy, skillful purchase of materials, a high degree of plant efficiency and well-known, continuous large volume.

Each Studebaker model is hundreds of dollars lower in price than cars of comparable quality.

Buick First Again In Yellowstone Park!

Each year since Yellowstone Park was opened to automobile travel by the U. S. Government, more Buicks have made this difficult trip than any other car excepting Ford.

The figures for 1921, just announced, show 1871 Buicks passed through the Park during that season, 412 more than any other make.

The Yellowstone Park tour calls for every ounce of car performance—miles away from service for days at a time—the car must never fail. And that is why each year an increasing number of Park tourists depend on Buick.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

MOTORISTS SEEK TO STANDARDIZE RULES AND SIGNS

May Organize International Protective Council—After H. H. Franklin as Leader

SYRACUSE, N. Y. — A recent newspaper statement by H. H. Franklin, president of the Franklin Company, on the appalling number of accidents caused by reckless driving of automobiles, brought a response from many parts of the country, indicating that a large number of people had given this situation some consideration.

Solon C. Thayer, architect, of Rochester, Pa., wrote to Mr. Franklin, proposing an organization to be known as the International Automobile Protective Council, which will have for its principal object the elimination of all automobile accidents thru securing uniform national, state and municipal laws, a complete plan of organization with constitution, by-laws, etc.

The objects of the organization, as outlined by its founder in his communication to Mr. Franklin, are as follows:—

To promote uniformity of laws, rules, regulations, signs and signals throughout the United States and Canada.

To eliminate all avoidable accidents by securing uniform national, state and municipal laws and the strict enforcement of the same.

To regulate the grant of licenses to unskilled and careless auto vehicle owners and drivers.

To encourage honesty and permanence in road construction and the repairing of roads; also, the maintenance of good detours.

To seek the elimination of all steam and electric railroad grade crossings.

To secure honest and fair treatment at the hands of the proprietors of supply houses, garages, hotels, restaurants, wayside inns and camping grounds.

To establish quick and ready communication between supply houses, garages, hotels and police stations for the more perfect protection against theft and burglary.

To establish a system of prompt and efficient relief to Council members in case of accident on the road and away from home.

To establish training schools in each county, where novices or others desiring information in reference to handling the automobile or other motor vehicle can go and, at a nominal price, obtain all necessary information in regard to handling the machine and familiarize him or herself with the laws, rules and regulations governing the same.

Lastly — To do all things tending to make the motor vehicle a more safe, profitable, convenient and enjoyable instrument, and to work in harmony with all other motor clubs or organizations to the one common end.

BUSINESS AWAKENING STIRS MOTOR PLANTS

Buick's Chief Executive Cites Real Facts on Normalcy Approach; Farmers are Buying Cars

By H. Y. WATSON

DETROIT — For 18 months past and more, chief executives of the automobile trade have been praying and preaching optimism in the steadfast hope that, soon or late, the clouds of depression would lift and disclose a silver lining. At last, if country-wide reports can be relied upon, the prospect is coming true. It is more than the "brightening outlook" in which the business seers have taken consolation during the dark days. Practically every factory turning out an automotive product of established merit is feeling a new stimulus based on real demand and the result is increased output of cars for delivery with factory schedules describing an upward curve for April, May and June.

During the past week, reports of better business have been positive and insistent. Typical of the general feeling is an interview given out last week by H. H. Bassett, president and general manager of the Buick Motor Company, prior to his departure on a trip to the Pacific coast. Mr. Bassett has just completed a traveling itinerary which took him thru the southern, mid-western and east-central states.

"I have been firmly impressed," asserts the Buick chief, "by the generally improved business conditions and the increased optimism on the part of our dealers everywhere — an optimism, by the way, which has been more marked during the past two months. In every section there has been a sound fundamental reason for this. In many cases it is the improvement in the market value of wheat, corn, oats, cotton, hog, wool or the various products that are vitally important to the sections in which they are grown. For instance, fifty-cent corn and $10 hogs in Iowa mean an additional $40,000,000 to the State, which represents a greatly increased buying power over anything in the past eighteen months.

"One of the most important indications of a resumption of normal conditions in business is the increased buying of freight cars. In January and February the railroads of this country purchased 22,000 new freight cars, while in all of 1921 the number was but 30,000. A railroad, by the way, is a wonderful barometer of general business conditions.

"Farmers are starting to purchase automobiles. The public, in general, is realizing there will be no more vertical price drops, for retail prices for cars have remained relatively firm for the past sixty days.

"The used car problem has about solved itself. Six months ago it constituted a troublesome situation, due to the fact that many dealers were inclined to allow such a long price in trade that their profits were practically wiped out. As a result, thousands of dealers all over the country went broke. The situation today is that dealers have taken their loss as of January 1, and in general are starting 1922 in a sensible business-like manner.

STUDEBAKER OFFICIALS SPEND WEEK IN LIMA

Mr. J. W. Neely and Lee A. Cason, officials of the Studebaker Corporation of America, were in Lima all the past week and report that both their Detroit and South Bend plants are working to capacity now, producing over four hundred cars per day, six days a week. The sale of Studebaker cars is greater than at any time in their history. The business of the Hawisher Motor Car Co., Studebaker distributors here, has been tripled in the last few weeks.

WHIST TROUBLE METER

A small meter to detect battery, starter and ignition failure is made to be attached to the wrist, so as to leave both hands free in searching for the source of trouble. It includes a small ammeter and a buzzer to give audible indications in making certain tests.

Country clubs for motorists are being organized in England. Chauffeurs in Missouri must show two photographs of themselves with their driver's application.

APPERSON MAKES SPEED RECORD

Endurance and Speed Run Shows Great Record For This Car

Nineteen hundred and twenty-eight miles in 24 hours of continuous running—that is the new endurance record established by an Apperson special.

This is official and the record has been allowed by the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association under whose supervision the test was held on the Beverly Hills Track in California.

At the same time, new official intermediate records for 12 hours of 1092 miles and for 18 hours of 1497 miles, were set.

In establishing these new hour records, the Apperson special also succeeded in making new non-competitive records for 1000, 1500, and 2000 miles, so that in all, six new records were set by the Apperson and have been allowed as official by the A. A. A.

After reaching the new mark of 1928 miles the Apperson special continued on for another 53 minutes and 10 seconds to reach the 2000 miles point and thus establish a new record for that distance.

Up to the end of 21 hours, Charles Basile and Douglas Phillips who had alternated at the wheel, had maintained an average speed of better than 83 miles per hour, and in spite of the four stops near the end of the test, the average was better than 80 miles per hour for the entire 24 hours.

Observers report that the car was running as smoothly at the end of the 2000 miles as it was at the beginning.

On some of the final laps the car was speeded up and turned the mile and a quarter oval in 51 seconds, or at the rate of 88.2 miles per hour.

Totaling the speed tests and try-outs of this Apperson special it has done approximately 10,000 miles at better than 80 miles per hour.

This record of 10,000 miles at such high speeds is much more remarkable as a record of endurance than any one of the single records allowed, and the fact that the car ran 24 hours without a tire change or mechanical adjustment to another performance record that has not been equaled.

NEW FARM EQUIPMENT NEEDED ON MANY FARMS

Due to conditions which developed during the late war and the readjustment period which is following, a most interesting situation has developed regarding farm operating equipment," says Forrest R. Woolley, manager of the Fordson Tractor and Power Farming Department of the Tirmmerman Motor Sales Co., authorized FORD and FORDSON dealer in Lima and territory in interview with The Lima News yesterday.

FIGURES FOR YEAR 1921 SHOW BUICK PREFERENCE

More Buick cars are owned by members of the Detroit Automobile Club, Detroit's representative car owners' organization, than any other make of car excepting Ford.

Detroit knows Automobiles — the world accepts that fact — and it's keen discrimination for Buick is another and authoritative recognition of the Buick cars' universal appeal.

The figures for 1921, just announced, show 1871 Buicks passed thru the Yellowstone Park during that season, 412 more than any other make excepting Ford.

The Yellowstone Park tour calls for every ounce of car performance — miles away from service for days at a time — the car must never fail. And that is why each year an increasing number of Park tourists depend on Buick.

NEEDED ON MANY FARMS

It is admitted by those in position to know that during the war the farmers' purchases of farm implements were not up to normal and it is well known that the purchasing in this field has been away below normal since the close of the war. This means that the farmer has been repairing and making his machinery last as long as possible. The day is coming, in many cases already here, when this equipment will be worn out.

"Almost as it timed to meet this situation motor farming equipment is now available at prices which the farmer can afford to pay. For the first time in agricultural history a farmer can buy a good tractor for the price of a good team of horses and a set of harness. In addition to this the equipment necessary to go with this tractor can be bought at the lowest prices ever made on tractor tools and in many cases less than similar horse-drawn equipment cost.

"These two events, the general wearing out of the equipment the farmer now has and the lowest prices ever named on reliable motor farming equipment, coming together present an opportunity for the farmer. He can sell two of three horses and equip his farm for more efficient operation. In many cases, for what he would be compelled to spend for new horse-drawn equipment. This is a situation worthy of the careful consideration of every farmer who is planning to reduce his operating costs."

Yes, $19.90 for a Battery with the famous PREST-O-PLATES

It is a top-quality battery, too, no special model. Better than those "just as good" boxes.

A real Prest-O-Lite, built around the famous Prest-O-Plates. The plates of unusual hardness, combined with peculiar porosity. The plates with ready power in winter and great, heat-resisting, non-buckling strength in summer.

The $19.90 price is our trade-in price for a 6-volt battery for popular makes of light cars. We have correspondingly low prices for Prest-O-Lite Batteries for other types of cars.

Prest-O-Lite Batteries are specified as original equipment by 87 leading manufacturers, and backed by the regular Prest-O-Lite guaranty, a generous, definite obligation, plus a spirit that says the car owner must be pleased.

How is your battery working anyhow? If its pulse is low, if it lacks vitality, come around, no matter what make it is, and let our battery specialists prescribe the right tonic. We never tell you your battery is through until it is. It is our job to prolong the life of any good battery. Drive around today.

RICHES BRING TROUBLES

Husband and Wife Authors Agree on Subject.

By EDWARD M. THIERRY
NEW YORK.—(Special)—This is a double-barreled interview. The two parties of the first part are husband and wife, Charles G. Norris and Katharine Norris, both novelists, who write very successful books about love, romance, marriage and divorce. The party of the second part is the inquisitive interviewer, who starts the conversation: "INQUISITIVE INTERVIEWER:—How can you be happy the married?"

MRS. NORRIS:—"Do you mean the people in my books or Mr. Norris books?"

MR. NORRIS:—"Or do you mean ourselves?"

I. I.—"Both. All your book people and yourselves."

MR. N.—"The secret of success in marriage is to the struggle for it. It isn't an accident or gift. Both have to build it up."

MRS. N.—"Yes, by pulling together. And it's easier if they're not rich. There are so many things that pull apart the rich couple. Lack of these things and the sacrifices each makes toward the other's happiness, keep the poor couple happier."

I. I.—(Apologetically)—"Aren't you rich? Both? There's your big prize ranch in California, and your double-barreled book royalties?"

MRS. N. (smiling)—"Yes, but we'd be just as happy if we lost it all and had to begin again. I wouldn't mind. Would you, C. G.?"

MR. N. (heartily)—"Not a bit. It was so many years ago that we were living in a walk-up apartment on 22nd street."

MRS. N.—"The worst thing a girl can do is to marry for money. I can't bear to see my heroines to a life of rich matrimony. Married people are happier if they have money, but when they are thrown together and made dependent upon each other's love and service."

(The heroine of Mrs. Norris' latest novel, "The Beloved Woman," turns down a millionaire for a poor but honest suitor.)

MR. N.—"Selfishness is the commonest cause of unhappiness. Men are more to blame than women. When the wife's to blame it is usually because she hasn't got enough to do."

(You may consider Mr. Norris an expert, too, for in his latest novel, "Brass," there are three unhappy marriages, only wrecked by hot tempers, one by the wife's riches, and one because the wife is cold.)

I. I.—"What's the remedy?"

MR. N.—"A national marriage law and a national divorce law. Make both more difficult—the same rules in every state. Persons who want to marry should get a health certificate and establish whether they have been married before; the man should have to prove he can support a wife; and there should be a six-months interval—with publicity—between the announcement of the intention to marry and the ceremony itself."

MRS. N.—"It's true. Then people wouldn't rush thoughtlessly into matrimony. And they'd choose more carefully if they knew they couldn't rid themselves of their mates so easily."

I. I.—"How about the federal divorce law?"

MR. N.—"Well, all divorce cases ought to be heard by juries composed of both men and women. Causes should be felony, insanity, drunkenness, non-support and desertion. And sometimes unfaithfulness—but only if it were so grossly cruel that it injured the position of the wife and the support of the children."

I. I.—"Don't you ever get jealous of each other's best seller?"

The Norrises, Charles and Katharine, both novelists, have been married for the last 25 years and have a couple of rich looking publishers.

MEN AND MATTERS

The Ewing Orchestra, an organization of six men, under the direction of Bernard Ewing 716 W. Spring-st., has been picked from a field of nine musical organizations, to afford music for the B. of R. T. dance in Bellefontaine, shortly after Easter. They won out in competition with orchestras from Cleveland, Cincinnati, Columbus, Dayton and Toledo, it is stated.

The Lima Fraternal band, a talented organization of colored musicians, is rehearsing twice each week, in preparation for the summer season. The band has been playing two seasons and is under the management of L. L. Miller. It is composed entirely of Lima musicians.

TOOTHLESS RACE SEEN BY WIRT

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—No more toothache, no more fear of the dentist, no more daily brush and tooth paste performance—all these things will disappear because there'll be no more teeth!

That's the opinion of Landis H. Wirt, orthodontist here.

Wirt says toothless remains show the race has long been losing its teeth and if the present issue of teeth is continued, we'll soon all be toothless.

Wirt means that food will be administered by means of needles or in small tablets or capsules.

Then there'll be no more juicy pie or savory steak, Wirt says.

LIMA MADE MOVIE IS WELL DONE

Proven in Private Showing at Lyric Theater Last Night.

Professional showing of "Along Came Jack," Lima's own movie, sponsored by El Karan Grotto No. 43 at the Lyric theatre revealed that all the moving picture talent isn't centered in Hollywood, California. Members of the cast surprised their friends with their display of dramatic ability.

The showing was made at 11 p. m. Saturday before members of the cast and newspapermen. The films are clean cut and the action smooth from start to finish. Reproduction of the football game is especially realistic. The picture compares favorably with professional offerings.

Judge Edmund Jackson, as Jack Swift, and Mrs. Ralph Austin, as Nellie French, are especially clever and Charles Hageman as the disappointed lover provides a lot of laughs.

A small bit splendidly done is J. W. Green, as the minister. Others in the cast whose work is prominent are Kennard Johnson and Mrs. Minor Keltner.

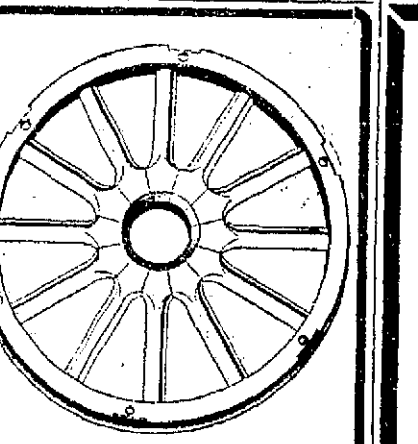

LODGE NOTICES
Lima Council No. 528, S. B. A., will meet in Eagle hall, Wednesday at 7 p. m. All officers and members are urged to be present. Members of the drill team are requested to report early. Following a short session of lodge, an old fashioned apron square dance will be enjoyed. Music will be furnished by a three-piece orchestra.

Marathon Guard of the Maccabees will hold a card party Tuesday evening in Morris Arcade for the pleasure of the Maccabees and their friends.

Ladies of the G. A. R. will meet in regular session Monday evening at Memorial hall. All members are urged to be present.

LIQUOR QUESTION BECOMES ISSUE

Ohio G. O. P. Candidates in Controversy Over Matter

FORCED TO FRONT BY DURAND

Coshocton Man Favors Modification of Dry Law

COLUMBUS.—(United Press)—The question of beer and light wines had become a political issue in Ohio Saturday night.

Potential Republican candidates for the gubernatorial nomination were in controversy over whether the prohibition question should again become the paramount issue of the state campaign.

Many politicians predicted elections as an important platform plank, if given recognition in Ohio.

The formal announcement of C. Homer Durand, of Coshocton, Saturday night for the Republican nomination as governor on a platform advocating beer and wine, forced the question on the attention of other prospective candidates.

Durand in his formal announcement of candidacy declared there was a growing public sentiment for modification of the Volstead act and the Miller state prohibition law. He also announced himself against mothers' old age and other pensions.

OPPOSED TO WET MOVE
Carmel Thompson, of Cleveland, considered in political circles as the federal administration's choice for the nomination, indicated he will oppose any attempt to modify prohibition laws. With Senator Arthur H. Day, an announced candidate, also fighting any "wet" movement, the question was certain to be thrown up to the primary for decision.

Some believed James A. White, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, also would enter the race for the governorship, making a clear cut issue between Durand, the leader of the anti-Volstead faction, and the leader of the prohibition workers.

DEMOCRATIC POSITION
Democratic circles, apathetic until the Republican had clearly indicated their hand, has given no indication of a position on the beer and wine question. Vic Donahy, outstanding prospect for the Democratic nomination for governor, will take a stand against the state reorganization code, and other phases of Governor Davis' administration if he decides to enter the race. He has already made numerous attacks on his issues.

Secretary of State Harvey C. Smith, expected to announce himself for the governorship next week, Carmel Thompson and other Republican possibilities are anxious to make their campaigns on defense of the issue, it is known, but Durand has changed the whole political complexion, at least until after the primary convention.

These leaders with State Senator Day take the position the people have adopted prohibition and the subject is no longer an issue and that who ever is elected is bound to back law enforcement officers.

Lieutenant Governor Brown is the first person to file his declaration of candidacy with the secretary of state's office. He is seeking the Republican nomination for secretary of state.

An announcement from Carmel Thompson as to his stand on the governorship will open the way for a flood of declarations for all state offices, party leaders believed Saturday night.

CURRENT EVENTS:

A Simplified Discussion of Topics of Interest for Children and Busy Adults. Today's Subjects:

- 1—ARMY OF OCCUPATION
- 2—COAL STRIKE
- 3—GERMAN INDEMNITY

ARMY IN GERMANY

President Harding has ordered Secretary of War Weeks to bring home the soldiers we have kept on the Rhine river in Germany since the end of the World War.

These soldiers are called "the American Army of Occupation."

It has always been the custom of victors in wars to send armies to camp on the land of the defeated country to see to it that the defeated country lived up to its agreements.

This custom was followed by Great Britain, France, Belgium, Italy and the United States when they defeated Germany in the World War.

The American Army of Occupation camped in a region of which the German city of Coblenz was the center.

Coblenz is a very old city. It was standing in the days when the Romans fought the Germanic tribes shortly before and after the birth of Christ.

Coblenz has a population of about 56,000. That's 10,000 more people than Lima has.

There are about 4000 soldiers in the American Army of Occupation. All will be brought home before July 1, Secretary of War Weeks believes.

Why are we bringing our soldiers home? Probably to save money.

Our government expected the allies to pay the expenses from money collected from Germany, but the allied commission in charge of seeing that Germany pays its debt to the allies does not seem willing.

THE COAL STRIKE

It now seems probable that the greatest coal strike in the history of our country will begin April 1.

The United Mine Workers of America, a miners' union, has ordered 600,000 miners in all parts of this country and part of Canada to cease work.

These miners are employed both in hard and soft coal fields.

That means that all coal mining will stop except in fields where miners do not belong to the union.

The strike, if long enough continued, may result in shutting down hundreds of factories and throwing thousands of men out of work, for factories must have coal to operate.

The miners are striking because they're not satisfied with their pay. They make an agreement on pay every year and that wage stands until next year.

This agreement with employers runs out March 31.

"Our pay is low while the cost of living in mining towns is high. Our bosses made big profits during the war and they can afford to pay us well now."

"In 1920 our pay was only $1500 a year. We need $2243 a year to live comfortably in a mining town."

The operators, or men who run the mines, say:

"We can't afford to pay more and we'll probably have to pay less."

"Our competitors in coal fields where men don't belong to the union are paying lower wages and selling coal cheaper than we can. That's ruining our business."

THE GERMAN INDEMNITY

The Allied Reparations Commission is meeting at Paris. It has decided how much Germany must pay this year on the indemnity the allies have demanded.

If the amount is excessive, as some believe it may be, the German cabinet may resign as a protest.

An indemnity is a sum of money paid to repair damage. Germany's indemnity is to pay for the damage Germany did when she attacked Belgium, France and other of her neighbors in the World War and destroyed their farm lands, homes and factories.

The Reparations Commission is a body of men representing the allied countries. Its task is to arrange the amount and method of payment of Germany's indemnities.

WINS HONORS AT ART EXHIBITIONS

SEATTLE.—Friends of Paul Fung, Chinese, claim for him the distinction of being the only member of his race employed as a cartoonist on an American daily newspaper.

Fung was born of Chinese parents in the United States. He is an American citizen, a privilege enjoyed by few Chinese.

After finishing a grade and high school education, Fung attended the University of Washington and was graduated. Then he took up newspaper cartooning.

His cartoons have no Eastern atmosphere but resemble the work of high-grade occidental artists.

Fung has won honors at many art exhibitions. He has designed many title pages for sheet music.

Style Show Week Successful Event, Bringing to the Fore Dame Fashion's Latest Dictates in Apparel for Milady—Summer Plans are Formulated

MILADY has been unusually busy the past few days with thoughts of replenishing her wardrobe, for Spring is here. Thoughts of Spring are unfailingly and, perhaps a bit unconsciously, translated into thoughts of gowns.

During the past week, Style Show Week was observed in this city and milady was afforded the opportunity of viewing the latest of Dame Fashion's dictates. The exhibits were beautiful beyond description. The attractive colors and the graceful gowns expressed nothing but Spring in all its loveliness.

Spring is, perhaps, a more royal advent than anything else one could possibly think of. It imposes the sphere of its influence so ingeniously upon the waiting world and the primal urge that fills everyone with a longing to actually dig in the ground when Spring comes is responsible for many a garden blooming with the dainty jonquills and crocuses.

Very probably it may seem a bit premature at this time, when only the beginning of Spring has arrived, to talk of summer plans, but society believes in preparedness. Many, even tho they may only recently have returned from enjoying the southern clime, are beginning to formulate plans for the summer months and express their "pros and cons" for the many inviting and glorious summer resorts.

At a called meeting the chairman of the Art, Music and Literature committees under the Department of Fine Arts of the Federated clubs, with Mrs. Ralph Austin, of N. Collett-st. Friday, it was decided to hold a Three Arts gathering the first week in May, with features of unusual interest to townspeople in general.

The Fine Arts department of which Mrs. Austin is chairman consists of 18 members of the art committee with Mrs. W. R. Daniels as chairman; seven members of the Music committee with Mrs. I. E. Longworth as chairman and nine members of the literature committee with Mrs. Kyle Booth as chairman.

The Community Sewing club of the Federated clubs will sew at the Red Cross Center Tuesday from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Mrs. A. L. White, of W. Market-st. has as her house guest over the week-end her sister, Mrs. Gertrude Weaver, of Mt. Vernon.

Mrs. Ethel Kiser, of the Elizabeths, opened her home to the members of the Odavene club for a covered dish luncheon, Wednesday.

Members present included Mrs. Charles Miller, Mrs. Amor Whelpier, Mrs. Fred Miller, Mrs. Hurlow, Mrs. Charles Young, Mrs. W. Hartzler, Mrs. Walter Milner, Mrs. Colbert, Mrs. Charles Mark, Mrs. Leif Erickson, and the hostess, Mrs. Maurice Connor and Mrs. William Heenan of Akron were the only guests.

The next regular meeting will be held Tuesday with Mrs. Walter Milner, of Hazel-av.

The regular monthly Masonic dance will be enjoyed by the Masons and their friends Thursday evening in the Masonic hall room. Dancing will begin at 8:30 o'clock.

Members of the Astronomy class of the City Federation of Women's clubs will meet at the home of Mrs. W. B. Kirk, of 1123 Rice-av., Tuesday at 7:30 p. m.

BROADWAY LIKES "VOLTAIRE," COLLEGE GIRLS' COMEDY

CARLOTTA MONTEREY

By ALEXANDER HERMAN
NEW YORK — Success may come to him who waits — But two New York college girls weren't going to take any chances.

They got busy, wrote a play, took it to a producer, sold it and had it in rehearsal — five days later. Then they took the manuscript to a publisher, made him read it, and had it accepted — in two days.

Now they are busy reaping the results of their success.

The girls are Lella Taylor, a Columbia University School of Journalism graduate, and Gertrude Purcell of Hunter College. Their play is the romantic comedy "Voltaire" in which Arnold Daly is playing the title role.

COVERS ONE DAY
Unlike "Disraeli" and "Abraham Lincoln" and other plays of that type, it does not present a series of disconnected episodes in the career of a great historical figure. Instead, its action is confined to one day in the life of Voltaire at his chateau at Ferney, near the Swiss frontier.

In it are crowded bits of Voltaire, the philosopher, playwright, match-maker, historian, pamphleteer, chess player and wit. There is no pretense of being historically accurate. But most of the events actually happened at one time or other in his career. The young authors took the liberty of telescoping them to suit the needs of their intrigue.

The comedy is one of the best "well-built" plays seen on Broadway this year. It is so carefully arranged that it loses some of its suspense.

FIRST ATTEMPT

But it is the authors' first attempt. They will do better next time.

Arnold Daly's acting could scarcely be improved. His portrayal of Voltaire, the septuagenarian, is the best thing he has done since "The Master." Carlotta Monterey is charming as Mile. Clairon, the French actress.

They are putting the play over and are making Broadway's youngest playwrights happy.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Banta, of S. Collett-st. were host and hostess to the members of the T. and T. club at dinner at the Lima club, Friday evening.

"Socialism" was the subject for the evening. Members responded to roll call with current events relating to this subject. W. L. Mackenzie, in speaking of the "Socialists of Prominence, Past and Present" spoke of their ideals and of the many types of socialists there have been in the past and present, pointing out Russia as one of today's problems. J. K. Brice gave a talk on Communism and Despotism, and also read bits from Shaw's "Back to Methuselah." The guests of the evening other than members were Frank Banta, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Wyre, Mrs. William Hart, of Hamilton, Ont., Mrs. Gertrude Weaver, of Mt. Vernon; Mrs. Betty Brice Wilson and Miss Ann Taylor.

Dr. and Mrs. R. Terwilliger, of W. Market-st. will entertain the club in two weeks.

Miss Caroline Dotson entertained the members of the Jelly Ten Embroidery club at her home Thursday evening. Music and needlework were the diversions and at a late hour the hostess, assisted by her cousin, Miss Louella Dotson, served a two-course luncheon. The only guest was Miss Ida Dickson.

Members present included Misses Elva McGinnis, Alice Moore, Laura Sandridge, Grace McGinnis, Esther Goodie, Osa Williams, Catherine McGinnis, Rose Kamalis, Bertine Baldwin, Irene Dotson and the hostess.

Next meeting will be held Friday evening at the home of Miss Grace McGinnis, of East North-st.

Mrs. Lena B. Davis, of W. Wayne-st. entertained informally at luncheon Friday honoring Mrs. William Hart, of Hamilton, Ont. Springtime appointments of flowers and birds formed the decorations. Miss Grace Griswold assisted the hostess.

The guests included Mrs. William Hart, the honor guest; Mrs. F. G. Borges, Mrs. F. C. Becker, Mrs. W. R. Meily, Mrs. William Wilson, Mrs. Leah M. Butler, Mrs. Eva Creps, Mrs. F. L. Foust and Mrs. J. C. Pence.

Mrs. R. D. Chamberlain, of N. Washington-st. was hostess to the members of the Cateria club Wednesday afternoon. Games and music formed the diversions for the afternoon and a delicious luncheon was served by the hostess. The table was prettily decorated with springtime appointments. Mrs. Burgett was the guest.

The next meeting will be held in two weeks with Mrs. W. R. Stapleton, of 627 Dewey-av.

LENTEN SEASON
END NEAR; THEN COMES EASTER

Lull of Penitential Season Is Being Dissipated to a Degree as Social Functions Prevail—Resume of Events
During the Past Week in Review

ONE can scarcely realize that the Lenten season is drawing to a close so rapidly and that just three weeks from today the glorious Easter morn will be ushered in.

The present Lenten season has been very unusual, in that society has been almost as busy as in midwinter when brilliant and elaborate social functions are enjoyed. There are no large affairs, but all social amenities are carried on quite the same as before.

One of the pretty and informal functions of the past week was that of Wednesday, when Mrs. W. J. Felsner presided at a bridge-tee at her home.

Thursday the Women's Music club presented two delightful plays at Memorial Hall at the regular matinee recital. The first offering, "Suppressed Desires," a comedy in two acts, was cleverly portrayed by Mrs. Donald Mehaffey, Mrs. Oscar Young and Mrs. Winona Vinson Forrer. The second, "The String of the Samson," a play in two acts, was presented in a skilful manner by Mrs. J. K. Bannister, Mrs. M. M. Keltner, Mrs. Winona Forrer, Mrs. Donald Mehaffey and Mrs. Oscar Young. The program was in charge of Mrs. J. K. Bannister and Mrs. Frank Downing.

An interesting event of Saturday was that at the Hotel Barr when Prof. Homer B. Hulbert, of Springfield, Mass., addressed the City Federation of Women's clubs on the subject, "When East Meets West." The meeting was arranged by the Department of Applied Education, of which Mrs. E. B. Taylor is chairman. A 1 o'clock luncheon preceded the lecture.

The Allen County Historical society will have for its speaker Friday evening, N. W. Cunningham, (or Dick, as he is usually called), who comes from Bluffton for the occasion.

No one in this county is better informed on personalities, places and problems of the vicinity than Mr. Cunningham, who will speak on, "Faces I Have Known."

These gatherings are open to the public and a cordial welcome awaits all who are in any way interested in the history of Lima and Allen County.

Mrs. William Hart, who has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. F. C. Borges, of W. Elm-st. for the past 10 days, leaves Tuesday for her home in Hamilton, Ont.

Mrs. H. A. Holdridge, of W. Market-st. returned Saturday from a short stay in Cleveland.

The Lima chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will meet at the home of Mrs. Henry Kidder, of 728 State-st. Saturday. The assistant hostesses will be Mrs. Lena B. Davis, Mrs. F. G. Borges and Miss Grace Hollister. At this time reports of the delegates to the state conference in Akron will be made by Mrs. Henry Delsel, Jr., and Mrs. Earl Swan, of Akron.

The annual organ recital of the Woman's Music club will be held at the First Baptist church, corner High and McDonnell-sts. Thursday afternoon, April 6th. The program, which is being arranged by Mrs. Robb Meily and Miss Ella Eysenbach, will be filled with interesting and unusual numbers.

Mrs. Fred Becker, of W. Elm-st. entertained informally at luncheon Saturday honoring Mrs. William Hart, of Hamilton, Ontario.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

OYSTER DISHES

Sister Mary Suggests Them for Their Food Value

As long as names of the months are spelled with an "r" oysters are in season. Use them as often as possible for their food value is great and they are very easily digested.

Oysters should never be overcooked. Heat them thoroughly and let the edges curl. Long cooking makes oysters tough and indigestible.

These recipes are a bit different and are nice to serve at luncheon or to men at a little supper party after cards.

OYSTERS IN RAMKINS
One quart oysters, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 canned pimiento, ½ teaspoon minced onion, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ½ teaspoon salt, ¾ teaspoon paprika, 2 tablespoons flour, milk, 2 tablespoons grated cheese.

Clean oysters. Put in saucepan, cover with boiling water and simmer 10 minutes or until the oysters are plump and the edges curl. Drain and save liquor. Add enough milk to make two cups of liquid. Melt butter, add pimiento minced and onion.

Simmer for five minutes. Add flour, salt and paprika. Stir and cook until smooth and well blended. Slowly add liquid and bring to the boiling point. Add lemon juice slowly, beating well. This makes a thick sauce. Put oysters in well buttered ramkins, pour over sauce, sprinkle with grated cheese and put under the flame for just a minute to melt the cheese.

If large oyster or scallop shells are at hand they should be used in place of ramkins. This dish may be used as the first course of a luncheon or dinner.

OYSTERS EN BROCHETTE
One quart large oysters (about two dozen), thick cut bacon, lengths of least, lemon slices.

Clean and drain oysters. Cut bacon the same size as the oysters and have the same number of pieces. Alternate an oyster and a piece of bacon on a skewer. Baste each oyster with a little melted butter to start, then the bacon furnishes the oil.

Put the skewers over or across a narrow baking pan and cook in a very hot oven or under the flame. It will take about 15 minutes to cook the oysters and bacon. Put each skewer on a narrow strip of toast and garnish with slices of lemon and serve at once.

Any drippings in the pan should be poured over the oysters after they are put on the toast, allow four oysters for each serving.

OYSTERS WITH RICE
One-half cup rice, 1 quart boiling water, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 pint oysters, 1 cup white sauce, salt, paprika, mustard, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 2 tablespoons grated cheese.

Wash rice thru several waters. Drain and add slowly to rapidly boiling water. Add salt to water just before adding rice. Let boil 20 minutes. Drain and pour cold water thru.

Then pour boiling water thru rice. Melt butter in a pan with a cover, add rice and shake over fire. Cover and let stand in a warm oven until needed. Clean and drain oysters.

Put a layer of rice in a well buttered baking dish, add half the oysters, sprinkle with salt, paprika and a tiny bit of mustard, and lemon juice. Pour over half the white sauce. Cover with a layer of rice. Add another layer of oysters and white sauce.

Cover with rice, sprinkle with grated cheese and bake half an hour in a moderate oven.

NECK LINES
The boat line or bateau neck, which is almost round, remains very popular, but the newer Greek line is seen more often on the formal gowns. The Greek line is quite straight from shoulder to shoulder.

RIBBON

SHADOWS

Vociferous applause followed the effort of the man in the apacine costume. It had a certain rhythm—three short claps, two long ones, three short, two long, with a final vocal "A!" drawn out till breath was exhausted. It was their individual style of showing approval. If the performer had not pleased them they would have flung him a spatter of ordinary applause or kept silent.

Violat and Barry either did not join in with sufficient enthusiasm or showed amateurish technique. At all events their nearest neighbors—a white-faced girl with bobbed hair, wearing a queer black dress with collar buttoned tightly up her neck to her very ears, and kid boots with high red heels; a man of athletic build and obviously mixed nationality, with close-together, rat-like eyes and a race track suit of checks cut to ape American fashion—pushed up close to them on the bench.

"Don't you like it?" asked the girl challengingly.

"Excellent!" answered Violat quickly in French. "I thought it very clever."

At this both the girl and the man burst into a laugh, but said no more. Presently Violat felt the creptness of someone's glance fixed upon her. She looked to right and left, but could not find source. Then, from a dim corner across the room she saw the shadow of the man peering from the shadows, his ratty eyes fixed first on her face, then on the flashing jewel of her ring as the beams from above caught it.

She looked away. But always she was drawn to glance back. He stood there immovably, his face making a wax blob against the background of smoke and darkness, his eyes always upon her. She nervously kept her left hand out of sight, but still she felt him staring.

"What is it?" asked Barry. "Are you frightened at anything? Do you want to go?"

"No, I'm not frightened," Violat's spirit was still determined—

Young Ladies' society of the First Congregational church will meet with Mrs. O. M. Thomas, of N. Charles-st., Monday evening. Mrs. C. A. Stump will act as assistant hostess.

Mrs. M. L. Mayer, of 530 W. Elm-st., will open her home to the members of the Von Bora circle Tuesday afternoon.

Miss Lura Mae Gallaspie, of N. Collett-st., will welcome the members of the Delta Sigma sorority at her home, Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Harry Baldwin of Jean Court was hostess to the members of the Heareux Temps club Thursday afternoon. A paper on "The Prehistoric Days of the Telephone" was read by Mrs. Robert Kuhn. In an interesting contest, Mrs. J. H. Jewhurst was successful. The guests were Mrs. John Malster, of Waterford; Glenn I. Wallace and Mrs. Ed Wallace.

The next meeting will be held in two weeks with Mrs. W. R. Rudy, of 1115 W. Wayne-st.

Mrs. A. G. Krock, of W. Wayne-st., will welcome the members of her Five Hundred club Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Phil Minaugh, of N. West-st., will entertain the members of her euchre club at her home Wednesday.

Miss Elizabeth Moulton, a student at Wellesley college, Wellesley, Mass., arrived in this city Saturday to visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Moulton, of W. Market-st., during the spring vacation.

LEARN A WORD A DAY
TODAY'S word is PRES-TIGE.

It's pronounced—pres-teezh (the zh pronounced as in pleasure) with accent on the last syllable.

It means—weight, influence, power, good name, good reputation, quality that makes one superior.

It comes from—Latin "prestigium," delusion.

It's used like this—"To have much money gives one great prestige."

"and I don't want to go, I hate being stared at, that's all."

"Who's staring?"

She was about to indicate the man in the corner, but just then a dancer doing a crude tarantella shut off their view. When Violat looked again another face was beside her—the pallid woman who had sat near them on the bench and had spoken to them. Violat could feel herself being stripped from head to foot by her eyes.

"Don't look now," she whispered to Barry, "but over in that corner is a man who has not taken his eyes from me in half an hour. And the woman—that vampire creature in the black dress—she's there, too. Barry looked, but their gaze did not waver. Then slowly they receded, further and further into the dim corner, until they quite disappeared.

"They've gone," said Barry, making his tone reassuring. But without knowing why he felt there was something more sinister in their going than in their staying there.

Spare Time Jobs for Father
When the baby's milk is put in ordinary, small-necked bottles, it is usually exposed to the air because the bottles have no caps. You can easily make caps for these bottles, similar to milk bottle caps, out of cardboard. Get the proper size and cut them out with scissors.

GIRDLES
The placing of the girdle on these straight narrow dresses is an important matter. Slender women can wear the girdle row around the hips and thus emphasize their slenderness. For heavier figures, however, the girdle should be at the top of the hips, thus giving an effect of less weight.

MERITORIOUS FILM CLASSICS SCHEDULED FOR FORTHCOMING WEEK

VALENTINO IN RETURN TO SIGMA

Faurot Theatre to Present Bebe Daniels; Also a James Oliver Curwood Offering

Lima Made Movie at Lyric, With Lon Chaney in "The Night Rose"—Other Plays

(BY ESTHER WAGNER)
LIMA'S great army of picture-goers will surely extend a royal welcome to the host of meritorious films to be flashed on local silver sheets during the forthcoming week. Splendid programs are announced by each individual manager and the week, as a whole, promises to be an unusual one.

The Sigma theatre announces a return of that massive wonder-play of the year, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," Rex Ingram's version of the novel by Vicente Blasco Ibanez. Rudolph Valentino and Alice Terry have the leading roles. To those who have not yet seen this picture, the week will offer opportunity aplenty.

The Faurot's offerings this week are topped by "The Speed Girl," which opens a three-day engagement today. Bebe Daniels is seen in the title role, with the return Mr. Hiers playing opposite. There's also a James Oliver Curwood film, "The Northern Trail," on the same bill with Bebe.

For Tuesday and Wednesday, the Faurot has secured "Dawn of the East," starring Alice Brady, while on Friday and Saturday will be featured "Dangerous Lies," in which David Powell and Mary Glynn enact the most important parts.

"The Night Rose," with Lon Chaney and a distinguished supporting cast, opens a four-day engagement today at the Lyric theatre, together with the Lima-made film, "Along Came Jack," in which local talent is cast.

The week-end bill at the Lyric theatre, starting on Thursday, features Marie Prevost in "Don't Get Personal," a comedy of delightful proportions. A new comedy accompanies the feature.

"Sand," a vivid western tale, starring William S. Hart, is the attraction today and Monday at the Majestic. There's also a Charlie Chaplin comedy on the same bill. On Thursday evening, an amateur contest will be staged at this theatre.

The Lyric Pictures

INFESTAL care has been taken to provide Lyric patrons with a program of unusually brilliant screen attractions during the coming week, with the result that two plays of real merit will be shown during the course of the week.

Leroy Scott, author, whose works are everywhere heralded as best sellers, is responsible for the script of "The Night Rose," a Goldwyn special attraction which opens a four-day run today at the Lyric theatre. Lon Chaney, whose role of the legless wonder in "The Penalty," made him one of the outstanding figures of the silent drama, has a particularly strong part in "The Night Rose." With him appear such favorites as Leatrice Joy, Cullen Landis and Lefty Flynn.

Mr. Chaney is cast as O'Rourke, the king of the underworld, and in his characterization he is said to be splendid. The Czar of the city's evil element, he is a gentleman in garb, suave in manner and a connoisseur in the selection of his surroundings. He is the kind of a leader who hides vice behind a most pleasing exterior. The story is a strange one, telling of how an innocent young girl became entangled in the city's underworld and held a prisoner with still no harm coming to her. Her lover is also trapped, and their ultimate freedom and the manner in which they obtain it furnishes one of the big punches of the entire film.

One of the most beautiful scenes is that of the ball, which is planned as a fitting celebration for the return of O'Rourke to his kingdom. The sets and costumes used for this particular scene are magnificent.

Dainty Miss Marie Prevost, who some time ago deserted the ranks of Seneca's bathing beauties for the dramatic field, is coming to the Lyric on Thursday and for three days, appearing in "Don't Get Personal," a charming little tale just suited to the appealing personality of Miss Prevost.

"The Night Rose" at the Lyric Today.

The Lima made film, "Along Came Jack," is showing as an extra added attraction today.

The Faurot's Pictures

THE program at the Faurot for today, Monday and Tuesday is certainly one with which to conjure the faded picture fan. There is a merry and exciting Reelart comedy, "The Speed Girl," with dashing Bebe Daniels in the leading role; James Oliver Curwood's gripping tale, "The Northern Trail," which has Lewis Stone, Ethel Grey Terry and Wallace Beery for its principal interpreters, and the newest of news reels, Kinograms.

It was but natural that Reelart would use Bebe Daniels' experience in a Santa Ana jail as the basis for a comedy-drama, so you will see the sprightly star as a fascinating little feminine dare-devil who becomes a motion picture star and specializes in stunts, and makes the greatest of these into a thrilling fifty mile race to overtake a train. For the latter she is "pinched" by the wily speed cops of the California coast—an actual occurrence. Other scenes in the sparkling play show you the heroine at work in a moving picture studio. Walter Hiers, Frank Elliott, Truly Shattuck, Theodore Von Elitz and William Courtwright are the principals in the supporting cast.

The Curwood story, which compresses into two reels enough thrills and dramatic incidents to make up the biggest of features, is laid in the north woods, of which Mr. Curwood writes so well and often. With its picturesque locale, its admirable cast and powerful plot it makes an admirable contrast to the comedy feature.

On Wednesday and Thursday the Faurot will offer Alice Brady in her new screen success, "Dawn of the East," a story of a beautiful Russian girl who is caught in the web of Oriental intrigue. Kinograms and Bruce Scenics complete this bill.

For Friday and Saturday the Faurot will present the Paramount picture, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," which opens a return engagement of one week, today at the Sigma theatre. This presentation will be given at the regular prices.

The Sigma Pictures

THE picture that has been acclaimed everywhere as the master production of the age—the picture that has marked a new epoch in the development of the screen drama—is "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," which opens a return engagement of one week, today at the Sigma theatre. This presentation will be given at the regular prices.

"The Four Horsemen" from the novel by Vicente Blasco Ibanez, is the work of Rex Ingram, who set a mark in artistry of pictorialization when he made this marvelous film. Certain it is that no film has ever stirred the universe, nor has created the appeal that "The Four Horsemen" has done. It is a picture that stands alone as the most sensational success of the year.

Readers of the famous Ibanez novel will recall that the story opens on the Argentine ranch of old Madariaga, whose territories are very extensive. The old man, filled with Castilian pride of family, years for a masculine child to carry on his tradition. His two daughters each marry ranch employees, one French and the other German. Madariaga's hatred for his German son-in-law brings with it a dislike for his half-German grandchildren, but when a son is born to the Frenchman, Desnoyers, the old man's dream is realized.

The boy, Julio, is selected as heir to the huge estate and is brought up a pampered and self-willed idler. It is in the characterization of Julio that Rudolph Valentino, now the idol of thousands of movie fans, became justly famous.

Then came the Great War, which tears asunder family bonds and severs loving ties. And into the fray that you will never forget. And went Julio, the pleasure-loving, the spoiled. The termination of this wonderful dramatization is depicted on the battlefields and is a scene that you will never forget. And thru it all gallop the four horsemen, spoken of by St. John in the Book of the Apocalypse—the grim figures of Conquest, War, Famine and Death.

The scenes are of such magnitude as to be breath-taking; the photography is superb; the cast of characters is one hundred per cent perfect, with the work of Rudolph Valentino, Alice Terry, and Joseph Schildkraut unforgettable. A brilliant array of actors and actresses are seen in the minor roles.

If you are one of the many who saw "The Four Horsemen" at its premiere in this city, you will remember the production as the most remarkable ever brought to this city. And for those who were unable to witness the film this second presentation is indeed fortunate, for there never was, nor probably ever will be, a picture that has all the beauty, the artistry and purpose of "The Four Horsemen."

At the Sigma today and all this week.

The Majestic Pictures

THE most popular delineator of western types in the movies today is William S. Hart, and it is safe to say that no picture of recent years which this well known actor, has given to the public has the amount of entertainment value and story interest as "Fand," which opens a two-day engagement today at the Majestic theatre.

"Sand" has a double meaning. It refers to the locale of the picture—the broad expanses of the southwestern "bad lands"—and to that desirable ingredient in a man's make-up that helps him over difficulties and enables him to dare much. Bill Hart is just that kind of a hero. The story has plenty of hard riding, shooting scrapes and the usual romance, with Mary Thurman as the pretty leading lady.

In addition to this delightful program picture, the bill at the Majestic theatre today includes a Charlie Chaplin comedy, "Woman," which can be classified as one continuous laugh, from start to finish. On Thursday evening, the management will present a splendid amateur contest, some of the best talent in the city being entered in the program.

PINK TROUSERS

All the South American soldiers in "The Dictator" appear in pink trousers. No that isn't to give the picture a flashy appearance! Pure white trousers photograph with a glare that hurts the eyes. Pink trousers produce a soft white.

During the past few weeks a club of many prominent people of the city.

It is not an advertising picture in any sense of the word, as the scenes are so arranged and photographed that no business firm or individual can obtain undue publicity. This feature was looked after very carefully as it was the aim of the Grotto that a straight-out clean picture so filled with local interest that it would merit unstinted patronage of the public on its merits as a picture, be presented to the public.

"Along Came Jack" is a two-reel comedy with a pretty little love story. It has been filmed under professional license and a wedding. The comedy part played by Hageman keeps action stirring from beginning to end.

The local scenes for The French Home were made at the residence of W. L. Russell, 649 W. Market-st., and those for the hero's home were laid at the Keltner home on West North-st. Other scenes were taken about town covering both the business and residential sections. Over 3000 feet of film was shot here in taking the 200 odd scenes which has been boiled down so as to make two complete reels, every inch of which is full of action and entertainment.

The story deals with the love affair of Nellie French, played by Mrs. Ralph Austin, and Jack Swift, played by Emmett Jackson. Johnny Sloe, played by Charles Hageman, is very much in love with Nellie and believes he is the "one and only." Jack, however, is a great football star and wins Nellie's favor and eventually her hand.

The big scenes include a football game in which the two Central Hi football teams participate; a narrowly averted auto accident; a dash to the court house for a marriage professional directorship, professional photography and assembled in one of the big motion picture plants of Chicago. In fact everything going to the making of the film was professional with the exception of the cast and locations.

Over a thousand Lima people were photographed during the action of the play.

The story of "Along Came Jack" was especially written and adapted for this particular class of production. The work of selecting the cast and making the pictures was under the direction of Palmer Bowman and his assistants.

A few reasons why he is in a position to judge: Director Palmer Bowman began his career fifteen years ago as juvenile leading man in legitimate productions of New York companies. He soon advanced to leading man and then was engaged for leads in Essanay productions under the direction of H. McCrea Webster. This was the same year, and almost the identical moment that Francis Bushman first took up motion picture work at the Essanay, where they were fast friends. At the end of the year a more attractive contract was offered Bowman by the Selig Polyscope company of Chicago, at that time the most complete studio in the world, and he accepted it and played in their features under the direction of Mr. Oscar Eagle, the famous New York director. It was then that Mr. Selig, president of the Selig company, and known throughout the world as the father of the motion picture industry, suggested to Bowman that he seemed to have the personality that is peculiarly necessary for directors who are to handle vast and temperamental types of professional actors and placed him under the eye of his director-general, Mr. Eagle, for such training. Bowman was then made first assistant to the director general and received training that one could only receive under the eye of a genius as "The Governor" as Mr. Eagle is known to members of the profession, is known to be. This was Bowman's chance and he was not slow to take advantage of it. From that time on he was on the Selig production staff and has given a mighty good account of himself ever since. In recent years he has been associated with "Buddy Rhodes", manager of the American Society Films, makers of the Grotto film.

Their association was interrupted by the war, but last December Mr. Rhodes returned from Europe after spending nearly four years in Belgium, France and Germany with the army.

Mr. Rhodes and Bowman again cast their lot together and began where they had left off and have met with great success in the very same style of motion picture making that they have been conducting right here in Lima.

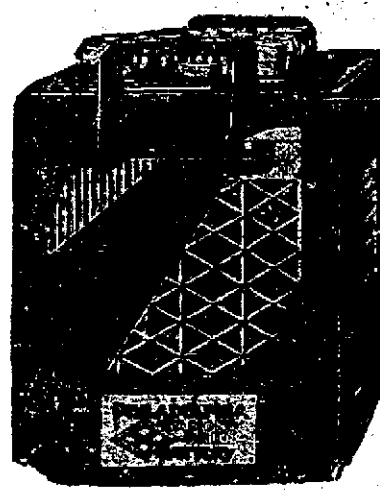

Mr. Rhodes was working under the direction of Mr. Bowman when their first partnership was formed, working with Tom Moore, Rodney La Rocque, Taylor Holmes, Bryant Washburn, Ralph Graves, Virginia Valli and others, he is better known to picture fans as Donald Drew, his professional name, which he discarded when he entered the service, and is now known as "Buddy" Rhodes by thousands of friends in and out of the profession. Bowman was particularly well known to the public as leading man in just such films as "Along Came Jack," and received high praise for his work in "The Colloge Chaperon," "The Shortstop's Double," "A Pair of Stockings," "Henrietta's Hair," "Silk Hat Joe," "Love's Sweet Serenade," and many others of this character. In addition to this he has played in many features and was pronounced by Colonel Selig to be one of the very best "screen subjects" that has ever been in the Selig studios, and this in itself is a great compliment, for Colonel Selig would engage neither star nor "Bit Man" until he had had a screen test and had been proved a "Subject."

Thomas H. Hildebrand, the camera man with American Society Films, is one of the best cameramen in the country, has had ten years' experience, loves his work and is a close student of anything connected with motion pictures or photography.

CHIEF MACK GOES ON WARPATH

"JUNK" IN ATTICS, CELLARS

Safety Department Head Urges Reduction of Hazards

Chief John Mack of the Lima fire department will start Monday on the warpath against the family rubbish pile.

Accumulations of litter in and about dwelling houses, according to the local fire department head, have caused a large number of fires in Lima. There is no better time, he says, to banish this fire hazard than during the approaching housecleaning season.

"I venture to say," declares Mack, "in countless homes in this community attics and cellars are choked with mountainous stocks of newspapers, dilapidated furniture, cast-off clothing, old toys, rags and a miscellaneous assortment of worthless odds and ends that never will be used."

The stuff can be characterized by no other term than junk, the chief said. People are continually apologizing for the existence of trash piles and are always on the point of removing them, but never quite get to it, he declared.

"Last year," Chief Mack said, "the city had 899 recorded alarms of fire. This year, to date, the number is running ahead of last year, but there is still time to cut down the final showing at the end of the year. One of the first steps is to clear away the rubbish from our homes and places of business.

LOSS TOTALS MILLIONS
"Upwards of three-fourths of a million dollars in American property is destroyed annually, 4-6 to rubbish and litter, according to figures compiled by the National Board of Fire Underwriters. Our department records prove that 85 per cent of the local persons who had property ravaged by fire in the last year, contributed their share to this alarming national total," according to Mack.

"It may not be amiss to speak a word of caution right here about a practice that at this season is always an additional hazard—that of burning over patches of dry grass. The practice has many times resulted in serious fires and caused loss of life," the fire department head.

RACKS REPLACE TUBS AS PARCEL POST RECEPTACLES

Large racks have replaced a number of metal tubs as receptacles for parcel post mail in the Lima post-office, Postmaster A. E. Gale announced Saturday.

The racks are divided into compartments more than a yard square and equally as deep, capable of holding the largest mail packages. The racks occupy the southeast corner of the main mailing room.

Tubs were formerly used and were a source of confusion, as they were placed on the floor. Sorting of packages under the circumstances was difficult and tedious and mistakes frequent. Gale is highly pleased with the innovation and believes it will materially benefit the service.

FETTER CHANGES PLEA IN SCHOOL CASE; FINED $5

William Fetter, Bath-twp, pleaded guilty to violation of the school law, in the court of William H. Guyton, justice of the peace, Saturday. He was assessed a fine of $5 and costs. Fetter had pleaded not guilty when arraigned on the charge March 20. Warrant for his arrest was sworn to by F. J. Pierstorff, county school attendance officer.

Fetter was charged with failure to send Amy Fetter, his 17 year old daughter to school. Upon promise to comply with the law, the fine was suspended by the court.

RELIGIOUS INSTITUTE AT REFORMED CHURCH PLANNED FOR MONDAY

A classical institute to discuss the work of religious education will be held in the Reformed church, W. Wayne-st, Monday. The meeting is arranged under the auspices of Heidelberg classes. An afternoon and evening session will be held.

The afternoon session will open at 2 o'clock. Rev. C. Peters, Philadelphia, will speak on "The Week-Day Church School." Miss Marie Muehlbauer, principal of one of the daily vacation Bible schools in Lima last summer, will speak on "How to Conduct a Daily Vacation Bible School." Miss Muehlbauer conducted this school under supervision of the Lima Council of Religious Education and will bring methods direct to her hearers.

Prof. E. T. English, of Heidelberg university, Tiffin, will speak at 7:30 p. m. on "Adequate Religious Education in the Local Church." Dr. Peters will give an address, illustrated by stereopticon views, on "History and Importance of Week-Day Daily Vacation Bible Schools."

Rev. T. W. Hoernemann is entertaining pastor. All persons interested in the work of religious education will be made welcome to these services.

MODERN VAMPS BACKED CINCINNATI — "The modern vampire will make a man a better wife than the sweet old-fashioned girl we hear so much about. Style plus quality plus savings

the fact that you're buying right!

It is not necessarily alone the price you pay that means pocketbook satisfaction. It's what you receive for the price that in the end proves the genuineness and extent of the satisfaction you experience.

It's the style, the quality and the workmanship in your purchase at a price, that determines the lowness of that price!

A quality-providing ability of this kind is the result of a store's buying power—whether the buying in the market was made for one store or hundreds of stores; whether the buying was done with a thorough understanding of the needs of the store's patrons or bought wildly and haphazardly to eventually be sold at so-called "sales."

The buying of our 312 department stores obtains lowest possible prices and the pick of style and quality. This results because of the vast quantities of goods our combined stores require. By buying here you know you are buying right.

"THREE WISE FOOLS" IS JOHN GOLDEN'S PET COMEDY PRODUCTION

CONSIDERS IT HIS BEST OFFERING

Among All the Plays Written by Well Known Author, It is His Most Loved Work

Will Be Presented at Fauror Opera House April 3d, for Pleasure of Lima People

It is a remarkable fact, but the pet comedy of John Golden, the famous theatrical producer, is "Three Wise Fools," and he will present it at the Fauror on Monday night, April 3d.

The fact that Mr. Golden has a favorite at all among his many successes is remarkable. Every man has his weakness, but this picking out of "Three Wise Fools" for special attention is according to him, his strength. Among his predominating successes are "Lightnin'," which left the Gaiety Theatre, New York, after a world's record run of three years and a day; "The First Year," Frank Craven's famous small town comedy now in its second season at the Little Theatre, New York; "Turn to the Right," sold to the movies for three-quarters of a million after seven seasons of big money making; "Dear Me," termed by William Archer, the eminent English critic, a Dickensian fairy tale, and the sensational success, "Thank You," at the Longacre Theatre New York. And he considers "Three Wise Fools" the best, because it best represents his ideal sort of play. The explanation lies, perhaps, in the literary quality and a cultured treatment and development of human foibles. It is the only play of his Mr. Golden has allowed to be produced in London. All of the others have had to wait until the producer feels he may do them properly. "Three Wise Fools" was done by an English company and scored a full season of popularity.

The leading member of the strong cast, always strong with the Golden plays, is John W. Rausone, famous as the original Hans Wagner in "The Prince of Pilsen." This great fun-maker, once entirely identified with an essentially dramatic career in his choice of making the people laugh. His leading woman is Hazel Sexton, who scored a personal hit with Wm. Hodge in "The Road to Happiness."

The Rialto Pictures

HAROLD LLOYD, presented at the Rialto theatre today and Monday in "Among Those Present," a three-reel Hal Roach comedy presented thru Associated Exhibitors, displays unrivaled feats of horsemanship.

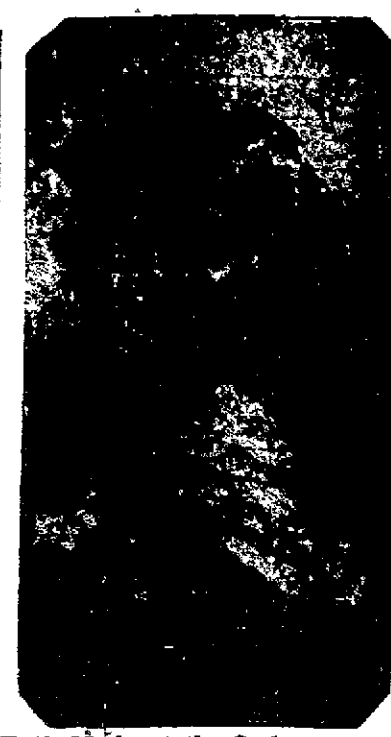

Posing at the fox hunt of the O'Briens as a famous horseman and hunter, the experienced hotel "butlers" was given the honor of riding with the hounds on Dynamite, the meanest horse in the O'Brien stables. Dynamite was guaranteed to throw anyone who attempted to mount him, and Harold Lloyd soon found it out. But what chance has a poor horse when the wits of Lloyd start working? Lloyd mounted that horse and—thereby hangs the tale of what happened to one who was "Among Those Present" by mistake.

Thrills and laughs tumble over each other in this new Lloyd comedy, in which he is supported by Mildred Davis, Aggie Herring, Vera White, James Kelly and William Gillespie.

The program also includes a new five-reel western picture, "The Duke of Chimney Butte," featuring Fred Stone.

ARE YOU PAYING RENT?

Did you ever get right down and figure what you were doing when you pay rent?

When you pay rent you are paying for a home, but when you get it paid for you do not own it. It belongs to the landlord, and he has it for nothing.

Have you ever figured that when you pay $30.00 per month rent you are paying interest on $6000.00?

Why not get out of the rent and quit paying to somebody else and pay to yourself.

Think it over, then come in and let us show you some of the homes we have to offer. Below you will find a few specials. We have many more listings and have something that will suit your tastes and pocketbook.

WEADOCK AVENUE
Near the new Woolen Mills, and sure to increase in value. 6 rooms, bath, basement and garage. Large lot all in good shape. Price $3600.00.

5 rooms, bath and basement. Large lot. Price $3400.00.
GREENLAWN AVENUE, between Kibby and Vine

7 rooms, bath, extra toilet and lavatory on first floor. Furnace and garage. All in first class shape. This is a fine location for a shop man who wants to live close to his work. Price $5500.00.

NORTH WEST STREET, NEAR HALLER
5 room cottage, gas, lights and city water. A bargain. Can be handled on a $300.00 down payment. Price $2000.00.

Reasonable terms can be arranged on most of our houses. Come in and let us talk it over.

OWN A HOME
When you return home at night, tired and sore from a hard day's toil, don't you often wish you could sit down in a home of your own?

Doesn't this continued rent-paying proposition worry you and rob you of a great deal of comfort that you would enjoy if you had a place that was yours?

Perhaps the psychological moment has arrived when you have determined to act in this matter. If so do not fail to consult us as we have ready for occupancy brand new 6-room houses with hardwood floors, full basements, hot air furnaces, sanitary bath rooms with gas grates built in, houses beautifully decorated, window shades and curtain rods installed, in fact already to move into, located on Scott street, between Kibby and Eureka, for $4500.00. Small payment down, balance like rent.

BONDS REACH NEW HIGH LEVELS

Advance Despite Money Hardening at End of Week

STOCKS MORE RESTRAINED

Not Much Change in Investment Demand, However

NEW YORK. — The New York stock market was more restrained in trading this week and owing to an uncertain trend of value it gave the impression that the long period of steady advance was drawing to a close.

Such, however, is not necessarily the case. Contributing factors to this general impression were susceptible to varying interpretations. While the balance between bull and bear elements within the ranks of the speculative elements swayed somewhat, the elements scarcely affected the fundamental position. There was much the same inveterate demand as heretofore. Belief in the continued ease of call money materially helped the market to remain buoyant, despite depressing tendencies and efforts of certain pools to depreciate values. Tightening within the past few days is said to be of no particular significance.

SPRING IMPROVEMENT

Little that was new developed during the week. Greater industrial activity and disappointing retail business was the market's comprehensive impression. Spring improvement in industrial operations has been greater and come earlier than had been expected. This, however may have resulted from anticipations of a coal strike.

Bond prices held firm and worked into new high ground all thru the week, despite reaction of stocks and the hardening of money rates at the end of the week.

Heaviness in cotton this week drew attention to the unsatisfactory situation in New England, where a trial of strength between textile operators and operatives is in force. The episode of the Northern Pacific dividend reduction with its implications regarding Great Northern curbs, to basis for which was changed from quarterly to semi-annually last week, helped for a moment to unsettle railroad values.

The past week was no exception by way of recording some progress toward merchandise activity. The grain markets were rather widely fluctuating. The foreign exchanges covered a considerable range, the feature having been, of course, the extreme weakness in marks, which reached a new low level.

One-half million bushels of rye and one-half million of wheat taken for export, Russell News says.

Quite a number of green bugs are reported in wheat fields in Perry, Oklahoma. A good many old timers say they are starting as in 1907.

In regard to reports that new American T and T. financing is pending, Dow-Jones says the company denies that any new stock issue or other financing by parent company is under consideration.

Market was generally firm Saturday. Studebaker is in good demand and also the independent steel shares.

Average price of 30 industrials was $74.00, up .50. Twenty rails, 19.08, off .05.

Chicago reserve banks cut rate to four and one-half per cent.

Bethlehem Steel "B" rises on improved demand for its product.

Pan American and Mexican Petroleum are again under pressure.

Corn Products Friday declared a cash dividend of 60 cents a share in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of $1. both payable April 20 to stock record April 3.

Passing of the four-power treaty, steel recovery and Gary's prediction of higher prices are expected to encourage bullish operations.

Liverpool wheat closed Saturday at one-half penny down from the previous close.

Raw sugar.—The market responded at the start to selling, assumed to be the result of easier cables from the United Kingdom.

New crop conditions in the Argentine are favorable and more competition from it at source is expected in the next two weeks.

Broomhall says Australian shipments this week were 1,486,000 bushels of wheat, against 1,488,000 last week.

NEW YORK. — Specialties were the only prominent features of Saturday's mixed stock market. Woolworth overshadowed all other issues at an advance of 12 points, the rise being accompanied by reports of a prospective stock dividend. Kresge, Coca Cola, Otis Steel and Tidewater Oil averaged two point gains. The only railway stock to show more than ordinary animation and strength was Missouri, Kansas and Texas preferred. After Ann Arbor common and preferred forfeited more of their recent gains. The action of steel shares was disappointing in view of recent favorable developments. Motors, sugars and chemicals also reacted with American Ice, American Telephone and Union Bag. The closing was irregular. Sales approximated 450,000 shares.

Steels, equipments, motors and their subsidiaries, together with several miscellaneous issues helped to lift the average of prices at the dull opening. United States Steel preferred, Lackawanna Steel, Studebaker and Fisher Body, were higher by fractions to one point. Kelsey Wheel and Marlin Rockwell gained three points each. Sears Roebuck, Utah Copper, Coca Cola and Manhattan Shirt were moderately higher. American Ice, Ann Arbor preferred and Cuba Cane preferred lost one point each and oils showed further heaviness.

BUSINESS TIPS

BY ALBERT APPLE

"Orders from abroad are twice as big as in December." This is the annual report at annual meeting of 175 of America's leading export firms, in New York. The exporters, emerging from extreme pessimism, predict decided revival in their lines as the year matures.

Total February merchandise exports were $251,000,000, compared with $192,998,942 in February, 1913, a month of normal good times. Record February exports were $45,145,225 in 1920. Fallen prices account for much of the slump.

RUBBER TREND

Rubber business is holding its gains despite price slump of a third since late in January, due to exceptionally heavy imports. Price of crude rubber has temporarily dropped as low as 10 cents a pound, some rubber men believe. Tonnage of rubber imports so far this year is about 150 per cent bigger than corresponding period 1912.

PROFITS

Steel production advances steadily, ingot output larger than in 1913. The industry in general is running close to 65 per cent capacity. Yet steel men, while admitting pick-up, point out business is bad financially.

Until recovery is general in all basic industries and consumers are employed and buying again, the outlook is for good volume of business but low volume of profits.

COTTON IMPROVES

Since last August 1, which is New Year Day in cotton trade, northern and southern spinners have taken 46 bales of cotton for each 31 bales in corresponding period of the previous year.

World's visible supply of American cotton now about 3,700,000 bales, or roughly $9,000 bales less than a year ago.

Number of cotton spindles in operation slightly larger than October, 1920.

WHEAT PRICES ON DOWN MOVE

Drop At Liverpool Is Factor In The Decline

CHICAGO. — May wheat was under pressure at the opening Saturday and the July spread was narrowed to around 14 cents. First quotations saw May 1 to 1 1/4 lower at $1.31 to 1.31 3/4. July was off 1-2 at $1.17 to 1.17 5/8 and September was 3-8 lower at $1.10 7/8. The trade took notice of Liverpool's decline in the fact of yesterday's local advance and was inclined to disregard a big falling off in Australian shipments and orders. The market broadened with a large trade on both sides. Commission houses and Chicago traders sold on the bulge, but July received good support on all breaks.

Corn was weak at the opening and May broke to under 58 3-8, which was below last week's inside figure. First prices were 1-4 to 1-2 lower with May 58 7-8 to 59 3-8. July 61 7-8 and September 64 5-8.

Oats showed a light trade early and started unchanged to 1-4 lower with May 56 1/4 to 57, July 59 and September 64 1-4.

An advance in the local hog market and higher prices at Liverpool for provisions were factors in establishing an advance in those commodities. Demand was fairly good and offerings light with lard generally 20 cents higher.

Final wheat prices were $1.30 1-4 to $1.30 7-8 for May, $1.16 to $1.16 1-8 for July and $1.10 1-8 for September.

Closing corn prices were May 57 7-8 to 58; July 61 1-4 to 61 3-8 and September 64 1-4.

PRODUCE MARKETS

(By Swift & Co.)

Favorable weather throughout producing sections has resulted in a larger supply of eggs in the principal market centers. Prices show only slight changes, with good demand from consuming trade. Within the next week or two, supply will probably be in excess of demand from retail trade, and the surplus will be placed in storage for later use.

Receipts of butter are ample for current needs. Any marked increase in receipts will result in lower values. The demand is principally for the better grades. Better care of cream and more frequent deliveries will result in better butter and should enhance values.

An over-supply of live poultry in the East is the outstanding feature of the market with lower prices prevailing.

The market for dressed poultry continues in satisfactory condition with good demand at steady prices.

MARSHALL FIELD REVIEW

Marshall Field & Co., in their weekly review of the wholesale dry goods trade say:

Current wholesale distribution of dry goods was somewhat less than a year ago but exceeded considerably the total for last week.

The total orders from road salesmen varied little from the figure for the corresponding period of 1921 but showed a good increase over last week's business. Orders for fall delivery are most satisfactory in volume on blankets and handkerchiefs and are commencing to come in on other fall lines that have only been sampled during the last week.

The number of customers in the market were approximately the same as a year ago.

Collections continue to show the same improvement evidenced during the past few weeks, although they are not quite as satisfactory as a year ago.

DROP IN VALUES COST OHIO FARMERS $58,000,000

COLUMBUS. — Ohio farmers suffered a loss of more than $58,000,000 in 1921, due to decrease in the valuation of livestock, horses and poultry, according to statistics issued by the Ohio Tax Commission Saturday night.

Hogs showed a decrease in valuation of $129,869.98, falling from $246,182.31 in 1920 to $215,312.33 in 1921. Sheep dropped from $172,823.50 to $78,501.64 in the same year.

There were 49,208 fewer cattle on Ohio farms in 1921 than in the previous year, decreasing in value $237,359.92. Poultry dropped fifteen cents each over the yearly period. In 1921 there was $112,078.23 worth of poultry on the farms.

Horses decreased in number from 300,013 in 1920 to 744,577 the next year. The average horse was worth $34.17 in 1921 which was a loss of $6.30 on each animal.

Farmers owned 62,767 mules in 1921, 1219 fewer than the year before, and a decrease in valuation of $4,056.05.

PITTSBURGH MAN SECURES CONTROL OF DESOTA HOTEL

The De Sota hotel, 111 1-2 W. Elm st., will change hands April 3. George S. Ewing, formerly of Pittsburgh, has secured control of the lease and will operate the hotel after that date. The deal was closed Saturday.

Ewing is the husband of Clara East Ewing, former Lima woman and daughter of David East, American-tp.

By the deal, it will bring Mrs. Ewing back to Lima to reside. She is an active worker in the Church of Christ, W. North-st.

CHARGE AGAINST WOMAN CONTINUED TO MARCH 29

Lulu English, residing on the outskirts of the north part of the city was brought into court Saturday upon a warrant sworn to by a relative, Sarah English, who charged the feared Lulu would beat and strike her.

William H. Guyton, justice of the peace, heard part of the testimony and continued the case to March 29. Lulu English pleaded not guilty.

BOY ATTACKED BY FATHER DIES OF RAZOR WOUND

CLEVELAND.—Little hope was held by physicians Saturday night for recovery of Henry Szus, 9, whose throat was slashed with a razor when his father, Frank Szus, ran amuck and attempted to kill other members of the family.

Frank Szus, Jr., 11, Henry's brother, died Saturday morning after being slashed by the father.

Believed to have been crazed because of inability to find employment, the elder Szus cut the throats of his two boys, attempted to kill his wife and two daughters, then ended his own life.

SHALL WE BUILD NOW?

By G. W. SHANAHAN
The Consumers' Fuel and Building Supply Co.

The average citizen of Lima, is, very probably, not aware of the fact that prospects for building are better now than they have been for several past years. The local architects are working over time and contractors tell us that now they are figuring more work than they were asked to bid on during all last year. These conditions do not exist without a reason and the reason is that people who have contemplated building for several years have decided that it is wise not to wait longer.

It is true that freight rates are still high, but it is true also that the mill prices of most materials are lower than they have been for several years. Many people expect a freight reduction sooner or later, but the point is this, any freight reductions which might be granted will not offset the loss of revenue which might be realized from vacant property or other investments which need improvements.

The law of supply and demand regulates the price of building materials, as well as other commodities, and it is very probable that when the huge building program outlined for our country, gets into full swing, the increased prices at the mills will more than offset any reduction in freight rates which might be granted.

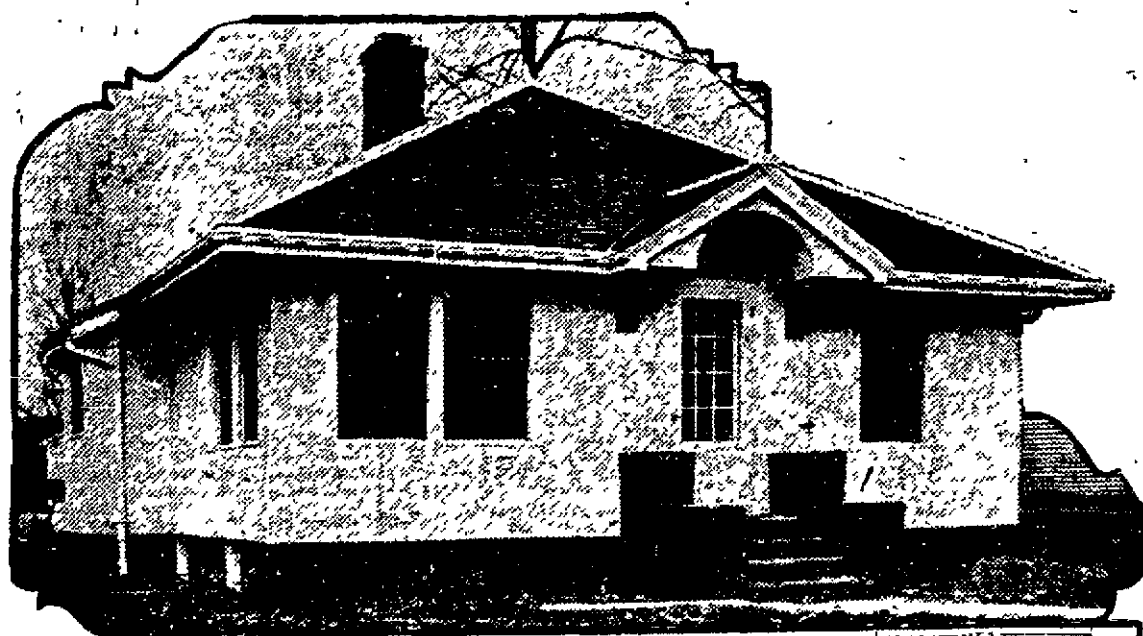

For the reasons outlined above, it is our belief that anyone who has any sort of building plans, should give the matter careful and deep thought. We feel positive that the man who gives serious consideration to this question will decide to proceed with his building operations at once.

At this time "The Consumers" are in a position to give you 100% satisfaction, because the stocks are complete and the organization is capable of giving you "Zip" service. This service does not mean simply the prompt delivery of materials, but every possible aid that the prospective builder requires. "The Consumers" will gladly help you estimate the cost of the materials required for your work and they are glad to offer suggestions when prospective customers come to them with no definite plan in mind. Their "Zip" service even extends beyond the selling and delivery of their materials. "The Consumers" are glad to suggest competent men to do your work and this service relationship does not cease when your account is settled, because they want you to be satisfied not for a day or a month but year after year. They want you to realize that they give you dollar for dollar value.

E. J. Elliott, 127 West Wayne street, roofing and spouting expert, can insure you now prompt service and the best workmanship on all roofing and spouting jobs.

By having your work done now, before the spring rush starts, whether it is on a new home or the old one fixed up, better service can be given. More time can be given to the little incidents that go to make the "Perfect Job."

Doughnuts and Divorce for Her Wedding Breakfast

"All the way to the minister's she saw pictures of Palm Beach and Paris, gold bathtubs and—an expensive wedding breakfast of pheasant's breast and chilled champagne."

A DOUGHNUT—the tough but toothsome kind of doughnut you can buy two-for-a-nickel in any "one arm" restaurant in the land—smashed pretty Peggy Udell's dream of a million-dollar marriage and sent her bounding back to the chorus less than an hour after she became the bride of John W. Montgomery, Jr., just out of college and heir to one of the richest estates in Pennsylvania.

He was six feet, blond, romantic, built like a halfback, handsome as Wally Reid. The night he proposed to Peggy he talked in terms of limousines and diamonds. All the way to the minister's she saw pictures of Palm Beach and Paris, ermine coats, gold bathtubs, pink lingerie and blue chows. The new life, she decided, should begin with an expensive wedding breakfast at the Bellevue-Stratford.

But after the ceremony—"Here's where we all get out!" announced the bridegroom, as the taxi stopped, not at the Bellevue, but before a cafeteria with a window full of pies. "Doughnuts!" ordered Peggy's Cressus. "Doughnuts and coffee for the crowd. It's on me, folks!"

Right there, said Peggy later, was when she began to meditate. Instead of the gilded "life-aver" she thought she was getting, she had been thrown a "sinker." Peggy stared at it—and saw only that stinky hole, ominously prophetic of the future.

That's why, says Peggy, she's back on Broadway now and "Jack" Montgomery is suing for annulment in the Maryland courts. It wasn't as he alleges, a case of too many cocktails and a wild wedding on a bet. Oh, my, no! But, according to Peggy, of too many doughnuts where she had confidently expected pheasant's breasts, African melons, chilled champagne and an unlimited checking account for all the hats and gowns she could buy.

The doughnut anti-climax to her caviar dream particularly peeved Peggy because she had been dreaming that dream such a long, long time—ever since she left the home of her father, Dr. John Unertin, in Milwaukee, and went on the stage and changed her name to Udell.

"I wanted to be an actress something like Sarah Bernhardt," says Peggy, "but I didn't mind starting in the chorus. 'Cause there was many chorus girls as higher-up marry millionaires, don't they? I just knew some day the right fellow would come along."

Waiting—in the chorus—for the right fellow to come along, Peggy discovered was no silk-lined sinecure. Still she kept receptive unwinkingly. Hear her, in "Confessions of a Chorus Girl," dashed off by her press-agent only a few months ago.

"Stay on the level, girls. It pays—even on Broadway. I'm a careful girl. Let me tell you they may be disappointed when you say good-night at the front door, but they respect you for it. Three men have whispered to me about a wonderful apartment and my own car and a uniformed chauffeur, but I couldn't hear them say wedding bells. My advice is, 'Wait for the right fellow.'"

Peggy waited, though it did seem some times as though the right fellow was taking his time. And then, in Philadelphia, Peggy saw a platinum lining to her cloud. Her friend, Diana Adele Gordon, another "pony," had a bid to a little party after the show, and one of the chappies, she informed Peggy, was a 100-proof millionaire. Did Peggy go? Oh, stop your teasing!

Accounts differ as to exactly what happened after Peggy Udell's sparkling eyes were introduced to the football shoulders, the six feet of blond good looks—and the million-dollar conversation—of young John W. Montgomery, Jr.

There was a midnight supper party at a cozy little cafe. There was, according to Mr. Montgomery, round after round of cocktails. But there wasn't, according to Peggy and her front-row chum, so much as a slightly tipsy person in the group. Everybody was just "jolly," "congenial," "high-spirited," having a "wonderful," but a "sober time."

"Jack started making love to me from the very first. He said he was infatuated. He told me all about his home at Bellevue, his automobiles and everything. Let's get married," he begged. I decided he was a nice fellow. I believed the right man at last had come along. So, when the others began to kid us and my girl friend said, 'I dare you to!'—well, I was game and so was Jack."

Six couples piled into a taxicab outside the restaurant in the chill darkness of 1 o'clock in the morning and said to the driver, "Elkton, James!" So Peggy's journey to a million-dollar marriage began.

It was cold in the taxi, but she never knew it. In imagination she was basking at Miami, in Florida sunshine and a scarlet silk bathing suit. The shiny leather seat on which she sat became a luxurious divan in a pink-and-silver boudoir. The taxi was first a limousine smoothly gliding along Fifth avenue and next a white yacht dipping through blue and golden seas. She could hear a constant jingling noise; it was a loose nut on the tin hood, but to Peggy it sounded like stacks of silver and gold.

She was still dreaming when the taxi reached Elkton; still dreaming when the license clerk was roused from sleep; still dreaming when the Rev. Daniel Forbes Lockable, red-eyed and yawning, declared them man and wife at 6 o'clock in the morning; still dreaming when the wedding party bundled into the taxi again and, her head snuggled against her millionaire husband's shoulder, she saw the outskirts of Philadelphia, gray and drab in the early sunshine.

The taxicab slowed to a stop. At that moment Peggy, in drowsy fancy, was tripping into the bridal suite at the Bellevue-Stratford. Her handsome husband was turning to the waiting mental to order an ambrosial breakfast. "And be sure the champagne's frapped, Jenkins," murmured Peggy sleepily—when a voice rudely shattered the pretty web she was weaving and dreaming Peggy woke up.

"Here's where we all get out!" Peggy got out. She blinked her eyes. She rubbed them. For a moment she believed she was having a nightmare instead of a dream. For the facade of her fairy-land hotel had faded to a big window painted with white letters and containing a sign that said:

"Doughnuts and Coffee—10c."

Before Peggy knew it she was being pushed inside the swinging door and past a sniffling young woman who poked a pasteboard check into her hand. Ahead of her stretched an all too familiar row of chairs with only one arm to each chair.

Peggy stopped. Peggy protested. Peggy looked indignantly at her millionaire husband and Peggy's millionaire husband looked back at Peggy with cold and unyielding eyes. It was then Peggy's million-dollar dream oozed out of her system so fast she felt faint. The last shred of it had disappeared by the time she bit one bite out of her doughnut and sipped a single sip of her bitter "Boston" coffee. A bridal breakfast in "a one-arm joint"—it was too much!

"If this is the life of a millionaire's wife, it's the chorus for mine!" snapped out Peggy. And the chorus for hers it was. She left immediately for Baltimore to join her show.

Soon after she returned and was playing in Baltimore she was served with the papers in young Montgomery's suit for annulment. He alleged he had been lured into the marriage "by connivance and deceit," being so intoxicated during the ceremony he didn't know whether the minister was standing up or sitting down.

"Is that so?" remarked Peggy, when she had read this charge. "Is that so? Well, if he was intoxicated then, he was awfully, disgustingly sober an hour later when he steered me into that one-arm cafe and handed me a doughnut and one 'drawn in the dark!' Huh! What did he think he was—the Salvation Army?"

When London's Most Mysterious Mansion Was Raided

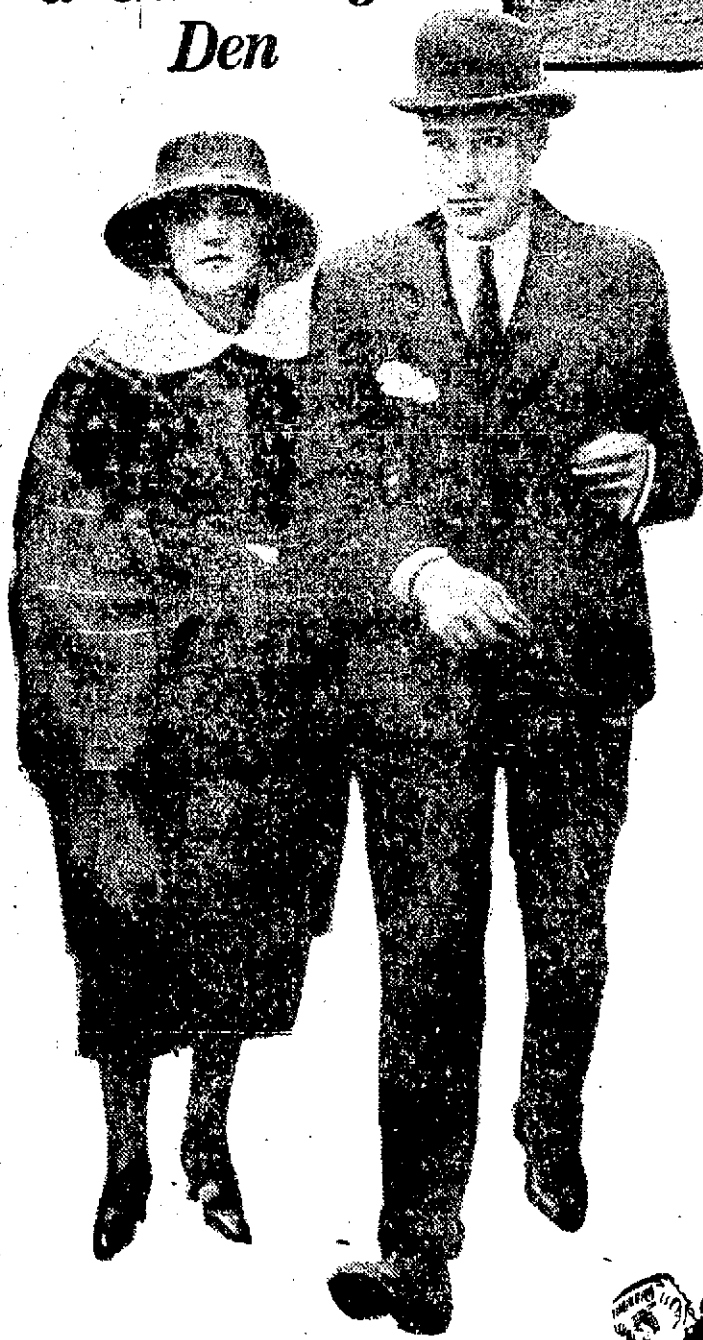

Down the Secret Passage the Bobbies Chopped Their Way and Revealed That the Home of Unsuspecting Viscount Galway Was Converted Into a Gambling Den

Baron Monckton, Seventh Viscount of Galway.

The Stately Banquet Hall in the Viscount's London Mansion Through Which the Raiding Bobbies Charged en Masse.

David Falcke and His Wife, Who Posed as a Society Leader, Arriving at Marlborough Police Station After the Sensational Raid.

LONDON.

THE most historic homes in London, including stately old mansions of the nobility, with secret passages and underground chambers dating back to the romantic era when poison and dagger flourished with love and murder in circles of the gentry, to-day are being used as secret gambling clubs by British society.

It is a far cry from gallants in doublet and hose to the sleek croupier of 1922 and the modern Piccadilly "bouncer," but the sudden police raid on the town house of Viscount Galway, one of Great Britain's most distinguished peers, has turned back the pages of history two hundred years.

For in this hoary mansion, outwardly so respectable, agents from Scotland Yard unearthed an amazing situation. Chopping down massive doors blackened and scarred by time, they discovered a secret corridor paved with worn flagging and leading by a tortuous spiral staircase to a subterranean room, apparently a dungeon.

But here, where swashbuckling Jacobites may have once plotted to place a Stuart King on England's throne, was the complete equipment for a miniature Monte Carlo. Roulette wheels and baccarat tables in place of sword and dagger; men and women feverishly watching the spin of a wheel instead of nobles duelling by candlelight; upstairs, in lieu of wandering minstrels, a jazz band to furnish the camouflage of a private dance—this was the strange change time had wrought.

The raid and its remarkable revelation was as much of a surprise to the Viscount as it was to the police. George Edmund Milnes Monckton-Arundell, C. B., seventh Viscount of Galway, former aide-de-camp to Queen Victoria, had owned his handsome Mayfair home for years without suspecting its mysterious annex. Going to the Riviera for golf, he had authorized his agents to lease the house for six months.

A short time after the new tenants moved in the police got a tip from an Oxford undergraduate, who confessed to his shocked father, one of Viscount Galway's best friends, that he had thrown away his monthly allowance in a West End gambling house catering almost exclusively to youthful customers, many of them flappers of fifteen.

That night two inspectors from Scotland Yard lingered in the shadow of the elm trees across the street from 48, Portland Place. In an area-moment the double door creaked open, revealing the haughty face of a butler.

Sleuths and bobbies bowed him over. Through a second door they sped, across the polished elegance of the main reception hall and up the grand staircase, with its golden balustrade, its steps of Carrara marble and the Grecian urns on each pillar.

The scene that greeted them at the top was innocence itself. A dozen or more couples ploughed about the big ballroom in the latest variation of the fox trot. In one of the window seats, chatting animatedly, sat a cutie not many years out of kindergarten and a lad whose chubby cheeks and Eton collar proclaimed his age—or lack of it. Several "stags," none of them far from the fawn age, loafed against the wall, puffing precocious cigarettes. And, mincing toward the intruders from the direction of the jazz orchestra, came an older man, whose face wore an expression of polite but disapproving inquiry. He was accompanied by a young woman in dazzling evening costume. Dancing master and chaperone they looked to a "T."

For a moment the chief inspector was nonplussed. But he had been told to expect camouflage of this sort, and a quick glance when he first entered had detected certain suspicious signs, not the least of which was the air of forced nonchalance on the part of the "stags."

Over the dignified protests of the "hosts" the raiders began a search. Nothing in the ballroom but palpitating flappers and their acquies. Nothing in the rooms opening out from it but the fine old furniture, ancestral portraits, antiques and heirlooms of Viscount Galway.

It was on one of the antiques that the chief inspector's eye finally rested and stopped—a huge Chinese screen painted in gold and crimson dragons, reaching from floor almost to the ceiling at one end of the ballroom.

that echoed hollowly under the heels of the officers, just as it may have echoed two hundred years before to the boots of Stuart hotspurs.

A second door, massive as the first, fell beneath the axes and revealed a spiral staircase winding downward at the very back of the house. Inspectors and bobbies were not halfway in the descent when the roar of a motor outside announced that the birds had flown. They had to content themselves with the nest. And a gilded nest they found it.

The secret staircase they discovered ended in a subterranean chamber which, so old was the house, might have been built as a refuge for Royalist plotters in the early eighteenth century. Of the many changes the ancient mansion experienced in years of repairing and rebuilding, none was stranger than the one that came to it when Viscount Galway decided to go pleasureing to the Riviera.

Baccarat tables, roulette wheels, poker chips, shoes, rakes, decks of cards, ivory counters—all the paraphernalia of a gambling establishment as complete, on a minor scale, as the Deauville Casino offers—were scattered about the room. One table was overturned. Chips were on the floor where they had fallen. Several bottles of champagne, a smashed wine glass and a girl's silver slipper at the foot of the staircase testified to the hasty departure of the players.

Besides the exit by the secret staircase, a trapdoor in the floor of the chamber gave onto still another subterranean corridor leading to the old-fashioned coach-house in the back yard. If any one had prisonment, and Mrs. Brisley was fined £200 or two months' imprisonment.

But the sensation caused by the raid did not stop there. Falcke, by shouldering all responsibility for the gambling paraphernalia, secured the release of his rich young customers. They were not even taken in charge by the officers, but—in a gust of giggles, tears and anxious predictions of what the next day would bring—motored off into the night. Since then young Oxford and flapper Mayfair have been in a flurry of fear as gossip brought first one name and then another to parental ears.

Meantime the raid set many wheels in motion. Falcke was declared at his trial to be conducting not less than six such gambling houses in the West End; the prosecution charged him with being a member of an international syndicate that financed these gilded dens and, where reckless young bloods did not patronize them, catered particularly to wealthy American tourists lured thither from as far away as Paris and Rome. In case after case, it was asserted, the vacant home of a peer had been leased, a number of them having the same sort of secret passages and chambers as Viscount Galway's.

Even now Scotland Yard is said to be planning a series of raids which may unearth, in the halls where the Jacobites once toasted blithely the divine right of kings, feverish groups of men and women panting over roulette and baccarat, while above them a blind is furnished by the blare and bang of jazz.

way not a pebble's toss away six bobbies waited with nightsticks and axes.

It was after midnight before the curbstone cluster of taxicabs, plus one or two limousines and several snappy little racing cars, told the detectives the time was ripe. A silent signal to the bluecoats and, before any possible lookout could raise the alarm, the raiders had dashed across the street and up the stone steps of Viscount Galway's stately mansion.

Their progress was barred by an iron portcullis—tough meat for police axes. Impatiently the chief inspector rang a long peal on the doorbell and hammered at the gate. Only silence answered him until, from the shuttered second story, suddenly jingled the music of a jazz band. The next remained in the room when the raid was made he had escaped that way to a waiting automobile, the police decided.

They arrested "host" and "hostess." The former, David Falcke, was identified as "one of the most inveterate gamblers and gaming-house keepers in London." The latter, Mrs. Marjory Beryl Brisley, fashionably gowned and beautiful, had leased the Galway mansion from the Viscount's agents by posing as a society leader. Falcke was sentenced to six months' im-

Mrs. Willie Vanderbilt's Startling Midnight Entrance

Fifth Avenue Gaped, and Bored Society Got a Thrill When She Declared a One-Hour Truce and Rejoined Her Husband, After Years of Separation, at Their Daughter Muriel's Party throng. With one accord it turned toward the entrance.

The intense hush lasted but a few seconds. Then well-bred convention overcame amazement. The flow of conversation resumed, but with a new undertone. Mrs. Vanderbilt hadn't quivered an eyelash. Muriel was absolutely "normal." Mrs. Whitney and Consuelo, moving over to give "Birdie" her place, turned masked faces to the curious gazes confronting them everywhere. One could never have told, from outward indications, that this was the first public reunion of the family of William K. Vanderbilt, 2d, in the memory of many of those present!

What did it "mean?" Society would have given a good deal to know on the night of Muriel's ball. Society still would give much to know.

The favorite citation by intimates of Mr. and Mrs. "Willie" is that there is no "meaning" whatever. The parents of Muriel had simply "agreed to agree" temporarily for Muriel's sake and the sake of her "party." It was, so to speak, a one-evening armistice. That was all. But society is far from satisfied. Rumors of reconciliation have been reborn; rumors that Muriel sprang the surprise on her father; rumors that Mrs. "Willie" sprang it herself because she "simply wasn't going to be left out"; rumors, rumors, and still more rumors.

Thus far, however, they are merely that—rumors. And, unless something even more dramatic than Mrs. Vanderbilt's midnight entrance shall occur, the cause of her appearance at her husband's ball seems likely to take its place with the cause of their separation—as a mystery of which not even society itself knows the solution.

Miss Muriel Vanderbilt, One of the World's Wealthiest Heiresses.

(C) Paul Thompson.

Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, 2d.

In the ornate entrance to the Crystal Room of the Hotel Ritz-Carlton, just as midnight was striking, appeared Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, 2d—beautiful, gorgeously gowned, bearing herself with that faint blend of graciousness and hauteur becoming one of the richest and most aristocratic leaders of the New York super-200.

Poised an instant on the threshold, she made a charming picture. Yet that, in itself, was not sufficient to prompt the staccato whispers which immediately broke from the entire company of the two hundred chosen, assembled for the dinner dance Mrs. Vanderbilt's multi-millionaire husband was giving in honor of their daughter, Muriel, "ace" debutante of recent seasons.

Every eye followed Mrs. Vanderbilt in her serene, measured progress across the polished floor. The guests seemed to be waiting breathlessly for some astounding event to happen. But, reaching her destination, Mrs. Vanderbilt smiled at Muriel, nodded to her husband, and calmly took her place beside him in the receiving line.

That was all. The waiting guests moved forward; the group of three bowed and smiled brightly on each newcomer; laughter and chatter rippled forth again; it was as though the tense moment of silence had never existed at all.

Yet underneath the light surface tongues of dowagers and beaux and debutantes raced without restraint. They clicked in every corner; they clanked in every group out of earshot of the ones most concerned. That simple entrance of the beautiful Mrs. "Willie" Vanderbilt startled society more than the explosion of a bombshell—and started a train of gossip from Fifth avenue to Palm Beach that is humming yet.

To understand the "why" of this, one must understand first the peculiar matrimonial situation prevailing in this particularly famous branch of the famous Vanderbilt family.

William K. Vanderbilt, 2d, now head of the patrician house founded five generations ago by the rugged Commodore, has been separated from his wife for years. They are not divorced, but her home at No. 666 Fifth avenue and his around the corner on a cross street, though less than a block apart, are as widely divided as the poles so far as domestic harmony is concerned.

Society has known this for so long that the rift in the marriage—considered merely as such—is passe gossip, though once it was the sensation of Newport and Manhattan drawing rooms. That, however, was in the old days when "Willie" Vanderbilt and "Birdie" were considered a model of conjugal bliss.

He was twenty, a student at Yale, when he married "Birdie" Fair, daughter of the late Senator Fair, of California, one of the really great "forty-niners." She was beautiful, thoroughbred, rich in her own right, as much in love with "Willie" as he was with her. And that was quite madly.

Both families applauded the match. Even the hard-crusted called it ideal. But, some time after the birth of their three children—Muriel, Consuelo and William, 3d—society was surprised to hear that Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt had parted. There was no divorce, no scandal. Mrs. Vanderbilt was a devout Catholic. Besides, she had always frowned on the rather frequent divorces in her husband's family, including his father's from Alva Smith Vanderbilt and that of his sister, Consuelo, from the Duke of Marlborough.

The gossips, try as they might—and did—got no information beyond their brief announcement that Mrs. Vanderbilt was "at home" on the avenue and Mr. Vanderbilt had established bachelor quarters on Fifth second street. The children were with their mother, but saw their father at intervals. And that, it appeared, was the only remaining tie binding Mr. and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, 2d.

Society got used to the separation. Chronic rumors of a reconciliation came to nothing; likewise occasional reports that Mrs. Vanderbilt, overcoming her religious scruples, was to get a divorce after all. She went her way; he went his. When, as sometimes happened, they were obliged to meet socially, they carried it off courteously, but coolly. Society came to regard the Vanderbilts, agreeably separated, as complacently as once it regarded the Vanderbilts agreeably married. And the reason for it all remained one of those enticing mysteries which every wisacre could reveal "if he only dared tell"—and somehow never did!

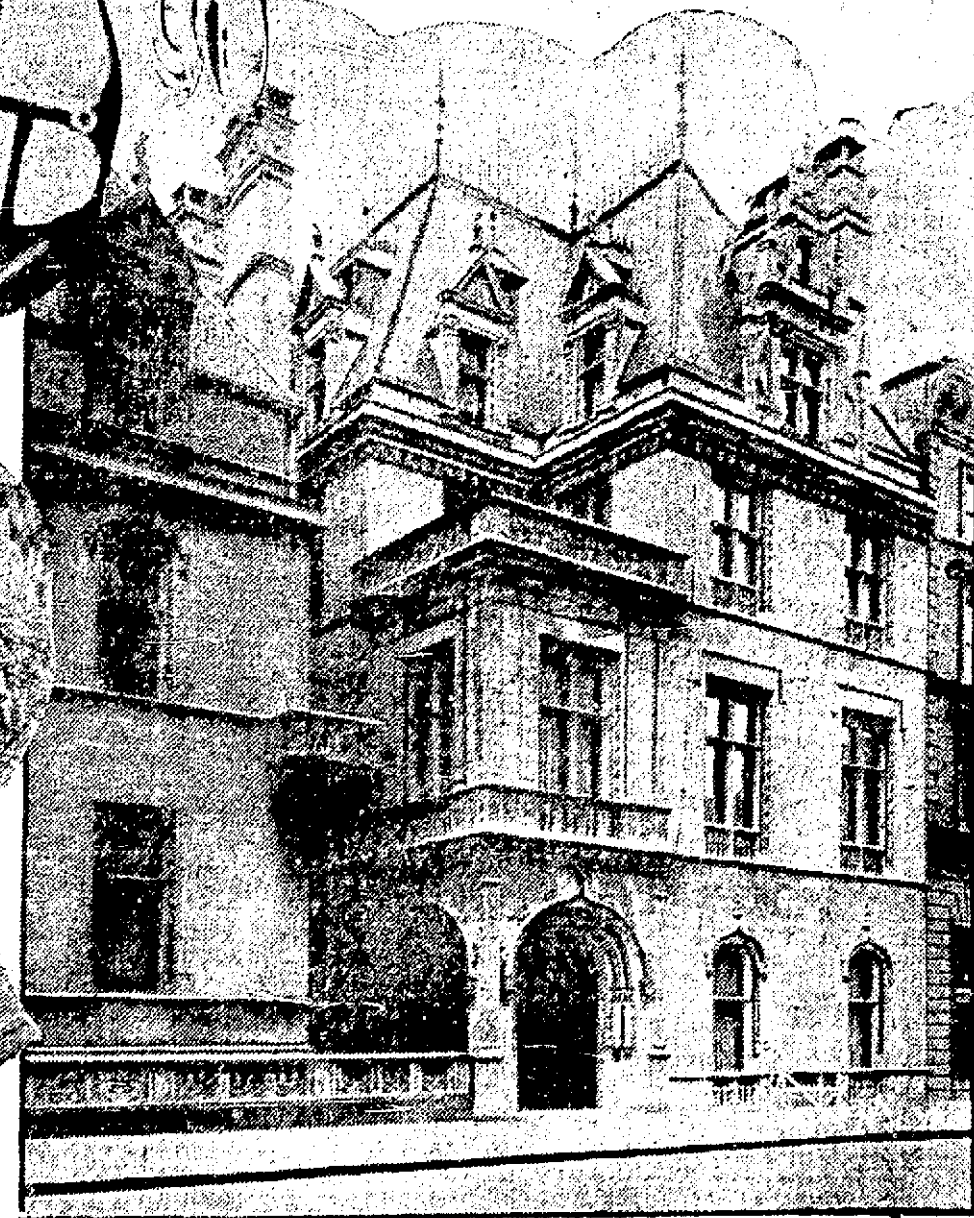

Under the circumstances, nobody was surprised when William K. Vanderbilt, 2d, was absent from the receiving line at the "coming out" ball Mrs. "Willie" Vanderbilt gave for Muriel. Though the newspapers and society journals bristled with accounts of this elaborate function, and though Muriel, one of the richest heiresses in the world, was unanimously voted the distinction of "ranking bud" of the season, nobody commented even casually on Mr. Vanderbilt's minor role in his daughter's introduction to society. Nobody thought to. His part—or lack of part—was simply in keeping with the rules of the private little war Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt had been conducting for so many years.

For the same reason, when Mr. Vanderbilt decided to give a party of his own for Muriel, the possibility of Mrs. Vanderbilt appearing on the scene was anticipated by no one. Certainly none of the two hundred guests, representing the cream of the social fog, imagined for a moment that "Birdie" would be there as a hostess. Sooner would the assemblage have expected Princess Mary in the receiving line.

Conceive, then, the amazement of the guests when twelve o'clock chimed in the Crystal Room of the Ritz. One moment the brilliantly lighted ballroom was seething with movement and conversation as gay groups eddied about the spot where Mr. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Muriel and her younger sister, Consuelo, stood to receive the guests. The next—sudden paralysis seemed to have descended on the Photograph of the Leopard Skin with Its Strange Hood and Talons of Tempered Iron, Used by the "Leopard Men" to Stalk Their Girl Victims.

AN African jungle at break of dawn! Beside the trail to the village lies the body of a white girl. The throat is slashed. The heart is torn out. Across her back run four deep crimson gashes—apparently the mark of fiercely ripping claws.

What did this frightful killing? Lion, tiger or some other jungle beast thirsting for human blood or else surprised at the water hole and pouncing upon the intruder in a frenzy of fear?

No. Not in this particular section of the west coast, where impenetrable forests separate the black Republic of Liberia, only American colony in the world, from the British possession of Sierra Leone, called by historians "the white man's grave."

There the slashed throat, the missing heart, and the four-pronged furrow cruelly carved in the flesh, can mean but one thing—

The "Leopard Men," most dreaded and mysterious brotherhood in the world, have struck again. Another initiate has learned the terrible secrets; another victim has been added to the long murder roll of this sinister society that has made life in the interior of Liberia a reign of terror.

Death had leaped out of the forest on this young girl in the form of a savage disguised in a dozen adroit ways to resemble a leopard—the spotted skin drawn tight above his head, his teeth sharpened, iron claws riveted on his hands, his eyeballs aflame, arms and legs fastening upon her in one sinewy spring. An instant's glimpse of this demon rushing out of the night, a gurgling scream suddenly cut short—then shuddering silence.

For years Liberia and Sierra Leone have been cursed by this league of maniacal cannibals. No one knows how many women have been wantonly slaughtered. "The Leopard Men" have desolated villages and cowed whole provinces. No one knows who their leaders are—they include the educated and the prominent along with the jungle savage. American missionaries have narrowly escaped their clutches. Each day sees the strength of the society swell with its menace.

At last, so powerful has the order become and so daring in its forays for victims, that the President of Liberia has called upon the legislature, the church missions, the various consulates and all officialdom to combine in one supreme effort to war upon the "Leopard Men," track them down, expose their grim secrets, burn their hidden jungle temples (scenes of cannibal rites), and stamp out for all time the deadliest enemy to the march of civilization the dark continent has ever known.

"Women and children are carried into the bush, indescribably tormented, and finally killed and eaten," declared President King in his last legislative message. "We must eradicate this hideous menace to save Liberia."

Word now comes to the United States

At Right—Miss Lois M. Ford, of Harrisburg, Pa., a Nurse at the American Mission at Cape Mount, Liberia, on the Edge of the Jungle.

Rev. E. L. Haines, of New York City, One of the American Missionaries Who Volunteered to Help the Liberian Government in Its War to Stamp Out the Leopard Society.

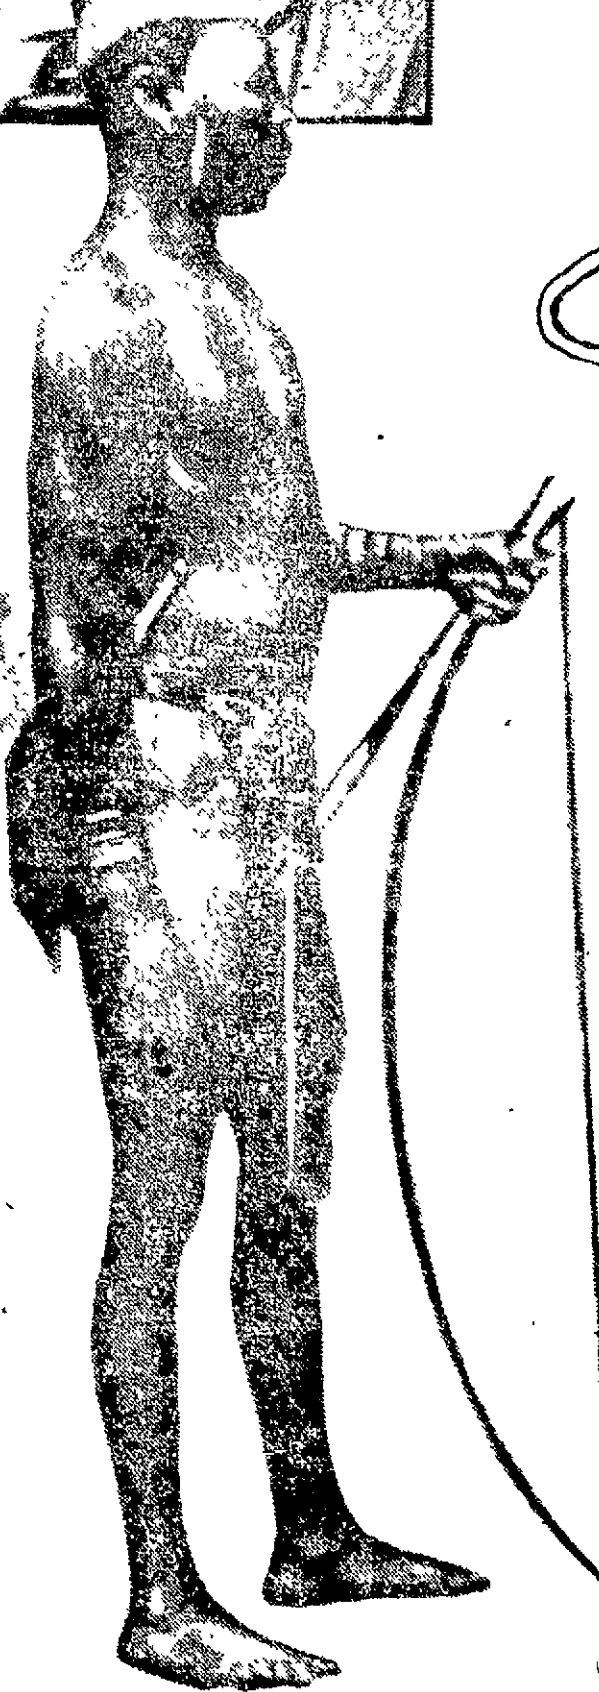

from the Episcopal mission at Monrovia that a small group of white Americans—including such leading missionaries as Bishop Walter H. Overs, Rev. William H. Ramsaur, Ellis H. Robinson, Rev. E. L. Haines, Miss Lois M. Ford (a nurse), Miss M. S. Ridgely and Miss Emily de W. Seaman—are to play a major role in the desperate drive against cannibalism.

"Miss Ford is at Cape Mount, on the edge of the jungle," writes one of them. "Haines and Rev. Francis B. Barrett, just arrived, have started for the impenetrable Montserrado forest, where only two white men have ever gone before. We are carrying the cross, but—they tell us it may come to guns."

From such letters home, from President King's official proclamation, and from the reports of British explorers who have encountered the "Leopard Men" hand to hand, the American reader gets a vivid and thrilling insight into the dark rites and darker crimes of this ghastly and ghostly society.

Human blood is the fetish of the "Leopard Men," for they have but one god—the leopard—and they believe that when they have slain and eaten man they become as leopards themselves.

This ruling superstition, drilled into them through centuries of voodoo worship, explains the peculiar atrocity of "Leopard men murders"—the sudden raid in the night, which the natives dread as they do the devil, the discovery in the dawnlight of the dead body so terribly and significantly marked.

Type of African Savage Recruited by the Leopard Society for Its Rapidly Growing Membership.

"Death Leaped Out of the Forest on This Young Girl in the Form of a Savage with Spotted Skin Drawn Tight Above His Head, His Teeth Sharpened, Iron Claws Riveted on His Hands, Eyeballs Aflame, Arms and Legs Fastening Upon Her in One Sinewy Spring."

Where membership in the clan is not sought, it is forced. Young men picked by the witch doctors of the brotherhood are lured to the jungle temples and there subjected to a combination of magic and torture that sends them forth to kill, goaded by terror and superstition.

Their prey must be a woman—preferably young and beautiful. And she must be killed as the leopard kills—struck down from behind in the darkness, her flesh torn by the teeth, her heart removed, her back branded by the telltale claws.

No white man has ever penetrated the mysterious "Leopard Circle," but Harry Charles Luke, of Trinity College, Oxford, England, obtained from a renegade, while he was secretary to the governor of Sierra Leone, a description of the cruel rites of the dread society.

"The mark of the leopard is left on the victim by a four-pronged claw, patterned after a leopard's claw," he says. "The slayer is hooded with a leopard's skin and his hands are encased in the claws, made of tempered iron. He must eat the meat; the fat is boiled into a medicine called 'missi,' with which his forehead and hands are anointed, and the heart is cut up and made into 'bafina,' a sacred substance on which he swears an oath as binding as any sworn on the bones of the saints in the middle ages."

Then Mr. Luke quotes the crude English translation of the motto of this cannibal crew: "Man beef sweet past all other beef."

Having killed, having eaten, having bathed his hands and face in the potion cooked from human flesh; having, as a climax, sworn on the heart of the woman he has slain, the "Leopard Man" novice is admitted to full membership. He has, the creed of the cult proclaims, exchanged his soul for the soul of a beast. He is, from that time on, a leopard—a human leopard.

Another harrowing trait of the "Leopard Men" is described by a writer in the Geographical Journal, of London, in an article recounting the British Government's expedition against the cannibals ravaging the hinterland of Sierra Leone.

That they may simulate a leopard in every particular, he says, they file their teeth to a point. Then, with their own fangs, they strip away the flesh as the leopard does.

The same writer, who spent two years in the cannibal Kasai country of the Belgian Congo, paints a disheartening picture of the perils to be encountered in any attempt to break up the strongholds of the Human Leopards.

"With pigmy scouts armed with poisoned arrows, the trail is posted," he writes. "Elaborate ambushes are prepared—poisoned spikes camouflaged with thickets of green. The cannibals set traps, and they are not above baiting them with live babies, shrewdly knowing the European will not be so heartless as to abandon an infant apparently deserted in the forest. But, one step forward, and rescuer and babe alike are pierced with poisoned arrows shot from a catapult on the order of a spring gun."

Such is the barbarous order which the Liberian government has pledged itself to wipe out. The task it faces is blood-chilling, for it is a handful against a legion. Liberia was settled more than a hundred years ago by the American Colonization Society, which sent over several shiploads of repatriated slaves. Gradually the number of American negroes returning to Africa increased. Towns sprang up on the coast, dubbed with such American names as Monrovia—after President Monroe—Mount Vaughan, Georgiaville, Baltimore and the like. Missionaries came, schools were established, churches founded. The "only American colony" became a republic, ruled by ex-slaves and their children.

Yet to-day there are only 12,000 of these civilized Liberians clinging to the coastline, while the "bush" holds more than a million natives over whom the "Society of Leopards" tightens its fearful thrall. Professor Frederick Starr, of the University of Chicago, well illustrates the picture when he takes for comparison the State of Ohio, which has about the same area as Liberia, and one of its towns, Bellaire, with a population of 12,000. He says:

"Divide the people of Bellaire into ten or twelve little settlements along the shore of Lake Erie. Now put along the shore about 30,000 ignorant fishermen, then fill the country of Ohio lying back with a million wild Indians—and you have about the problem of Liberia."

THE RIDER OF GOLDEN BAR

BY WILLIAM PATTERSON WHITE

At which Felix lost his patience and his head and gave Jerry the bum's rush thru the door-way. Jerry skidded across the sidewalk and said a yard on his nose. He sat up, supporting himself on a wavering elbow and squallied "Yah-you-sure-didn't-thu-think I'm gus-gonna-lub-for you num-no longer! If you did-don't gus-gonna plenty num-money, I'm gus-gonna tell folks hoy-yub-yub-lub-held up the sush-stage-yourselves all dressed up in Bill Wingo's clothes who you could throw the hub-blame on him!" Most certainly then the gambler would have put a bullet thru Jerry Fern had not Shotgun Shillman and Riley Tyler been too quick for him. "Now, now, Felix, calm down," suggested Shotgun.

"He's a liar!" foamed Felix, struggling to jerk his gun at free. "I never held up the stage! Bill Wingo did it himself! Ask Sam Larder!"

"Was Sam there, too?" said Riley, with fresh interest. "Here, Sam wait a minute."

Sam Larder regarded the muzzle of Riley's gun. "All right," said Sam Larder.

CHAPTER XVIII

The district attorney, having looked carefully to the fastenings of his windows, tucked a six-shooter under his pillow and began to unlatch his shoes. Came a rapping at his chamber door.

"That you, Rale?" inquired a muffled voice.

"Yes? Come in! Come in!" Jack Murray entered quickly.

"What in hell are you doing here?" demanded the district attorney. "Don't you know—"

"I wanted to see you," Jack Murray said, seating himself in the nearest chair. "I suppose you got the money for that note."

"No, I haven't."

"Kind of thought you'd stick to that 'perjury squeal,'" smiled Jack Murray, fishing a folded paper from a shirt pocket. "So I took care before I came here to write down what I know about this ill deal—What's that?"

"That" was a rapping on the kitchen door.

"Go in the bedroom," whispered the district attorney with a very pale face.

On his demand that the caller declare himself, a voice whispered, "It's me, Guerilla Melody. Let me in quick."

The district attorney unlocked the kitchen door and opened it.

A tall man pushed in at once. The tall man had a sardonic gleam in his gray eyes, a ragged brown beard, and a derring. The twin-barreled firearm was pointing directly at the stomach of the district attorney.

The tall, brown-bearded man shot out a quick left hand and deftly twitched away the district attorney's weapon.

"Arthur," said Billy, "I've been hearing bad reports of you. I understand you've decided to have Miss Walton arrested. Is that correct?"

"Correct, sure. Sorry, but the law's the law, you know."

"Suppose I can prove that Dan Sike was at Miss Walton's the night Rale Tuckleton was murdered. Would that help any?"

"You can't prove it."

"In the first place," said Billy, "I know he didn't kill Tuckleton."

"Then why are you trying to prove he did?"

"Just to see what you'd say. Just to see how dead set against investigating Sike you are. Just to doubt."

Being purely an American product, there are no import duties. Mazola costs only about half as much as imported olive oil. As it keeps indefinitely, it can be used to the very last drop.

French Dressing
8 tablespoons Mazola ¼ teaspoon Salt
3 tablespoons Lemon Juice or Vinegar
1 teaspoon Sugar ½ teaspoon Cayenne
Mix dry ingredients. Add Mazola and lemon juice or vinegar and beat until creamy. This dressing may be made in larger quantities and kept in a bottle and shaken as used. Some add a dash of mustard or Worcestershire sauce to flavor.

ground it some, and then you—Rale, you rat, I've got you right where you can't even wiggle."

Billy leaned across the table to emphasize what he was saying. He heard a slight sound in the bedroom and promptly blew out the lamp.

With a heave of one arm he slammed the table over on the district attorney. The latter, taking the table to his bosom, went over backward, together with the chair he sat in, and wallowed on the floor.

Both guns exploded simultaneously. What happened next has never been clear in Billy's mind. He only knows that his head rang like a struck bell at the shot, and burning powder grains stung his ear and neck. He fired blind. A voice above his head cried aloud on the name of God, a hot and sweaty body collapsed upon him, and he dragged himself out from under precisely in time to glimpse the district attorney who, having torn open the door into the hall, was silhouetted for an instant against the dim radiance emanating from the kitchen.

Billy hunched his right shoulder, took a snaphot, and drove an accurate bullet thru the right leg of the district attorney.

"He's comin' around," said Shotgun Shillman. "Now he'll be an invalid nuisance for a while, like Rale."

"What's Jack trying to do?" Riley Tyler asked. "Here, take that out of your mouth!"

It was Billy who reached Jack Murray first. He snatched the wadded ball of paper from Jack before he could close his teeth over it. Billy smoothed out the crumpled wad. It appeared to be a letter and a promissory note.

Billy read: Judge Hiram Donelson, Hillsville.

Dear Sir: The man who killed Rale Tuckleton is the county prosecutor Arthur Rale. Rale owed Tuckleton five thousand dollars on a note and couldn't pay it. Rale wanted his money. Early in the evening on the day he was killed, Tuckleton came to Rale's house where I was at the time, and demanded payment. He brought the note with him. Rale refused and they quarreled. Tuckleton had been drinking. Before Tuckleton left he said he was going to the Walton ranch. After he left, Rale told me he had planned some time ago to kill Tuckleton and get the note back at the first opportunity. This looked like a good opportunity. Rale showed me a butcher knife. He said it was just like one at the Walton ranch. He had cut Tom Walton's initials on the handle so it would be like it. Rale said he had tried to get the original knife, but had not been able to. This one he had fixed up had to do. He said when his knife was found on Rale's body, everybody would think Hazel Walton had killed him, and nobody would believe her if she said the knife wasn't hers. He asked me to go with him. I went, and we hung around Walton's till Tuckleton came out, and then we followed him, and Rale stuck the knife in him a couple of times. When Tuckleton was dead, Rale took the note out of Tuckleton's pocketbook, and I held Rale up and took the note away from him.

Here is the note he took off Tuckleton.

Yours truly, JACK MURRAY.

Billy handed the letter and the Rale note to Shotgun Shillman, who folded both carefully and slipped them into an inner pocket of his vest.

"Well," observed Sam Prescott, "folks will be sending Bill to Congress next."

"Yes," asserted his daughter, "now that the grand jury have indicted Craft, Larder, Murray, and Rale, there isn't anything left of the Crocker county ring but the hole."

"Maybe now Hazel will make it up with him."

"Maybe." With some indifference. "Shucks, and he used to like you, Sally Jane."

"But I never liked him—enough." This with more indifference.

Hazel Walton, sewing in the front room, saw a rider coming up the draw. "That looks like Bill's horse," she muttered. "And Bill's hat, it—is Bill!"

Her heart began to pound. Her throat constricted. There was something the matter with her knees.

Billy Wingo came on. He came quite close—within twenty yards and stopped his horse and rested his hands on the saddle horn, and looked at the house. Just looked.

Suddenly Bill pulled his hat forward and picked up his reins. She saw his heel move. The horse began to turn. It was then that something snapped in Hazel's breast. Strength came to her shaking knees. She sprang to her feet, ran to the door, flung it open and dashed out. Billy's startled horse shied away. Billy dragged him back with a jerk.

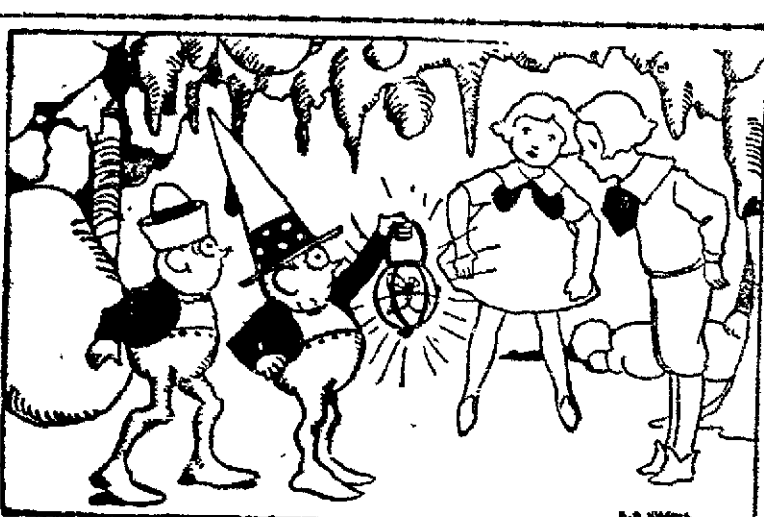

Six feet from the horse Hazel stopped and stood very straight, her arms stiff at her sides. Her knees began to shake again. She knew that her voice would tremble. It did. "Bill, I—I've changed my mind. I was wrong. I—you—you did the right thing to see it thru. If—if you hadn't, I don't know what would have become of me."

Then, of a sudden, he was off his horse, his arms were around her, and she knew that all her troubles were over.

THE END

UNDER THE QUICKSAND

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Just then Mr. Pim Pim held up his fiery lantern.

It didn't look like quicksand, the ground below the Glass Mountain looked as nice and smooth and firm as the sand along the seashore. Nancy and Nick, still clutching the phonograph record, stepped off the Glass Mountain to the plain below, never suspecting a thing.

But instantly they sank into it up to their knees, for under the top it was as thin and sticky as mud. Before they could move, almost, it was up to their necks, and in another watch-tick it had quite closed over the tops of their heads.

Then something odd happened. Instead of choking they found they could breathe nicely, and instead of being wet and muddy, they were surrounded by dry, warm air. But it was dark! They hadn't an idea where they were.

All at once they heard someone saying in a high pipey voice: "What did you do then, Kip?"

"Well," came the reply. "It's a long story, Mr. Pim Pim, but as I was sitting in the corner of the scary chimney, a voice came up out of the room and said—"

"Flash!" Mr. Pim Pim's voice answered. "Somebody's here. Maybe he is spying. It might be Crook-bone, the wicked gnome."

Nancy grabbed Nick. "Oh!" she laughed. "It's dear kind Mr. Pim Pim, the king of the Brownies. We're down in Brownieland, Nick."

Just then Mr. Pim Pim held up his fiery lantern and came peering into the darkness.

"Why, bless my soul!" he cried.

MOTHER!

Clean Child's Bowels with "California Fig Syrup"

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup."

If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, a teaspoonful will never fail to open the bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste from the tender, little bowels and gives you a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Adv.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST CONSERVERS OF PROPERTY — PAINT AND VARNISH

Save the surface and you save all — Paint & Varnish

Don't let it go another day!

FOR weeks—months—perhaps years—you have been saying to yourself, "One of these days I must have that painting done." But as some one said, "One of these days is none of these days." Not until the thought is translated into action, is deterioration definitely checked.

Inside, too. Think of the floors and furniture—of the walls, wainscoting and windows—of the ceilings and stands—of the tables, bookcases and chairs—of the bureaus, mantels and beds —of the many surfaces that must have varnish and paint too, if they are to retain their attractive looks, stay clean and sanitary and give years of faithful service.

If you have property that needs attention, the time to paint and varnish is now. Talk with us about the painting you ought to have done. Don't let it go another day. The longer you put it off, the more money it will cost you, "one of these days." Save the surface and you save all.

TODAY it costs less to paint than it did. The cost of materials has led in the downward economic trend of manufactured products. But no matter what it costs the fact remains that it always costs more not to paint than to paint. Rust and rot go on till you check them. The logical time to paint and varnish is NOW.

Hey-Rube

It's a call used by nurses, wardens, pains of defecation.

ONCE A RUBER ALWAYS A RUBER

Habit is a cable; we weave a thread of it each day; at last it gets so strong, we cannot break it. CERTAINLY they can be broken. —say I WILL.

An example—should you get green with a knife—try spoon—holds more; or drink coffee from a mug—use the cup, saves the mess, remove the spoon—may save an eye.

Are you still burning wood? A RUBER trying to make a RUBER of you by telling you that a HEATER under a WASHING MACHINE is a failure. FIVE companies already have adopted the HEATING UNIT and you will have a back number washer without this HEATER. And do you know that they are coming to the barrel type washer; copied from this type in the past six years, and more new ones coming on, so don't fool yourself—buy the "EASY" Vacuum Washer, the one that operates those vacuum cups from the bottom of the tank which gives you free access to this beautiful open washer.

CUTICURA HEALS SEVERE ITCHING

On Mother's Body, Caused Her To Scratch, Could Not Sleep.

"My mother was troubled with a breaking out of pimples on her body. The itching was very severe and caused her to scratch, which seemed to make the breaking out worse, and she could not sleep good at night."

"The trouble lasted about four weeks. She tried several remedies but none of them were successful. She began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using one cake of Soap and one bar of Ointment she was completely healed." (Signed) Richard Brockman, R. 3, Huntsville, Missouri.

Use Cuticura for every-day toilet purposes. Bathe with Soap, scrub with Ointment, dust with Talcum.

SHORT SHAVINGS

F. A. Frobase, waiting for a street car at Public Square when he noticed a woman with her arms full of bundles approach a hotel porter. She insisted on considering him a taxi driver. "Well," she said, "Ain'tcha wearin' a cap, huh?"

Gene Lippincott tells of a woman in his neighborhood who was all ready to put the potatoes on to boil when a man came to fix the furnace. When she got back to the kitchen, after instructing the furnace man, she says, she "found she had put the dish rag in the pot instead of the potatoes and had boiled that."

Fred C. Dorries, salesman, was presented with a sample doughnut at a

STOMACH TROUBLE

In five minutes "Pape's Diapepsin" ends

Indigestion Gases Acidity Sourness Flatulence Palpitation

Take "Pape's Diapepsin" now! In five minutes your stomach feels fine. Don't bother what upset your stomach or which portion of the food did the damage. If your stomach is sour, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented into stubborn lumps; head dizzy and aches; you belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food—just take a little Pape's Diapepsin and in five minutes you wonder what became of the indigestion and distress. Millions of men and women to-day know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps this delicate organ regulated and they eat their favorite foods without fear. If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless anti-acid is Pape's Diapepsin, which costs only sixty cents for a large case at drug stores.

Feed the Whole Chick

Supply Every Element Needed

NO wonder so many chicks are scrawny! They get too much food for energy and heat, and not enough material to build bones, nerves, vital organs, muscles and feathers.

Purina Chows

are guaranteed to supply all growing needs. They contain the protein and minerals—no deficient in grain feeds.

Money-Back Guarantee

If Chicken Chowder and Baby Chick Chow don't make your chicks develop twice as fast during the first six weeks, as when fed grains, you get your money back.

Young Girls Need Care

FROM the age of twelve a girl needs all the care the thoughtful mother can give. Many a woman has suffered years of pain and misery—the victim of thoughtlessness or ignorance of the mother who should have guided her during this time.

If she complains of headaches, pains in the back and lower limbs, or if you notice a slowness of thought, nervousness or irritability on the part of your daughter make life easier for her.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is especially adapted for such conditions. It can be taken in safety by any woman, young or old.

Read How These Mothers Helped Their Daughters

Greenville, Del.—"I was under the impression that my eldest daughter had some internal trouble as ever since the first time her sickness appeared she had to go to bed and even had to quit school once for a week. I always take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound myself so I gave it to her and she has received great benefit from it. You can use this letter for a testimonial if you wish, as I can not say too much about what your medicine has done for us." Mrs. Wm. S. Hughes, Greenville, Del.

Wauson, O.—"My daughter always had backache and leg-ache at certain periods and could not be on her feet. We read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound doing girls so much good so she began to take it. That is two years ago and she is a different girl since then, able to do any work she wants to do—and so well and strong. We recommend the Vegetable Compound to mothers with ailing daughters." Mrs. A. M. Burkholder, Route No. 2, Box 1, Wauson, Ohio.
